They will also tour Yellowstone National Park and expect to be away four or five weeks.

Scott Livengood and family moved this week into their new residence on Hancock street which he recently purchased of Mrs. Westfall, widow of the late Col. Westfall. Scott had just finished a nice dwelling on his place a mile south on the Dundee road, and moved into town so he would be close to his work at the C. K. Spaulding office.

R. F. King has sold his grocery business, located at 714 First street, to E. Oberg, recently from Moscow, Idaho, who will continue the business at the same place. Mr. King says his plans for the future are yet to make and in the meantime he will remain out of the harness for a rest of a few weeks. Mr. Oberg says he came from Moscow in order to get into a lower altitude for the benefit of his children, and since they are greatly improved by the change he has decided to remain here.

Mr. Evans of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative Association, was down from Salem Saturday and handed out the information that since he was here before he had taken unto himself a wife, a native of Tennessee, and that all was correspondingly lovely. He also said that the cherry crop in the Willamette Valley was at least double the amount figured on, which was occasioned by the fact that the moisture prevented the cherries while growing from making the drop that is always expected. Salem canneries, like all the others over the valley have been swamped with cherries and berries, since all came on together this season.

W. C. Woodward, in writing from New York, where he was to take passage the following day for England, said that he called on Warren Barrett, a former governor of Earlham College, who is now head of the legal department of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, where he found Haines Burgess of the class of 1909, Pacific College, who is one of Mr. Barrett's right hand men. Mr. Barrett told him that Burgess was making good and that when he handed in an opinion on a case he took it as final. He also stated that Burgess had, in the past few months, been handling, very successfully, some complicated cases with the Standard Oil Co., involving more than $15,000,000. The Graphic is always glad to be able to make mention of former Newberg boys who are making good.
