

The Abolition of Slavery

The Electric Washing machine is the proclamation of freedom from the slavery of the washtub. Modern invention has contributed nothing so beneficial to womankind as the Electric Washer. The rubbing over a washtub is banished. The tiresome wringing of clothes with the hands is gone to stay.

The Electric washer does the work while the mistress of the home can engage in pleasanter and less tiring endeavors.

The all-metal-washer of the oscillating or swinging type has proved to be the most effective method for removing soil and dirt from the clothing. The swinging motion of the tub forces the hot soapy water through the clothes which gives the soap full opportunity to dissolve the dirt and grease in the fabric. Then when the water rushes away in the opposite direction a vacuum suction is developed which completely extracts the dirt. The rubbing of clothes on a corrugated surface is unnecessary as the action of the soap and water passing through them is the real cleansing process. The swinging wringer, electrically driven, does away with one of the hard duties incident to washing. We carry a line of the best washers manufactured and sell to patrons of our service cheaper than one can buy elsewhere. We shall be pleased to show you our washers and will make terms to suit the convenience of those who buy of us.

The cost for electricity to operate a washing machine is negligible. This cost for the largest of family washings for a month will not exceed 35 cents.

We sell MAYTAG, wooden machine, BLUEBIRD and APEX, metal machines. If our customers desire any other make of machine we will secure them and save you money

THURSDAY, AUGUST 5, 1920.

Vice-President Tom Marshall is booked for a talk in Portland Friday. Tom was a receptive candidate for the nomination for first place on the ticket and came very nearly being in the also ran class at the San Francisco convention.

With the continued shortage of gas and the increasing price per gallon, and with the doubling up on the railroad passenger rates that is announced for the near future, walking and bike riding may become popular again.

In the eyes of the people there appears to be no good reason for keeping the public in the dark regarding the facts when a public man is sick. That President Wilson continues to be an invalid who is practically helpless is generally known and it might as well be admitted.

It is greatly to the credit of the citizens of Pendleton, as well as to the State of Oregon, that wise counsel prevailed, following the capture of the outlaws who murdered Sheriff Taylor, and that the law is to be allowed to take its course. In the days gone by there would have been no expense incurred in a trial at Pendleton in court in such an instance.

The announcement of the death in Portland, Wednesday, of A. M. Grilley, well-known Y. M. C. A. man and athletic director, will be a surprise to many people. Mr. Grilley was a frequent visitor in Newberg at ball games during the winter seasons and he was always hailed as a referee who stood for a square deal. His death resulted from an illness of several months and an operation for cancer of the stomach.

Rumors have been in the air for some time, relative to a moonshine still that was supposed to be in operation near Newberg, and the raid of Wednesday evening, an account of which is chronicled on another page, was no great surprise to The Graphic, for a tip of the exact location and the coming raid was given to the writer several days ago.

In connection with a statement made in another column with reference to the early pioneers of West Chehalis we desire to add that the parents of L. F. Hall located on the donation claim which the latter now owns, about the year 1859, when he was three years old. The Graphic will be glad to give publicity to any information about the early pioneers of the valley that may be furnished.

It is a very sweet announcement—the continued falling off on the price of sugar. Let 'er drop.

DOCTOR'S VIEW OF AMERICAN MENTALITY

Arthur Sweeney, a doctor at St. Paul, recently turned the attention of the medical association of Southern Minnesota to the psychological tests made on would-be enlistees in the American army. The findings prove so surprising as to be bewildering, says the Spokesman-Review.

It was ascertained that the average of intelligence among American men is that of a child about 12 years old. As the tested applicants for enlistment were very numerous and came from every class of society and every section of the country the finding holds good for Americans as a whole. We have boasted of the high intelligence of American citizenship, the intelligence of the laborer and the superior quality of rural manhood. But this close, military appraisal of the mentality of the graduates of our schools and colleges intimates in no uncertain terms that the foundations of our boast require shoring up.

The tests were applied to more than 1,500,000 recruits. Their ages were between 21 and 31. They were picked men in that the draft boards had eliminated criminals, cripples, imbeciles and the insane, the sick and the socially inadequate. The average for the residue surpasses the absolute average from the whole.

The tests were shrewdly calculated for determining actual intelligence. Seven groups were outlined. Distribution of their percentages or proportions to our population of 100,000,000 (in round numbers) would work out 5,000,000 very superior Americans, 10,000,000 superior ones, 18,000,000 high average ones, 25,000,000 average ones, 20,000,000 normal or dull ones, 15,000,000 inferior ones and 7,000,000 feeble minds. The percentages of the seven groups in our total population would stand respectively at 5, 10, 18, 25, 20, 15 and 7 per cent. One in 20 Americans is a very superior person, one in four an average person.

An average group of men between 21 and 31 has the mentality of a boy between 13 and 14½ years of age. In other words, the men's minds had ceased to grow. Averages of illiteracy and averages of intelligence go hand in hand. The tests may not be infallible nor measure mentality absolutely, but they can be accepted as a ready and reasonable means of arriving at a measure of intelligence. The practical lesson of the findings is that the people must be educated to the utmost and the schools and teachers be strengthened at any cost.
