NEWBERG SPECIALLY HONORED

Prof. Torry, formerly of the Reed College faculty but now of U. of O., has for the past few years been working on a plan for securing federal aid for instruction in Biology and Nature study in the grade schools in Oregon and he has finally succeeded in getting a start made along this line.

Four schools have been selected in which to start the work this year, one of which is Newberg. Asbland and The Dailies are also thus honored, the fourth not yet having been announced.

The teacher for Newberg is Miss Jessie Laird, who has had special training under Prof. Torry, and she began the work this week. The beginning is in the third and fourth grades and it is expected that it will be extended one grade each year until all are covered. Miss Laird will also give instruction in Biology and Physical culture in the high school.

FRED L. AMES WRITES FROM LINCOLN, NEBRASKA

We arrived here some ten days ago and are now located in some comfortably furnished rooms about three blocks from the college where Mina will attend school, commencing next Monday. We had a pleasant trip, without any accidents. We stopped at Denver, Colorado, and visited my brother-in-law and family. Had a very nice time. Also stopped at Cambridge, and Sutton, Nebraska, and visited relatives, and old time friends, and as Sutton was our former home we met many old acquaintances. Nebraska sure has a bumper crop and good crops of nearly all kinds. Has been a prosperous year for farmers, especially, and I would think, according to the prices asked for nearly everything a person has to buy, that other people are as prosperous as the farmer. I expected to find prices here much lower than in Oregon, but am surprised to find them even higher in most cases. There seems to be a great variety of fresh fruits and vegetables on the market. Some are native fruits and some are from California and Oregon. I noticed some Italian prunes and asked them what they called them. They said they were plums. Of course they are very high priced here after being shipped so far. The first few days we were here the wind blew a hurricane all the time, but finally wound up in a good rain which laid the dust and cooled the air, and on the morning of September 30, we had a heavy frost. Since then it has been ideal weather, such as Nebraska is noted for at this time of the year. The State Farm, where Mina will attend school, is very fine, and has many commodious buildings and a great many fine cows, and other stock. But all things considered I have found no place that beats Oregon in my estimation and no place I'd rather live in than Newberg, and no people that seem quite as good, or as good looking as the people in Newberg. When spring comes we shall be pleased to return.

The Graphic comes regularly and reads like a letter from home. With kind regards to you and all our friends, we are yours respectfully Fred L. and Mina Ames.

Elbowing the Great.

A certain house employee, who makes very little money, has just returned from a buzz around the Florida health resorts. Other employees, at a loss to understand why he should spend his money in such riotous living, asked him to explain.

"Well," he said, "I like the association of big men."

"What do you mean association?" Bill Kenny, one of the doorkeepers, asked.

"Well," he replied, "one day Boies Penrose's automobile almost ran over me and another day, when I was in swimming, I kicked Mayor Hylan on the ankle."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An English tourist was on a visit to Arran and decided to have a day's fishing. He made inquiries of local experts, and on being told that the cleg, or horsefly, would suit his purpose for lure, he sought the highland servant girl at his inn.

"I say, my girl, can you get me some horseflies?" he asked.

The girl looked at him stupidly. He repeated his question and added:

"Why, girl, did you never see a horsefly?"

"Naa, sir," replied the girl, shaking her head, "but wance I saw a cow jump over a cliff."—Chicago Daily News.
