TESTS MEAT FOR SWEETNESS

Olfactory Nerves of the "Ham Smeller" Must Be Always at Their Keenest.

To the long list of unusual occupations by which men live, there must be added that of the "ham smeller" in a packing house. His duty is to inspect meat products and judge of their soundness.

The ham smeller's only tools are a long steel trier and his nose. He stands in a barrel to keep his clothes from being soiled by the dripping brine, and the hams are brought to him by workmen. A ham is laid before him, and he plunges his sharp-pointed trier into it, withdraws it and passes it swiftly beneath his nose. The trier always goes down to the knuckle joint.

In testing meat in that manner the man with the trier judges by the slightest shade of difference between the smell of one piece of meat and another. The smell of the meat is almost universally sweet, and that is what he smells; the slightest taint or deviation from the sweet smell is therefore appreciable. It is not the degree of taint that he expects to find, but the slightest odor that is not sweet.

When he detects an odor he throws the meat aside, and if it is not unwholesome, it is sold as "rejected" meat, but if it is tainted it goes to the rendering tank. The ham tester smells meat from 7 o'clock in the morning until 5 at night, and his sense must never become jaded or inexact, or his usefulness would be at an end.

Ham testing is not a pursuit dangerous to the health, as tea testing is supposed to be, but the ham smeller with a cold in his head is for the time being like a piano player who has lost his arms in a railway wreck.

HAS MANY IMPORTED TREES

No Other Country in the World Said to Possess Such a Variety as Does England.

The Portuguese boast of their forest at Basaco, where there are over two hundred kinds of imported trees in full and gigantic growth. But there is no other country in the whole world where so many varieties of imported trees flourish as in the British Isles, and Kew has specimens of nearly all of them. Not only original, or, rather, natural varieties are to be seen at Kew, but others which owe their being to the cunning of man. The latter are graft-hybrids of extraordinary interest. In the year 1826 a French gardener grafted a purple-flowered cypress on a laburnum stock. A branch developed, which produced flowers intermediate between the stock and the scion. You can see a specimen of this hybrid among the laburnums. It bears not only the hybrid flowers but also flowers and leaves characteristic of both its parents. The Laburnum Adami is its name. In another case a union between the common thorn and the...

Word of Advice.
 "Mr. Jobbles," said the head of the firm, "I notice there's a considerable item for meals in your expense account."
 "Er—I was entertaining customers and prospective buyers, sir."
 "All right. I'm not complaining, but I hope you will bear in mind that we are selling tractors and no lady of the chorus ever buys a tractor."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Bill, the Builder

Hits the Nail on the Head When He Says—

"'Tis Cheaper to Build Well at the Start Than to Make Repairs All Your Life"

Don't make the mistake of buying building material by price only. Under-size timbers that cannot stand the strain of weight are a poor investment at any price. A little careful attention to the requirements of your material will often save the expense of frequent repairs.

Strength Where Needed

When you buy lumber here, you get with it the benefit of our years of experience. We will gladly check your specifications with the plans and verify the correctness of the sizes you order. We will see that the sizes ordered are adequate to carry their load safely and enduringly.
