LARKIN-PRINCE HARDWARE CO.

ON THE SCREENS OF LOCAL THEATERS

The Baker has a week's program of more than passing notice for the week beginning Friday, February 11, on which date the offering will be Wallace Reid in "The Dancin' Fool." On this bill will also be seen Bebe Daniels, Raymond Hatton, Tully Marshall and Lillian Leighton, all well known screen stars. Monday and Tuesday, Alice Brady will appear in "The New York Idea," a society play which has attracted wide attention in the metropolitan show houses. Louise Glaum will appear on Wednesday in Stewart Edward White's story of African adventure "The Leopard Woman," which story ran as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post. The principal bills will be supplemented with late comedias.

At The Star.

The Star theatre has become a member of the Associated First National Exhibitors' circuit, with which more than 4,000 cinema houses are amalgamated. Next week all the Portland first run screen houses will show First National releases and Manager Allmon of the Star will anticipate the big city houses by presenting a Marshall Neffan production—"The River's End"—with an all-star cast. This play will be on both Friday and Saturday. Monday and Tuesday Constance Talmadge will appear in a stirring drama—"In Search of a Sinner." The bill for Wednesday and Thursday will show Katherine MacDonald, said to be the most beautiful woman on the screen, in "The Beauty Market." The week's program, as will be seen, is one of exceptional merit and should be a winner.

MOTHER IS GROWING OLD.

Evening shades are falling 'round her,
And a hallowed life has found her
With new beauty in her smile.
Peace has long since woven 'round her
All the joys of hope, and bound her
With its promise, born the while.

Though her life, when in its morning,
Chose a path with bright adorning,
Making light her days of care,
Now her days wear mellowed shading.

And her zest for life is fading
Like the silver in her hair.

Just a waning of the vision
That once ruled her calm precision
As she trod her onward way.
Just a lessening of tension
In her wondrous comprehension
As she views her life today.

Evening shades are falling 'round her,
Heaven's brightest hopes have bound her,
And the calmness on her brow
Is the same whose sweet adorning
Graced her life when in its morning,
And that makes us love her now.

HIGH SCHOOL

This is the last week of the semester and every one is thinking about exams. However, many of the students were exempt. The exemptions were read Tuesday and the report cards will come on Friday.

This semester two seniors are completing the required number of credits for graduation. Helen Robertson is planning to continue her studies the next semester. Alfred Everest, who is leaving now, will be back to graduate with the June class.

The History II class had an interesting debate last Friday. The question was: "Resolved, that the reforms of Augustus were greater than those of Julius Caesar." Those on the affirmative side were: Blanche Freedman, La Verne Hodson, and Charles Bennett; on the negative were Margaret Ross, Louis Parrett, and Bennie Shires. The affirmative side won.

The class in Pedagogy consists of six students, Mary Sanders, Cornelia Titus, Ida Weber, Elfrida Holzagle, Emma Kilthan, and Blanche Brown. Under the instruction of Professor Wright, they have been studying the theory of teaching and have also been observing and teaching at the grade building. There has been excellent cooperation with the grade teachers in connection with this work. Next semester they will study school law and will also review subjects taught in the grade schools.

Thirty girls were enrolled this semester in the domestic art classes. The work has consisted chiefly of practical serving as well as some decorative work before the holidays. From observation we note that, while the Domestic Science girls cook food that can be eaten, the Domestic Art girls make clothes that can be worn. During the second semester the classes will design spring clothing and take up millinery.

The new cretonne draperies of the windows of the domestic art room give a home-like and very pleasing atmosphere to the room. Pleasant surroundings have evidently a psychological effect upon the students in serving as a stimuli to good work.

SHE'S REAL

If, in your roaming to and fro,
You see a purple cow,
You've really seen her, so don't fret;
We've prohibition now.

—TENNYSON J. DAFT.

Oh, canny, canny, hard, I vow
No purple cow you've seen;
Tho' we have prohibition now,
We still have Schneiderline.

—SORT O' DAFT M'SEL-M.M.W.

Since prohibition is in vogue
It's not the general rule,
To gaze upon a purple cow,
Instead, we seen white mule.

BROWN'S TROUBLE.

Said Brown unto his neighbor Duff,
"The Meat I buy is always tough;
What is the reason? Can you tell
Why dealers always poor meat sell?"
Said Duff, "My friend, you are mistaken,
For I can buy good beef or bacon;
Meat good to bake, or roast, or boil,
Because I buy my meat from Coyle;
At Coyle's Meat Market, you can find
The best of meat of every kind;
If you buy there, I'll guarantee,
They'll please you, just as they did me."
Brown took his neighbor's good advice,
And now gets meat that's always nice;
No more tough meat his temper roils,
For he trades Exclusively at Coyle's.
