M.L.K RECORDS AID DAIRYMAN

Both Profitable and Practicable to Know for Certainty the Full Value of Cows.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Reports coming to the United States Department of Agriculture often include stories of the surprises which cow owners meet with when they start keeping records of their cows' production. For instance, in a Missouri cow-testing association there was a man who, when he entered the association, did not appear to have a very good herd; but among his cows was a crippled, ten-year-old Jersey, named Goldie. Old Goldie led the whole association, with an annual production of approximately 9,300 pounds of milk and 526 pounds of fat, and an income over cost of feed amounting to $287, in spite of the fact that when the test started she had already gone three months since freshening. The amusing part of Goldie's record is that her owner tried to sell her just before she went on test, for $75. Six months later he refused $275 for her.

Milk Should Be Cooled Immediately After It Is Drawn.

The whole herd of which Goldie was a part averaged over 360 pounds of fat for the year. In contrast with this was another herd of 37 cows in the same association, which had been reputed to be the best in that part of the state. Yet 14 of these were sold during the year as unprofitable, and it seemed likely that more of them would be.

Similar stories come from other states. The dairy division has been giving a great deal of time to the extension of cow-testing associations throughout the country, and there are now nearly 500 associations in various states.

The man who joins a cow-testing association never runs the risk of selling a $200 milk producer for $80 because her appearance is poor, nor of wasting his feedstuffs and work on a good-for-nothing cow because she looks like a good milker.

It is both profitable and practicable to know for a certainty the worth of a cow by weighing her milk. A man in a cow-testing association has the milk of every cow weighed and tested once a month, from which it is easy to calculate the total for a year. He saves the trouble of doing it himself by having the cow tester do it. The tester also weighs the feed, and figures out the cost of the milk; so that at the end of a year the owner of a herd of cows knows exactly what each one has given, what she has eaten, and how much income over cost of feed she has brought him.

LIVE STOCK

KEEP PUREBRED LIVE STOCK

North Dakota Farmer Eliminates Runts by Liberal Feeding and Proper Management.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To obtain the most rapid growth and best development of live stock keep good stock, and see that nothing checks its growth from the time it is born. This is the method by which a North Dakota farmer prevents runts among his animals.

In a letter on this subject to the United States Department of Agriculture, which has been studying the causes and prevention of undersized animals, he says, "In the 40 years of my farming and breeding and raising live stock of all kinds I do not remember a runt in any class or breed. I have always been a liberal feeder and a good caretaker. Besides, all stock had access to good, fresh water at all times. With this, in addition to good shelter and ventilation, it seems that my young stock would not stop growing from the time they were born. Use good judgment in feeding, and don't neglect the details."

There is No Excuse for Runt Pigs.

A farmer in Vermont writes, "A well-bred animal well cared for will not produce runts. There is absolutely no excuse for one in live stock or poultry. By well-bred live stock I mean strong, healthy stock, well taken care of for several generations, and bred for constitution. This has been my experience from boyhood, first, with rabbits and game fowls, and later with sheep, hogs, horses and cattle. An accident to a well-bred and healthy animal will, if the accident occurs before it reaches maturity, affect its size but not its productive capacity. That is, it will not influence its ability to produce such young as it would have had if no accident had occurred. Eliminate all females that are not good mothers, and you will soon stamp the whole herd with constitution. Then with care, which means attention and feed, your runts will fall to materialize."

Neptune's Laundry.
"I would like to see the wash of the sea."
"The best time to do that ought to be when you are crossing the line."

The Columbia River Highway

THE remarkable engineering skill which built the Columbia River Highway opened a veritable paradise for motorists.

This highway follows the Columbia River from the Pacific Ocean — near Astoria — as far east as The Dalles, and leads the tourist through a country of indescribable scenic interest — high waterfalls, huge rocks, picturesque woods — an ideal vacation land for the motorist who appreciates nature at its best.

And on your travels along the Columbia River Highway you can always get "Red Crown," the gasoline of quality — an all-refinery gasoline with a continuous chain of boiling points.

Look for the Red Crown sign before you fill.
