QUESTIONS FOR CANDIDATES

A subscriber advises The Voter that candidates as usual are talking about tax reduction and promising to reduce taxes, but that it is hard to pin them down to anything definite as to how taxes may be reduced. This subscriber asks us to draw up a set of questions for each candidate to discuss on the platform or in the press, so voters may find out just what his ideas are.

We submit the following as fair and reasonable questions, calculated to bring out definite answers:

Do you favor reducing taxation or increasing sources of revenue by devising new forms of taxation?

Do you favor confining public expenditures to the reasonable ability of taxpayers to finance them, or letting the various public bodies and public institutions spend all they can get under existing law and the 6% limitation? If you favor confining expenditures to what taxpayers can reasonably afford to pay, what will you do specifically towards securing reduction of expenditures to that point?

Will you have the courage to support the submission to the people of a measure reducing the millage levied for educational and other purposes by the state?

Will you endeavor to prevent the submission of new millage tax bills for any purpose?

Will you work and vote to keep appropriations and budgets at an amount 2% less than the previous year instead of 6% greater?—Oregon Voter.

TO HELP YOUR ORGANIZATION

Ways that you can help your organization be successful (?).

Don't attend meetings if it rains. You might get your feet wet.

If you should attend meetings, and fault with everything that's going on. If your officers are showing pep, demand in open meeting just what political office they are running for.

Never accept an office. Most offices have duties connected with them and it's lots easier to criticize the other fellow for the way he handles the job.

Be sure to get sore at the organization if you are not appointed on a committee.

If you are appointed on a committee, don't attend the meetings as you might be bored with the silly ideas of the other committeemen.

During discussion on a motion always keep still. After it has passed, tell everyone why it should have been voted down.

Forget to pay your dues. The organization don't need your little bit.

Don't try to get new members. "Let George do it."

Don't do any more work for the organization than you can help. When the other members roll up their sleeves and put all their strength and ability to help things along, get up on your hind legs and howl that the organization is being run by a clique.

Never buy a ticket to any entertainment given by the organization. Yours ought to be a comp, seeing that you sold a ticket to your father and mother.

Sweet Potato Gum

Every time a person puts a United States postage stamp to his lips he tastes the sweet potato gum with which the stamps are backed. This gum is made from that succulent vegetable because Uncle Sam's lieutenants consider it the most harmless preparation of the sort.

All of the gum used on American postage stamps is mixed by the government at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where the stamps are made. It is spread on the sheets after the stamps have been printed.

The government makes two kinds of postage stamp mucilage. If one could see the packages of stamps as they come to the post office ready to be sold one would find them labeled, according to season, "summer gum" or "winter gum." The former is much the harder of the two and was devised some years ago to keep the stamps from getting too sticky in warm, moist weather.—The Lutheran.

Molasses Peanut Brittle

Put one cupful molasses, six cupfuls brown sugar and one cupful water in deep kettle and boil until it can be rolled to a ball when dropped into cold water. Add three pints shelled and broken peanuts, boil five minutes more and then add two heaping tablespoonfuls butter and take from fire. Stir until butter is melted, add one teaspoonful baking soda and stir quickly. When the candy begins to rise pour into well-greased pans, spreading as thin as possible.

When saving for your old age, don't neglect to lay up a few pleasant thoughts.

POULTRY FLOCKS

POULTRY PROFIT IS FEEDING

Mash of Bran, Middlings, Meat Scrap and Cornmeal is Best, Experts Have Proven.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Valuable results of interest to poultrymen have been obtained by the United States Department of Agriculture in the experimental tests at the government poultry farm, Beltsville, Md., where different rations have been fed to various groups of laying hens for a period of eight years. At this time, more than 1,000 hens and pullets are used in feeding trials of this kind.

The pens range in size from 30 to 50 hens, all the fowls being trap-nested during the period under test. During the last three years, the mash which has given the most uniform and best production has consisted of a mixture of 4 per cent bran, 4 per cent middlings, 26 per cent meat scrap, and 66 per cent cornmeal. This mash was the result of experiments where the hens were allowed to select their own mash ingredients. When given free choice of these various ingredients, the fowls consumed the various ingredients in the above proportions. Several pens, both of Leghorns and Rhode Island Reds, of 30 hens each have averaged from 140 to 155 eggs apiece where this mash has been fed. The feeding mixture seems to be especially adapted for Leghorns, although it has also given good results with the Reds. The Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks are inclined to accumulate too much fat when fed this mash, and one somewhat lower in meat scrap content gives better results when fed to these two breeds.

The Wyandottes and Plymouth Rocks maintained on the Beltsville farm are large, standard-size fowls, and the tendency to take on fat on this mash probably did not occur in the case of smaller types of Plymouth Rocks, such as commonly are found on commercial poultry farms. Experiments conducted during the current year in which this mash was modified by the addition of 15 per cent ground oats and the reduction of the meat scrub by 3 per cent and the cornmeal by 12 per cent have not shown any advantage. The evidences are that ground oats added to the ration produces no beneficial results. It pays to vary the proportion of grains in the scratch mixture, from an economical standpoint, according to the market price of these farm crops. At present, a scratch mixture of three parts cracked corn, two parts oats, and one part wheat, by weight, is used with this mash.

In previous years fish meal has proved a more profitable and practical source of protein in the mash than meat scrap, but during the present year the production has been very good where the fish refuse has been used, and as the price of this material has decreased, larger net incomes result from its use. Sixty per cent protein fish scrap now can be obtained for from $1 to $2 per hundred pounds cheaper than 55 per cent protein meat scrap. Innumerable varieties of fish scrap have been fed and no harmful effects have resulted from feeding even fish scrap of varied compositions, some being unusually rich in oil content. Tests in which only 15 per cent of meat scrap was fed in the mash have not resulted in as high production with pullets as where 20 or 25 per cent of meat scrap was used, but with yearling hens the 16 per cent meat scrap has given practically as good production as the higher. With the heavier breeds, it is advisable to decrease the amount of meat scrap during the second year, as such feeding tends to keep the fowls in better breeding condition.

DOULTRY NOTES

Rats are shrewd pests. You may have them though you don't see them. Clean up their breeding places as much as possible and place the setting hens in protected nests.

The advantages of good standard-bred stock are being so rapidly recognized that there is a keen demand in every community for breeding stock and hatching eggs from good stock.

The best way to avoid trouble in the flock of fowls in the winter is by having open-front houses. There will be less dampness, fowls will be healthier and there is less risk of frozen combs.
