THE VALUE OF SERVICE

The doctor who answers a hurry call with the greatest possible speed is more valuable than a physician of equal skill who drives up to the patient's door at his own convenience. Service counts. It is worth money. Who is there who doesn't agree with this general principle? And doesn't it apply also to the buying of merchandise?

The progressive merchant in your own trading center gives service along with the goods. He has a selection of merchandise continually in stock. You don't have to wait. When you enter the store you are able to see the article itself in which you are interested. You see it with your eyes, feel it with your fingers; note its actual size, shape and color; compare it with other goods at different prices, and, if it is what you want, take it away with you.

If you have questions to ask, you are given an explanation on the spot. The answer given your first question may suggest another query. It is answered within half a minute of the first interrogation. No time is lost. You benefit from the dealer's practical knowledge, from the fact that he is on the ground and ready at all times to see to it personally that the article he has sold you gives satisfaction.

The wise buyer will not forget that such matters have a dollars and cents value and should enter into the reckoning whenever a price comparison is being made.—From The Oregon Farmer.

There is quite an agitation to cut down on educational expenses and it is possible that there are ways in which some of this tax expense may be cut off without too great a loss, but we feel that this streak of economy should not be allowed to impair the really educational part of our school systems. Too often the public expects to get people to work for them at salaries much lower than corresponding positions pay in private employment. This is a regrettable condition. Our school systems are the bulwark of our national life and if we would keep the nation in good shape we must maintain our education at its highest possible standard.

According to the dope we get from headquarters there are some ten or twelve candidates for governor, all of whom are better fitted for the office than any of the others. It's really too bad that we can't try them all out and see for ourselves.

Someone has asked us why it is that there is so much property for sale hereabouts and for the life of us we couldn't tell the answer. We haven't any for sale ourselves and only wish we had the money to buy some.

Newberg is quite a musical city with the college music department, the orchestra, band, church music, Whitney boys chorus, etc. This is one thing of which we may well be proud.

We'd like to know why it is that every time the Graphic mentions the fact that we are having fine weather, it immediately clouds up and rains.

WOODBURN INDEPENDENT NOT IN FAVOR OF GEORGE WHITE

We have been requested to touch at length upon the candidacy of George A. White for the governorship, but will refrain from so doing other than stating he will be low man in the race and he will not be surprised in not receiving the full Legion and National Guard backing; also, that he should resign his present position as adjutant-general by all means. However, he had his salary raised one hundred per cent and probably needs the money to make the gubernatorial campaign. We may have more to say later, but it would be really unnecessary. Becoming a candidate and retaining his high-salaried position as adjutant-general will without doubt result in damaging the welfare of the Oregon National Guard, for the public will take this occasion to demand of the next legislature that the military code be modified and the appropriation lowered.

CHARLES CUSHARD

CALIFORNIAN SAYS THAT
O. A. C. DOES IT FOR LESS

"The Oregon Agricultural College has not only been developed as one of the greatest in the world but has been 'sold' to the state and the nation," declared W. S. Guilford, livestock man of Bueet City, Cal., a member of the California commission on agricultural education and former livestock editor of the Wisconsin Agriculturist. "It is just as important to have the proper publicity as to do the work as it makes it possible for farmers and others to profit through the findings of the institution and tends to stimulate the staff members to greater action."

"The college has accomplished its results with less money and equipment than we have in California. We pay heads of departments $7,000 or $8,000 and professors from $5,000 to $7,000. You are really getting more benefit from the work because of the publicity. The farmers are dissatisfied with the college of agriculture because they do not know what it is doing. The commission never would have been appointed if the college of agriculture had received as good publicity. Your idea of having students write articles showing the results of experiments is a great one—and it saves money to the state."

Other members of the commission were strong in their praises of the college and the practical work done for the benefit of the people of the state.—Benton County Courier.

IT ALWAYS WORKS

A Michigan storekeeper found himself with a pair of number 15 shoes on his shelves that had been there for several years. He thought it would be a good joke to advertise that he would give them to anybody whom they would fit. Six men called the next morning. The shoes were too small for five of them but the sixth man walked off with them, though they pinched a little. Moral—you can sell anything by advertising it.—Ex.

Thirty cents is not very much money to pay when you have a cow to sell or a horse or some other article. Yet often times a thirty cent classified ad. has brought buyer and seller together as soon as the paper is out. Graphic ads get results. If
