

COUNTY COURT NEWS

(News-Reporter.)

Dan Cupid is on the alert at the court house and the marriage license counter is kept busy. Among licenses to wed obtained last week are Bergitta Louise Stow of McMinnville and Cecil Raymond Messinger of Eugene; John Edgar Holladay of Amity and Evelyn Crystal Reel of Amity.

Marriage licenses have been granted to the following this week: Muriel Ida Martin and Thomas James Altimus, both of McMinnville; Harriett M. Ford of Newberg and John Henrik Strand of Brighton, Tillamook county; Jane Gertrude Hollingsworth of McMinnville and Earl Lenley Bland of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Lena Leona Dorris of Newberg and Guy Barnett May of Dundee.

Rare Coin Comes in Till

The 3-cent silver coin is becoming very rare and yet some days ago a coin of that denomination found its way into the till of the county clerk's office. It is the size of a dime and can be mistaken for a 10-cent piece.

Proves on Homestead

Rudolph Blatter of McMinnville Route 4 appeared before County Clerk Wilson on Monday and made proof on his homestead. The taking up of land in this region is becoming rare.

Motor Company Incorporates

The Ross Motor Car Company has filed articles of incorporation. The incorporators are Homer Ross, Irma Ross and G. S. Wright and the capital stock is $10,000. The firm's principal office is at McMinnville.

Canning Concern Incorporates

The Dayton Canning company

with J. A. Hewitt, E. M. Coats and H. A. Kerr as incorporators has filed articles with the county clerk. The principal office is at Dayton and the capital stock is $10,000.

Farms Are Named

Euphonious appellations have been chosen and duly recorded by farmers for their farms. "Pleasant Vale" is the name Martin Schreiber has given his farm on McMinnville Route 3. "May Flower" is the title chosen by Chas. R. Newman for his place on Amity Route 2. "Sylvan Glen" is the name obtained by Wm. F. Leckband for his farm on Dayton, Route 1.

Suits Are Filed

An action for money has been instituted by T. W. Goldapp against N. C. Christensen and E. G. Fendall through O. P. M. Jamison of Portland and R. L. Conner of this city as attorneys.

Vinton & Toose are attorneys for plaintiff in the action for money filed in the circuit court by the Yamhill Electric Company vs. H. E. Dupuy. This suit has to do with a note.

Mike Gruber has filed an action for money through his attorney, B. A. Kliks, against N. Spady. The suit is over a loan of $100 alleged made by plaintiff at Willamina in 1919 to the defendant.

An action for damages is that of Lloyd Dumdi against William Alexander and wife. B. A. Kliks is attorney for the plaintiff. The plaintiff asks for judgment for $5,900 against the defendants. The case arises over domestic trouble.

Home-Made Rugs Beautiful

Where one lives near a rug weaver there is no excuse for not having beautiful rugs for the floors, as the cost of weaving is small. Wash your burlap sacks and cut them into rather coarse strips and sew them as you would any carpet rags. Dye some of the balls any color desired, say dark green, dark brown, red or deep blue, and use these for the end stripes. These make durable rugs and are good enough looking for even the best room. For a bedroom with painted floors, they may be made to match the color scheme of the room. Old gingham in any color worked together with white rags, makes good looking and attractive bathroom rugs.

Rockefeller Chuckled at These Folks

"Best Laugh I've Had in Ten Years," Said Oil King After Hearing Batting-Mahler Duo

The Batting-Mahler Duo are laugh provokers first of all. John D. Rockefeller heard them a few years ago and promptly told Miss Batting she had given him his heartiest laugh in ten years. Chautauqua folks will have ample opportunity to outlaugh John D., for this clever company of entertainers will be heard here. A group of monologues, musical readings, comic sketches, some very fine impersonations, and pleasing musical numbers round out their unusual programs of fun. Chautauqua—fifth day.

FARM POINTERS

(O. A. C. Experiment Station.)

The dry season in western Oregon and the cool spring in eastern Oregon are making the hay crop look rather short. Several farmers in previous short hay years have saved their stock by sowing their silos with various available crops during the summer. Weedy grain, Canada thistles and grain, road side mowings, other waste crops, etc., while often not making the best of usage will carry much stock through a winter. Every silo should be full this fall.

Spray for Codling Moth

Adult codling moths are continuing to appear in limited numbers and eggs are being deposited. In orchards where the apple worm was at all serious last year a protective poison spray should be applied at once. Because of limited numbers of moths appearing if the worms were scarce in the orchards last year, it is possible to keep down infestation sufficiently by delaying the thinning process somewhat and then paying special care to thinning out the wormy fruit.

Farmers sending in grass seed samples for test at this time will be ready for early sowing this fall and will know how much to use.

Walnut Blight Less Severe

Walnut and filbert blight are less severe than last season, due to the late spring and warm dry weather. Both blights are bacterial diseases. No remedy has yet been found for walnut blight. The disease attacks the young filbert trees, affecting the new shoots and suckers. The suckers should be removed as soon as the blight appears. This appears to be a year unfavorable to the development of apple scab.
