

FROM "VALES WHERE FRAGRANT SUMMER GLOWS"

An editorial letter to the American Friend by Walter C. Woodward. Newberg, Oregon, June 24.—After an absence of three years it is refreshing to be again among the gorgeous roses, the aromatic, stately firs, the luscious berries and the blushing cherries; to revel in incomparable landscapes; to leap in spirit with hurrying mountain streams breaking into daring cataracts; to renew old friendships with Mt. Hood, "white despot of the wild Cascades."

"Along the Cascade's rugged walls Thy crystal'd towers grandly rise, And Shasta, to St. Helens calls The glory of thy young empire. Thy mountains loom in purple haze, The deep green forests billow wild, And in the fields glad harvest days The golden sheaves have richly piled."

The system of the rejuvenated Oregonian is quite pent up with youthful enthusiasm and he just had to give vent to a little of it. The thing is contagious out here and he has been freely exposed within the past few days. Yesterday marked the grand climax of the Portland Rose Festival in the great floral parade, in which beautiful floats were entered from cities all the way from Los Angeles to Vancouver, British Columbia. Newberg, twenty-five miles distant, has been all agog for days over the construction of its float. The enterprise is sponsored by the "Berrians," a community boosting organization, and the whole town and countryside have helped and hoped for the prize. A call was broadcasted for one hundred men and women to work all Thursday night on the float. All day Thursday the red and white flowers for decorating poured in for miles around. Tubs, tubs, tubs—sixty from one establishment alone—were requisitioned in which to keep fresh the beautiful posies. But even with the thousands upon thousands of roses and other flowers, by one o'clock Friday morning it was seen by those in charge that they were going to run short. So they rang the telephone bells and workers were routed out of bed to scour the country, groping around in the dark and day for more roses. The finished product which started on its triumphal tour toward Portland Friday morning, was a creation of wondrous charm and beauty—veritably an enchanted, rose-embowered castle on wheels, enthroning the fairy princess. And the wonderful thing of beauty, inspiring the enthusiastic plaudits of the multitudes, returned home victorious to the little Quaker city—winner of the first prize in its division of floats by cities of 50,000 and under. Hence our readers may easily guess how easily the writer has caught some of the loyal enthusiasm with which the atmosphere hereabouts is charged just now. By the way we learn that the design for the Newberg Berrian float was prepared in competition by a little Quakeress, the daughter of A. C. Stanbrough, one of the first two graduates of Pacific College and now superintendent of the Newberg schools.

What a splendid, unifying, wholesome thing is a common, community loyalty and enthusiasm! As we have observed the splendid cooperation, the eagerness, the zest, the common service, and the civic, community pride of the past few days, how we have longed that more of this loyal, triumphant, irresistible spirit might charge us all in our allegiance to those higher loyalties which we hold most sacred!

PORTLAND BUYERS WEEK WILL BE BIG AFFAIR

One of the big features of the tenth annual convention of the Pacific northwest merchants' association to be held in Portland August 6 to 12 will be the most elaborate fashion show ever staged west of Chicago. Gowns, suits, finished furs and other finery on display will have a value of approximately one-half million dollars, and fifty beautiful and shapely living models will participate.

Latest New York and Paris fashions will have their first exclusive showing on the Pacific Coast at this function. In addition, there will be on exhibition the creations of gowns and other wearing apparel of Portland and designers who have received their instruction in schools in New York and Paris.

The elaborate and brilliant spectacle will open with a scene of the dawn as viewed from a wooded dell on Portland Heights, with fairies dancing among the evergreens as the sun rises over snowcapped Mt. Hood. The scene will be the creation of John H. Stark, a decorator of national repute. For the most part, the gowns and other finery will be displayed on living models who will pass in review on the stage. Uncut cloth will also be draped on the models and many other novel features in the same line will be introduced.

In addition to the fashion parade there will be practical demonstrations of methods used in draping and decorating store windows. This feature will be highly instructive to visiting buyers as it will give them pointers on how to decorate their country store windows so that they will have a metropolitan atmosphere.

Many vaudeville numbers will be introduced throughout the evening's entertainment. The best talent from the regular vaudeville theatres and many clever amateurs have been engaged for the event. The executive committee of buyers' week is arranging for a special feature exclusively for the visiting women. It will be an organ recital in one of Portland's large theatres by several of the most talented organists in Portland. The musical program will consist of both classical and popular numbers. In addition to the organ recital, there will be moving pictures exhibited. An entire block of seats for this event will be reserved exclusively for visiting women. A committee of Portland women will have charge of this feature.

Retail merchants from many districts of Portland's trade territory have informed the executive committee by letter that they will be among the visitors in this city during the convention. Prospects are that the attendance will be far greater than that of 1921 when over 1600 were registered.

MICKIE SAYS

WHY

Black Sheep Sometimes Appear Among White Flocks

The appearance of black lambs in a flock made up entirely of white sheep has been for ages and is still a cause for wonder and the basis of superstitions. But the study of the laws of breeding and heredity has explained the reasons for the sporadic appearance of these off-color specimens, according to a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Feeding and management of sheep have nothing to do with the appearance of black lambs. The black color is hereditary even though it may be transmitted by ordinary white sheep. The black color in such a case is what is called a recessive character. White sheep which transmit this character at all transmit black in 50 per cent of their reproductive cells and white in the remaining 50 per cent. Thus, such white sheep mated with blacks—which can only transmit black—produce 50 per cent black lambs and 50 per cent white. All of these white lambs can transmit black. White sheep which transmit only whites, mated with blacks, produce only white lambs, but all of these lambs can transmit black. When both ewe and ram are white, but both transmit black, about 25 per cent of the lambs are black, 50 per cent are white which transmit black, while the remaining 25 per cent are true breeding whites.
