Newberg

Newberg seems to be the scene of numerous minor depredations recently. We are informed that some miscreants entered the garden of old Grandpa Newlin and stole all of his melons, not leaving him one. The person who would be so low down and despicable deserves rough treatment indeed. This poor old man in rather feeble health had spent hours of hard labor getting his garden planted and up to a point where he and his wife could enjoy its fruits, only to have them stolen by some boys who are too lazy to put forth the same effort themselves. One night this week the writer had a bottle of milk stolen from his porch. This is a small thing, but if we see anyone around our place, it is going to be hot for them and while we're at it we'll put in a lick for Grandpa Newlin too.
