Check the Costs

Know How Much You Save by Painting Now to Save Repairs

COMPARE the prices of lumber and paint. They will show you how expensive it is to let buildings rot for lack of the protection of paint.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of valuable buildings are wasting today at a rapid rate, because they have not been painted when they needed it. Paint now. Save repairs.

The utmost economy in painting results from the use of a high quality product at the time it is needed. The best paint spreads easily—it saves labor cost. It covers a larger area per gallon than "cheap" paint. But most important, the best paint serves five or more years longer than "cheap" paint. It's economy, then, to paint when your property needs it—without delay—and to use the best paint. The best paints are scientific in formula and preparation. We've made them for 75 years—to meet the weather conditions in the West.

The best materials—PIONEER WHITE LEAD, pure linseed oil, pure zinc and pure colors—are combined in Fuller's Paints in scientifically exact proportions with long-time skill.

FUNERAL OF LEE LADU WAS HELD ON FRIDAY

Synopsis of Address Given By Rev. Lee Is Printed at the Request of the Local W. C. T. U.

The funeral of Lee LaDu, who died from wounds received while battling with officers who were trying to arrest him, was held from the Presbyterian church last Friday afternoon. Rev. Lee officiated. At the request of our W. C. T. U., the following synopsis of Mr. Lee's address is supplied:

Ruth 1:21—"Jehovah hath testified against me, and the Almighty hath afflicted me."

There is a sense in which all our sorrows are from God, who is ever calling us, and wisely correcting our ways.

The text was spoken by Naomi, a good woman, after the death of her husband and her two sons. She was feeling keenly both her sorrow and her loneliness.

Yet, she also looked to the Almighty for healing and comfort, and a new and better chapter opened in her life.

It is so with many others all down the ages—sorrow, but consolation and new blessing. For the Almighty is ever near, to save and to keep and to bless, when we pour out our hearts before Him and trust in Him.

But on this occasion the voice of God comes to the rest of us too, my friends. Who of us is not responsible to God, if we have ever led the departed one into wrong, or failed to point him to the Savior when we could.

There are surely some in Newberg who shared his wrong doing, who encouraged, supported and upheld him in it, who may even have suggested it to him in some moment of business depression, or wrong ambition.

Who was going to buy the poisonous drink? This is the question that ought to be investigated among us. Whose desire led to all this awful loss today? Surely the blood of the slain man is upon those who tempted and misled him, in the sight of God. And if they think they can escape the judgment of men, do they think they can escape the all-seeing eye of God?

And are there those among us who are lawless in spirit, who deliberately violate the law because they do not like it?

One of the greatest needs in any land today is that the laws be honored and upheld.

How often we ought to repeat those immortal words of Lincoln: "Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well wisher to posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular, the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others. Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in the legislative halls and enforced in the courts of justice. In short let it become the political religion of the nation."

And from many other of our leading Americans too might similar words be culled, from Washington down to the noble words recently spoken by our President Harding.

Strongly has one of our public officers said: "This nation cannot endure with out reverence for law. Nothing will tend more swiftly to undermine public order than repeated demonstrations that laws can be violated with impunity."

I call upon you, therefore, fellow-citizens, on this solemn occasion, no longer to tolerate those who might make light of the laws of our land, who lead others into wrong doing, and whose example teaches the young to despise our country and our flag.

And yet further than this is one great point of truth befitting this occasion, that has been laid down by our great Creator, and Owner and Friend and only Savior, and that is that each of us in the community shares more responsibility than we realize, for not guiding others into positive christian life and faith, where none of these fatal errors of the unsave life are found.

Every man in Newberg is sinful and lost and in peril of being swept away into evil, who is without Christ and prayer, without the divine life and its reasonable requirements and restraints.

I do not mean any religious oddities and fads and follies that disgrace the name of Christ by calling themselves christian. But I mean the sensible acceptance and voluntary acknowledgement of Christ in heart and ways. One thousand persons in Newberg today are without God and prayer and saving faith in Christ and the comfort that comes alone from Him. They may boast and claim everything for themselves but they are deceived, astray and lost; they are out of the way, and exposed to being suddenly swept away every hour.

What then shall we each henceforth do by prayer, example and effort to bring every sinner into christian safety, where sin and untimely death cannot reach them.

WHY GAMBLE WITH DEATH?

A tragedy took place on a farm three miles south of Mawatun, near Freeborn, recently, which is an unusually sad one. Peter Clausen, who has resided there for the past two years is dead. He had been looking longingly for the time when his wife and children would arrive from Denmark. They had crossed the broad Atlantic, were somewhere between New York City and Albert Lea, and Clausen was expecting them to arrive at the farm any day. Clausen was found lying on his bed in a paralyzed condition, by a neighbor. A physician was called, but Clausen soon passed away—not, however, until he had made this remark: "If I ever get over this I will never drink moonshine again." The reception given that little Danish family upon their arrival is certainly one that will bring tears to many eyes. When will people learn to leave moonshine alone?—Kasson (Minn.) Republican.

Pony for a Good Boy

For many years Richard Hisei has wanted a Shetland pony. Richard is now 12 years old and his dream is about to be realized, says the Kansas City Times.

Richard never has believed in fairies and those things, for he is a practical boy, but he could hardly wait for the hour to come as he sat about his home, 761 Cheyenne avenue, Kansas City, Kan. He had been promised by the "best friend he ever had" that he should have a pony.

Richard fell behind in his studies and found his way before Judge John T. Sims in the juvenile court. Judge Sims asked many questions and among other things found out that Richard wanted a pony.

If you make good and have good grades, go to school every day, and the teacher says you are a good boy, I'll get you that pony" Judge Sims promised at that time.

Richard appeared at the office of the juvenile court recently with the required proof.

"Now do I get the pony?" the boy asked.

"Bet you do," said the judge. "I'll get it Monday."

The village worthies were discussing the veracity of one of their neighbors, and the oldest inhabitant ambling up, they appealed for his opinion. "Would I call Bill Perkins a liar?" repeated the old man. "Well, I don't know as I'd go as far as that; but I tell you what, when feeding time comes he can't get his pigs to stir until he gets some one else to call them for him."
