FARM REMINDERS

(Oregon Experiment Station.)

In pruning the orchard, brambles, or ornamentals it is well to watch carefully for small waxy rings of eggs on the twigs. These are the eggs of the tent caterpillar, a defoliating worm that promises to be unusually abundant next season. Remove and destroy twigs containing such egg masses, wherever found.

Tomato mosaic, uncontrolled, may cause the complete loss of the crop, depending on the temperature and season of the year. If this disease appears, immediately remove all diseased plants and fumigate the greenhouse with nicotine, or dust all the plants thoroughly with nicotine dust to get rid of all aphids which may carry the disease from plant to plant.

Storage rots of potatoes may be checked by holding down the temperature by ventilation and by allowing the entrance of cold air and keeping out warm air. Double-walled bins, with false slatted floors and walls to hold the potatoes off the main wall and floor are advisable. Never pile potatoes in storage more than six feet deep if placed in loose piles.

Peaches may be sprayed for peach leaf curl any time between December 1 and February 1. Bordeaux mixture, 4-4-50, properly made at home is much superior to lime-sulfur or the ready-mixed commercial Bordeaux for this purpose. Every twig and bud must be completely covered to insure complete protection from this disease. The first favorable stretch of weather should be utilized for this job.

CHARLES RAY SEES FRENCH FRED GHOSTS

Remarkable photography characterizes "A Midnight Bell," Charles Ray's newest production which will be exhibited at the Baker Theatre Friday and Saturday, December 8 and 9. In the "haunted" church scene, Ray, as Martin Tripp, a traveling salesman, sees some ghostly things, and his overwrought imagination produces other apparitions. Both the actual happenings and the product of his troubled mind are shown on the screen in a clever manner, and are a tribute to the skill of the camera man.

George Rizard, a Frenchman, is chief cameraman for the Charles Ray productions, and has attained a reputation as a wizard in his line. But he has one vice—he wears, while working, a shockingly mutilated straw hat, both winter and summer.

The Hurry Bug

It's the hurry bug that causes most of the automobile traffic accidents. It gets into the brains of drivers, particularly of young drivers, and its mischief is told in the death column next morning. Just as the hook worm deprives men and women of ambition, the hurry bug deprives them temporarily of reason. Cars skid to destruction usually because the person at the wheel is in a hurry. Cars collide at corners, get run down at railroad crossings, go over embankments, telescope themselves against stone walls or try joints with telephone poles because somebody wants to get somewhere before somebody else. If people would drive cars with the same calmness and absence of hurry that used to mark the handling of horse drawn carriages of slower days, the Monday morning news page would look quite different than now.

There is room here for a study in biology. What scientist will be first to identify the hurry bug and offer an antidote? The police judges are doing their best, but the bug continues to flourish.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It Dies Hard

"It's clear," remarked one traveling salesman to another, as they sat at dinner in a farm house in the middle west, "that the man who raised this spring chicken was very tender hearted."

"How in the world do you make that out?" asked the second.

"Because he hesitated so long before striking the fatal blow."—Ex.

Does advertising pay? Ask the man who advertises. The business houses that fail don't advertise until the sheriff makes them.
