Local Events of the Week.

Walter Vandeventer reports the transportation business very active, both passenger and express. The stage is loaded to its limit both ways and extra-teams are running every day.

"Dad" West has taken a partner into his market business, E. M. Miller of Haystack, who has been supplying meat and green groceries for the market all the spring. The firm style hereafter will be West & Co.

It is as good as settled that on the new plat of Bend the street that runs along the stone wall enclosing A. M. Drake's residence will be called Wall street. That is where the present road runs and where the first row of business structures is going up.

C. I. Winnek, the Prineville druggist, was in Bend Monday and Tuesday. He arranged to take over the drug business of Charles S. Edwards & Co., which will hereafter be conducted under the name of The Winnek Company, but Dr. Edwards will continue to be manager. Mr. Winnek has decided to erect a store building on Wall street at the corner of the unnamed intersecting street just west of the store of the Bend Mercantile Company. The new store will be 20x40 feet.

The Winnek Company, druggists, carry a fine line of prescription supplies. Opposite the P. B. D. Co.'s office, Bend, Oregon.

When you are at Shaniko, remember the Pioneer Saloon is the place to get fine liquors. The best is none too good for you, and we dispense the very best.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson I. Hunter, who recently moved over to Bend from Burns, this week got a location on the flat where the Owl's Roost was situated and enclosed a cosy cottage which they will occupy this summer.

A. H. Kennedy, the local Izaak Walton, Sunday pulled in 125 fine trout varying from 7 to 17 inches in length. About 50 little fellows craved to be taken in out of the wet but the fisherman was deaf to their appeals and threw them back into the stream to grow nearer his size.

Wednesday morning work on another business structure on Wall street was begun. "Dad" West started a two-story building 24x48 feet a few doors easterly from the store of the Bend Mercantile Company. The market of West & Co. will occupy the lower floor and the upper floor will be divided into lodging rooms, about a dozen of them, which will be furnished and rented to those who have need of such accommodations.

A. H. Kennedy has disposed of his stock of fishing tackle to the Winnek Company, which will hereafter handle the business.

Ezra Guile and family, of Spokane, have established camp on the ridge just above the Staats hotel and will build a cottage there.

Daniel Heising has commenced the erection of a cottage for his family, on the ridge a short distance back of "Dad" West's place.

R. Bond whiskey is to be had at the Pioneer Saloon, Shaniko, J. J. Wiley, proprietor. A good grateful drink, refreshing, invigorating.

Melting snow in the mountains usually brings the Deschutes to its very highest stage at this season of the year, but the stream is now not more than four inches above the low water mark.

Refreshing rains cleared the atmosphere on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, and incidentally laid the dust in a first-class manner. Such a rain as Wednesday's little shower would be worth $10,000 to the "desert" were it under cultivation.

The Reception Saloon, Shaniko, offers the most tempting inducements to timber locators going into the woods. The very best brands of whiskies, such as Cyrus Noble, Old Pepper, Hunter Baltimore Rye and other standard goods, always to be had here. Call at the Reception.

A camp of Indians from the Warm Springs agency, on their way to the Klamath reservation stopped on the river bank nearly opposite the Staats hotel a few days the past week. They report that no more smallpox cases are at the Warm Springs agency, the disease having been entirely stamped out there.

H. J. Nailor, a former Minneapolis banker but more recently engaged in business in Atlanta, Georgia, has been spending several days in Bend and is now examining the country farther up the Deschutes. He expresses himself as very favorably impressed with what he has seen and he is likely to acquire substantial interests here and take an active part in the development of this section. He is actuated largely by considerations of health and he finds the climate of the Deschutes valley just to his liking.

Most of the land segregated by the Columbia Southern Irrigation Company has been disposed of to people who will occupy it when the water for irrigation shall be provided, which will be the coming fall. It is sold at $10 an acre on contracts that require most of the payments after the contract for reclamation is approved at Washington and the water is actually delivered for use on the land. It is expected that the whole 27,000 acres will be under cultivation next year. That is but seven miles westward from Bend.

The last load of machinery connected with the Steidl & Reed turbine arrived Tuesday night and the work of installing it at the mill began at once. The machinery was not materially injured by the runaway accident at the foot of Grizzly butte. A 6-inch cast iron shaft was broken but that has been spliced at the mill. Neither was a horse killed, as the first reports brought by stage passengers said. The wagon was smashed and Driver Tweet and a horse were somewhat bruised. The new turbine is capable of 150 horse power, which will be ample to run the mill. The plant will be in full operation in a week or so—the first water mill on the Deschutes.

A scheme of street names is under consideration for Bend that shall give a definite identity to every part of the town. This scheme contemplates one set of streets to be named after the old settlers of the locality; another set of streets to be named after well-known trees; in another part of the town the streets would be called after the names of flowers. In all these arrangements the names would be run in alphabetical order—Awbrey, Brock, Cottor; Ash, Beech, Cottonwood; Aster, Buttercup, Crocus. Then another set of streets would bear names of the ordinals. By this arrangement the various parts of the town would be easily fixed in mind and the stranger would soon learn where the various classes of streets are. Something of this sort is likely to be decided upon for naming the Bend streets.

A livery and sale stable will be established in Bend in about a week—possibly two of them.

Dick Vandeventer drove the stage south today, Walter being absent on a trip to Silver Lake.

D. F. Steffa is a visitor to Prineville today, having proceeded thither yesterday for a load of hay.

You can obtain patent medicines and toilet articles at the drug store, opposite the P. B. D. Co.'s office, Bend.

A sharp thunderstorm, the heaviest of the season, visited this region this forenoon and gave the soil a good drenching.

The first load of merchandise for the Bend Mercantile Company will leave Prineville next Monday. Early in July the stock will be complete.

H. J. Palmer has been visiting in Portland this week. Miss M. B. Roberts is editor, foreman, compositor, pressman and office boy during his absence.

Ovid Riley made a trip to Prineville this week, returning to Bend at the unheard-of hour of 2 a. m. on Thursday. He had a big load of household goods, and to add to our suspicions he hasn't been seen since his arrival.

Dr. Taggart, of Prineville, will be in Bend next Tuesday to treat the eyes of Miss Pauline Wiest. Any others who have eye ailments requiring attention may consult him while here at a material saving of time and money.

Ovid W. B. Riley and Frank Glass made final proof on their homestead claims before Commissioner Lawrence this morning. Mr. Riley has lived on his claim more than the necessary five years but Mr. Glass commuted his.

School Director Cottor has told the other members of the school board that there might be a vacancy in that body to fill in the course of a few months, as he contemplates removal to Portland to live some time this summer or the coming fall.

W. H. Hollinshead has leased the Sizemore barn and will manage the same for the next year. He wanted to be in closer touch with progressiveness and prospective irrigation and railroad plans and has changed his postoffice address accordingly from Lava to "Widowville."

Instead of a dance hall over the Bend Mercantile Company's store, the space will be made into a lodge room. The entrance will be by means of a stairway leading up at the rear from the side street. There will be the usual ante rooms and possibly a stage suitable for dramatic performances.

Wednesday's rain storm, which was rather light at Bend, was a torrent at some places on the desert between Bend and Prineville. W. H. Staats, who was returning from the county seat with a load of freight, says the road was converted into little ponds for hundreds of feet at a stretch. It was quite unusual for that section.

Early next week the merchandise stock of the Pilot Butte Development Company will be moved to the new store of the Bend Mercantile Company on Wall street, which will then be sufficiently enclosed to begin to accommodate the trade. Max Wurzeiler will come out from Prineville to assist Mr. Grant in conducting the new store.

A number of men who were hunting for timber claims west of the Cascades, in both Oregon and Washington, have reached Bend in the past week and report all the desirable land on the coast taken. Though the trees are not so large on this side of the range, the ease with which lumbering operations can be conducted here appeals to them.

The long freight team of J. C. Conn, of Silver Lake, stopped in Bend Thursday night on the way in with a load of merchandise. Three heavy freight wagons were drawn by five teams—eight mules and two horses. On either side of each wagon a big barrel of water was carried, six in all, as a reserve against a dry camp in the desert. Another team followed with a load of provender for the freight team. Freighting is expensive business this season, but the scarcity of horse feed cannot last much longer. The new crop will soon begin to cut a figure.
