Postmaster Grant this week installed 36 more lock boxes at the postoffice, making 64 in all. And the new ones are nearly taken already. The growth of postal business at Bend is fully keeping pace with other developments here.

Now Check O'Kane is dead. The little fellow was much bragged upon by his master and was soon to have his varied accomplishments exhibited to show his superiority over his brothers, but he woke up dead last Monday morning. No cause is known.

The work of blasting holes for new peeled pine telephone poles for the local exchange is in progress this week. A heavy blast at the Mutzig corner yesterday wrecked the new sidewalk and heaved rocks about in reckless fashion but didn't even crack a window.

Uncle John Sisemore has concluded to board at the Farewell Bend hotel, which was recently his, until spring when he will go over to Jackson county and straighten up his affairs there. Then he is likely to return to the Deschutes country, though he has made no definite plans looking so far ahead.

Over in the new district two schools were started this week—one at Laidlaw, taught by Miss Grace Cook, and one at the Hightower & Smith sawmill, taught by Miss Belle Cook. There are several children at each place and they are too far apart to combine. Private buildings are used and the teachers are paid from private subscriptions.

Bull Creek Flat now comes up for recognition as a producer. J. H. Edwards, who caters to the Bend market most of the summer, brings in a red wethersfield onion that weighs a pound and a yellow davens onion nearly twice as big. These are not marvelous for this country but they are offered to refute the notion that "they can't raise nothin' out there."

Dr. H. J. Whitney, John Byers and W. H. Granger, of Davenport, Wash., were in Bend last week looking for investments in irrigated lands. They found the reclaimed land of the Deschutes could be disposed of only in 160-acre tracts and that the requirement of $1 a year for water service, whether water is used or not, would compel owners to make use of their land and not hold it for speculation. "It's a fine thing for the country" they admitted "but there is nothing in that to induce us to buy and idly hold for a rise."

Bert Miller has moved into his new residence on his place one mile south of town.

The first effort to dispose of sewage scientifically in Bend is represented by the septic tank this week installed for the joint use of the Guerin and Lawrence dwellings and the Goodwillie bungalow. This is said to be a cheap and effective manner of disposing of sewage and if it comes up to the claims of the medical sharps who advocate it the sewerage problem for Bend is already solved.
