Sarsaparilla is unquestionably the greatest blood and liver medicine known. It positively and permanently cures every humor, from Pimples to Scrofula. It is the Best Blood Medicine.

List at the Last Place.
The absent-minded man and his umbrella continue to promote the gaiety of nations. They figure entertainingly in an article in a German magazine on Prof. Max von Pettenkofer, who has been called the founder of scientific hygiene.

Once, however, he made a trip as far as England, and was very proud of having actually succeeded in bringing back his umbrella to Germany. At Augsburg he stopped on business, but sent a telegram saying:

"At 6 o'clock I return with my umbrella."
He did return at 6 o'clock, but as he entered his house at Munich he saw to his dismay that he had no umbrella. He had left it at the telegraph office.

Shopping Traits.
A London paper quotes a shopgirl as saying that the Englishwoman can generally be persuaded to take this or that, whether she wants it or not, and that she does not often see that she gets value for her money. The English are also courteous and considerate. It appears that Americans, on the other hand, give the greatest trouble of all. They are afraid of being cheated, they want to make sure before they buy that they could not get the same thing for less money elsewhere, and they are never courteous. As shoppers it is Frenchwomen, however, who command the greatest admiration, we are told. They always know exactly what they want and will take nothing else.

Millions in Oats.
Salzer's New National Oats yielded in Michigan 240 bu. in Mo., 235 bu. in N. D., 21 bu., and in 30 other states from 150 to 300 bu. per acre. Now this Oat is generally grown in 1905, will add millions of bushels to the yield and millions of dollars to the farmer's purse!

Homebush Yellow Dent Corn grows like a weed and yields from 157 to 200 bushels and more per acre! It's the biggest yielder on earth!
Salzer's Spitz, Heartless Harley, Marconi Wheat, Pea Oat, Billion Dollar, Grass and Earliest Cane are money makers for you, Mr. Farmer.

Just send this notice and 10c in stamps to John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., and receive their big catalog and lots of farm seed samples. [P. C. L.]

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1905.
Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my shins. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated, nor have the sores ever broken out again. Some 12 years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so signally benefited by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier.

Care Schmolck Brewing Co.
Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread. S. S. S. reaches these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, builds up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore write us and our physicians will advise you without charge. Look on diseases of the Blood free.

Humorous

She—Are you sure you love me for myself alone? He—Did you think I loved you for your mother?—Somerville Journal.

"Mr. and Mrs. Nubride have joined the church." "Why not? Turn about's fair play; didn't the church join them?"—Philadelphia Press.

Lady—Did you ever feel as though you'd like to work? Tramp—Yes'm. I wouldn't mind being lineman for a wireless telegraph company.—Judge.

"Brainleigh tells me he is writing a popular novel." "Yes, his doctors insisted on his resting his mind for a while!"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He Got It: The Woman—No, I can't give you a meal. The Tramp—I didn't think you could, mame; you look too young and inexperienced to know how to cook.—New York Sun.

Church—I see the Attorney General is going to stop all this guessing business in the newspapers. Gotham—Whom do you suppose that's aimed at? The weather bureau?—Yonkers Statesman.

Lucky Stars: "I've had a very successful season," said the prosperous-looking theatrical manager. "Well, you can thank your stars for that," replied the seedy-looking manager.—Yonkers Statesman.

He—Do you remember your old school friend, Sophy Smythe? She—Yes, indeed, I do. A most absurd-looking thing. So silly, too! What became of her? He—Oh, nothing. Only—I married her.—Boston Globe.

Mamma—Fighting again, Willie? Didn't I tell you to stop and count one hundred whenever you were angry? Willie—But it didn't do any good, ma. Look what the Jones boy did while I counted!—Harper's Bazar.

Cholly—So Miss Tartum loosened up and said a good word about me, did she? Archie—Yes; she said that when one got better acquainted with you one found you were not half as big a fool as you appeared to be.—Chicago Tribune.

One Advantage: Rimer—Do you really prefer to have long poems sent in to you rather than short ones? Editor—Yes. When they're long, you see, I don't have to think up any other excuse for rejecting them.—Philadelphia Press.

"I don't believe the woman who recently moved into the flat across the hall is any better than she should be," remarked Mrs. Naggsby. "Of course not, my dear," rejoined Naggsby, "who ever heard of a woman that was?"—St. Louis Star.

Miss Piane—Yes, Tom proposed last night, and I accepted him. See this ring— Miss Wise—Indeed? By the way, dear, don't attempt to cut glass with that diamond, as I did, or you'll make another nick in the stone.—Philadelphia Press.

The Child—Aunt Mary, nurse says when it thunders, it's the Lord scolding us. Aunt Mary—Perhaps it is, dear. The Child—Well, I don't see what he's got to be so mad about. I've done everything to-day 'cept brush my teeth.—Brooklyn Life.

Wife—Henry, what makes you in such a furious temper? Husband—I'm trying to read a Scotch dialect story. The plot is fearfully exciting, but I can't burdle over the language fast enough to keep up with the hero.—Detroit Free Press.

Rural Adorer (bashfully)—You didn't go to Millie Meadow's party. Don't you like kissin' games? Pretty Maid—No, I don't. Rural Adorer (weakly)—Why don't you? Pretty Maid (encouragingly)—'Cause there's so many lookin' on.—New York Weekly.

He (reading about the latest society wedding)—They have a lot to say about what the bride wears, but they have nothing to say about the poor bridegroom. She—They have no need to, because it is a well-known fact that he usually wears a worried look.—Boston Globe.

Madame (in a busy street in Paris)—Oh, M. Pagent, is it true that it is dangerous to stand with the foot on the electric trolley? M. Pagent—No, madame, it is not dangerous so long as you do not stand with one foot on the line and the other on the overhead wire.—Plick Me Up.

Miss Flytry—Jack Hanson was telling me about a romantic adventure he had at the party last night. It seems he bumped into a girl in a dark hallway and kissed her; and he doesn't know yet— Miss Elders—Oh! tee-hee! That was I. Miss Flytry—What? Oh, for goodness sake, don't tell him now. Let him have his romance.—Philadelphia Press.

Miss Hoamley—Didn't you hear Miss Knox tell me yesterday that I was "the homeliest girl in our set"? Miss Goodley—Yes, the hateful thing! I gave her a piece of my mind about it afterward. Miss Hoamley—Oh! did you? I hope you weren't too hard on her. Miss Goodley—Well, I told her she ought to consider how sensitive you must be about it.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Perfectly Congenial: Naggsby—When a man and his wife think the same thoughts simultaneously, it is a sign that they are exceedingly congenial. Waggaby—So? Well, then, my wife and I are congenial all right, for the other night, when she said that she wondered why I'd ever been such a fool as to marry her, I had been sitting there in silence for half an hour wondering over the same identical thing.—Baltimore American.

MAN'S NASAL ORGAN.

Some Curious Facts and Instances About Sense of Taste and Smell.

Scientists and travelers tell us that one of the first changes that occur in a man who lives an absolutely natural life for a few months is an extraordinary intensification of the sense of smell.

Describing his meeting with Mr. Jackson in the wilds of Franz Josef Land, Dr. Nansen tells how he first discovered his nearness to the English explorer by the scent of a fragment of soap which the latter had used that morning. His companion, Johansen, noticed the scent also. "As I approached Jackson's hut," says the great Swedish explorer, "I thought I could smell everything it contained and give a sort of inventory of its stores without entering."

But even then the doctor's sense of smell could not be compared with that of the real savage. The Peruvian Indians, walking at night in the darkness of the thick forests which line the lower spurs of the Andes, can distinguish, respectively, by the smell alone, between a white man, a negro or one of their own race.

Few people realize how very closely connected are the senses of taste and smell. Many of the substances which we say taste good are not tasted at all, but gratify us by their appeal to the sense of smell. All meats, and fruits, for instance, are smelt rather than tasted. This is easily proved by the fact that a bad cold almost destroys our appreciation of any of these classes of foods or drinks. On the other hand, however bad a cold one may be afflicted with, one does not lose one's taste for sugar, salt or quinine. These substances have no smell, but appeal directly to the sense of taste.

If one of them be placed on the tongue the sensation of sweetness, saltiness or bitterness is at once experienced. It is, however, worth noting that all these substances must be dissolved in water, or by the moisture of the mouth, before they give any sensation of taste.

If you put a grain or two of sugar into your mouth and allow it to dissolve slowly its taste is only faintly perceptible. If, on the contrary, you rub the dissolving sugar into the palate by moving the tongue the taste is greatly intensified. Sugar appeals to the mucous membrane of a large portion of the mouth, as also does salt. This is why one smacks one's lips in endeavoring to fully appreciate a novel taste.

Just as different parts of our brain are the seats of various mental powers, so various portions of the mouth receive different kinds of tastes. Sugar, and kindred substances, and also purely acid foods or drinks appeal to the tip of the tongue and the front part of the mouth.

Smell is a far more delicate sense than taste. As already mentioned, most substances must be moistened before appealing to taste. But in order to smell a substance it must be in the form of vapor. If eau de cologne be poured into the nose it gives rise to no sense of odor whatsoever. Yet we all know how powerful is the sensation of smell produced when the little particles constantly disengaging themselves from its surface are borne by the air to the olfactory nerves. The nose is fitted to perceive sensations from particles of almost inconceivable smallness.

A single grain of musk will scent a room for years, and as this result can only be produced by continual loss of particles of its substance these particles must be tiny beyond the reach of imagination.

The smelling region of the nose lies in its upper part. The nose has three regions, and it is in the third that the seat of the sense is concentrated. The mucous membrane of the nose at this point is much thicker than below and is not red, but colored with a brown pigment.

Men are possessed of more acute powers of smell than women. Experiments to prove this were made by Profs. Nicholls and Browne. Three of the men could detect prussic acid in a solution composed of 2,000,000 parts of water and one of acid, but not one of the women could detect the scent of the prussic acid when the solution was weaker than the one part in 20,000 of water.

Got Beyond That.
One of the principal stockholders in a promising gold-mine was expatiating on its merits to a capitalist and prospective investor. He described the vein in which the miners were working, showed him specimens of the ore, and backed up his statements with the written opinions of experts.

"Well," admitted the capitalist, "it looks as if it might be a good investment. As my old Uncle Hiram would say, it has 'pints.'"
"Pints?" exclaimed the stockholder, carried away perhaps by his over-anxiety. "Why, sir, we're in quartz right now!"

One View of Wed-ock.
An Englishwoman had had a good deal of trouble with her husband, who, according to her account, was a monster of iniquity. Some one asked why she had married a person of such character. "Well, you see, he ain't my first," was the reply. "I was pertickler about my first. This here's my second, and a bad un at that. But there"—with a shrug of the shoulders—"he's a shade better than the work'un!"
Absolutely Prohibitive.
Wyzaker—My dear young friend, you should never speak until after you have thought twice.
Thoughtless Theodore—What! Would you deprive me forever from the privilege of speech?—Baltimore American.

COL. BECKWITH SAYS:

"I Take Pleasure in Commending Pe-ru-na For Coughs and Colds."

COL. PAUL E. BECKWITH.

Colonel Paul E. Beckwith, Lt. Col., retired, 1st Reg. Minute Men, in a letter from 1508 Vermont Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:
"From the unqualified endorsement of many of my friends, I take pleasure in commending your remedies for coughs and colds."—Paul E. Beckwith.

IN FIELD OR BARRACKS PE-RU-NA IS EFFICACIOUS.

The constant exposure to the elements experienced in an out-door life is not so apt to cause coughs and colds as sedentary habits.

Those who are brought face to face with the weather every day in active life are much less liable to catarrhal diseases than those who are housed up in ill ventilated rooms. And yet both of these classes are more or less subject to catarrh and catarrhal diseases.

The soldier as well as the civilian finds it frequently necessary to use Peru-na on account of coughs and colds. No one is exempt. The strong and healthy are less liable than the weak and ill, but none entirely escape.

Peruna has always been a great favorite with the military men, both in the army and navy.

The strongest kind of testimonials are received from officers of high rank concerning the virtues of Peru-na for all catarrhal ailments.

Only a small per cent. of these can be used for publication for want of space. Mr. Harrison L. Deam, Burnside Post No. 8, Department of the Potomac, Colonel Encampment No. 69, Union Veterans Legion, Colonel Green Clay Smith Regiment No. 17, U. V. U., Department of the Potomac, Military Order of the Sons of the American Revolution, Major 8th Indiana Veteran Volunteer Infantry, writes:

"There is no longer any question as to the curative qualities of Peru-na in all catarrhal troubles. Its successful use by many of my friends entitles it to confidence and endorsement." C
