Early Radishes

Bugrie Lucier brought to town this week some fine radishes grown on his place near the Swalley bridge—on the Mutzig ranch, which Lucier has leased. The seed for the radishes was rather carelessly sown on New Year's day and an old window was laid over it. Snow came and buried it and there seemed small promise of a radish crop, but in due time the plants appeared and now there are radishes to delight both the eye and palate. They grew half in the open air.

Radishes grown wholly in the open air by Mr. Lucier will be ready for market in about three weeks. They might have been ready earlier had Mr. Lucier begun cultivation sooner, but he was engaged elsewhere until a few weeks ago. He is greatly pleased with his gardening prospects.
