FRIDAY JUNE 2, 1905

That was a timely warning which Dr. Coe sounded in last week's Bulletin. In the water barrels, not the river, lies danger of disease so far as there is any such danger in the water. This can easily be corrected by a little attention.

Doubtless The Oregonian means well, but if it would distinguish between A. B. Hammond and A. E. Hammond and not take so seriously the second-hand dreams of Archie Mason, it would spare itself impossible stories. Let the country develop, by all means; but fantastic fiction won't do it.

When C. A. Chapman was in Portland last week he told the Journal a lot about the Bend country that will be interesting reading where the croakers have been circulating. Mr. Chapman knows what he is talking about and tells what he knows in a convincing way. He does his share to keep his town right in the eyes of the world.

It is noted that the actual outlay of the government officials for prior rights, in the Klamath irrigation project, including the Jesse D. Carr tract, is $485,000, and that the charge made to settlers will be but slightly under $19 an acre. And the irrigation works are yet to be constructed. Do we want government irrigation in the Deschutes valley? Not if the valley knows itself, and it thinks it does.

The Salem Statesman is quite distressed because the government thinks the present time inopportune for putting partisans of Senator Mitchell in office in Oregon. And this in face of the grand jury work and the senator's own confession. The Statesman's loyalty to a bad cause brings to mind that couplet of the good poet, John Gay,—
(Little villains oft submit to fate
That great ones may enjoy the world in state.

A $10,000 water works plant well along toward completion, an electric light plant on the way, city fire-fighting apparatus costing $1,500 bought, new $3,500 schoolhouse authorized, new restaurant just started, hotel under construction bigger than any now here, Deschutes Irrigation & Power Co. making permanent improvements on its Bend property, the Pilot Butte company preparing to erect several dwellings—put your finger if you can, on any place in Central Oregon where more improvements are in progress now than in Bend. Agricultural development is slow but it is steady. Fifty new homesteads have been taken near Bend in the past month. Town building at Bend, however, rests more upon the timber than upon agricultural resources, but both bring strength and the town is going right ahead.

Now Russia's war fleet is swept from Oriental waters by the doughty Japanese, and a score of her great vessels, which cost Russia $100,000,000 to put into the China Sea, are at the bottom of the ocean or in the hands of the Japanese. The Russian admiral vice admiral and 3,000 other slays are prisoners of war. The Japanese appear to have been little injured. In the relation of losses, this battle in the Korean strait was much like those of the Spanish-American war—all one-sided. But in the importance of the issues involved probably the sea fight in history exceeds it. The nearest parallel is that of Trafalgar, in 1805, where Nelson lost his own life in breaking the naval power of both France and Spain, put a quietus upon the move for French invasion of England and kept the Napoleonic battle grounds on the continent. Here little Japan fought for her life and won gloriously. By this fresh victory Japan is placed in an unquestioned position among the great powers of the world. And Russia faces the bitter end.
