Scott, of the Lakeview district, was here to examine that proof and also to represent the government in a hearing that had been asked for upon the suspended desert land proof of D. A. Findley. The special agent had reported that the land was not of desert character and that there had not been due compliance with law in its reclamation. Findley contends to the contrary on both points. Six thousand words of testimony were taken and the case thus submitted, with an exhibit of a specimen of soil.
