DESCHUTES IS BEST

Our Crops Beat the "Garden of Oregon."

FINER QUALITY, BIGGER YIELD

Old Settlers Now Convinced That Attention to Farming Will Bring Great Results.

Many old settlers on the Deschutes have come back from the Willamette valley more than ever pleased with this region. At no place of the far-famed "garden of Oregon" did they find crops better than here this year. Of course they found more land in cultivation, for that is an old settled country while this is the first year of agriculture on the Deschutes "desert," but for quality, and quantity per given area, the Deschutes is away ahead. W. P. Vandeventer made a special point of comparing the results of cultivating the soil. B. F. Nichols also was careful to note what was done west of the mountains and along the Columbia river. C. B. Allen, M. C. Awbrey and W. H. Staats confirm the reports. The Deschutes country, in general products, has this very year given better results than the "garden" parts of the state, for equal attention.

H. C. Ellis comes to the front this week with Burbank potatoes measuring 1 9/16 inches in greatest circumference and 1 5/8 inches around the short way. They were grown on new ground, but with no cultivation at all from planting to harvest. The crop was irrigated four times in the season. The yield is at the rate of 300 bushels per acre. Mr. Ellis has a lot of field turnips that were sown too thick. He is using them for horse feed, but they are also excellent for table use, a sack of them added to The Bulletin exhibit this week being large, firm and as tender as could be desired.

Mr. Ellis raised onions, beets, cabbages, parsnips, carrots, mangels, peas, navy beans and popcorn, and all but the beans and popcorn were successful beyond expectation. The entire truck patch was planted after July 1, which made the growth so late that the frost cut the beans and popcorn. Mr. Ellis ran all his own levels for irrigation ditches, by means of triangle and plumbline, and he has everything in fine shape for next season's cultivation.

Millard Triplett, whose garden in Bend attracted a good deal of attention early in the season, now brings an interesting exhibit of potatoes, carrots and mangel-wurzels. He has had no failures.

BEFORE THE LAND BOARD.

Deschutes Settlers and the Company Present Their Case.

At a meeting of the state land board held last Tuesday the Deschutes Settlers' Association, recently organized in Bend, got a hearing through its chairman, E. D. Hendrickson; its attorney, Chester Murphy, of Salem; and A. M. Drake, General Manager J. O. Johnston was present on the part of the D. I. & P. Co.

It was charged against the company that it had imposed conditions upon the settlers, in the contracts it had required them to sign, that are not warranted by law, and that it had not submitted rules for the use of water on the segregated land. There was also the allegation that the company had used notes given "for convenience only" in an improper manner in financing the company. Mr. Johnston defended both as entirely legal and legitimate. The board is reported to have taken "a decided stand that the company had no right to collect interest prior to the date of reclamation." As to the practice of the company in contracting lands on partial payments, Mr. Johnston

Bend, Oregon, Oct. 12, 1905.
J. M. LAWRENCE,

ON THE WAY TO BEND

Railroad Surveyors Coming in from North.

EQUIPPED FOR WINTER WORK

Now About 12 Miles This Side of Madras--Appear to be Following old C. S. Survey.

Engineer Graham and party of 13 surveyors last week established camp at Madras and began examination of a railroad route south of that point. This work had progressed so far that the camp was moved Wednesday to a point a dozen miles this side of Madras, on the road to Forest.

Pilot Butte Mill Running Again--Orders from Ditch Company.

The Pilot Butte sawmill started up last week to fill lumber orders which have been coming in rather lively lately. The D. I. & P. Co. has ordered a lot of lumber there, a new schoolhouse at Powell Buttes and several buildings at Redmond are to be built from Pilot Butte lumber, and the purely local demand is picking up. The operation of the mill was first interrupted by the breaking of the fire arch and this week there is trouble with the pump, which will be repaired in time for a steady run next week.

The new schoolhouse will require something like 100,000 feet of lumber. W. H. Staats is arranging for the construction of a five-room cottage to be located near William Baldwin's. C. H. Erickson, who has bought the Nick Smith place, on the Cottor tract, will build a barn immediately and later a dwelling.

A new hose house for the city has just been completed by Nick Smith for $150, on the lot next north of the Sheldon blacksmith shop. Oliver Thorbjornson has finished a neat cottage 14x20 feet on his lot. A number of home-steaders and "ditch" land occupants are putting up buildings that take considerable lumber.

Bend Social Club.

The Bend Social Club was organized last night at the Hotel Bend with 12 charter members. Its object is to be the promotion of dancing, drama and social times in general. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. Frank Stroud; vice-president, C. D. Brown; secretary-treasurer, Earl J. Wright; social manager, T. W. Zimmermann; stage director, F. Milo Lobell; stage manager Harry Esping; musical director, C. A. Riddle. The president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer constitute a board of directors. A committee composed of T. W. Zimmermann, C. D. Brown and Earl J. Wright was appointed to draft constitution and by-laws and report at a meeting called for next Monday night at Hotel Bend, when further organization proceedings will be had.

Tumalo Items.

George W. Wimer and sons have just finished putting in 55 acres of fall grain. They believe in seeding land in the fall. They have some fine alfalfa that was planted last June.

T. A. Jensen has just finished plowing 40 acres of ground, which he will seed to grain and alfalfa next spring.

A. J. Wimer is doing well in his store at Tumalo.

Mr. Root has returned from The Dalles. He brought back a load of fruit for which he found ready sale here. He reports fruit scarce and high at The Dalles.

J. W. Baker intends to clear and otherwise improve his homestead near Tumalo this coming winter. He has a fine tract of land and will make a good home of it.

J. M. Lawrence and family were out visiting Tumalo last Sunday. They were favorably impressed with the Tumalo country.

The Hightower & Smith sawmill is sawing much fine lumber, and they find a market for all they can cut.

C. M. Mudd, superintendent of the Columbia Southern canal, was in Tumalo Monday. He reports everything lovely out in the Ladlaw country.

Wimer & White are expecting their hay bales to arrive from Georgia any day. They have a large quantity of hay to bale for themselves and others when it arrives.

J. E. Wimer is expecting to move down from Newsum creek soon. He will improve 320 acres of land he owns near Tumalo.

J. D. Gibson and family have returned home from Idaho and Eastern Oregon. Mr. Gibson is agent for a powerful and cheap blasting powder. He says he can blast out juniper stumps for three cents each with this new explosive.

Born, at Hobbs station, Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1905, to Mr. and Mrs. John McLeod, a daughter.

ON THE WAY TO BEND

Railroad Surveyors Coming in from North.

EQUIPPED FOR WINTER WORK

Now About 12 Miles This Side of Madras--Appear to be Following old C. S. Survey.

Engineer Graham and party of 13 surveyors last week established camp at Madras and began examination of a railroad route south of that point. This work had progressed so far that the camp was moved Wednesday to a point a dozen miles this side of Madras, on the road to Forest.

The outfit is substantially equipped for a long period in the field. One item is 11 fine, heavy horses that cost $2,200. All the camp arrangements indicate serious work and the men are satisfied they are engaged to spend the winter in Central Oregon. Operating under the guise of the Oregon Eastern, this party paid its way over the Columbia Southern, but that is supposed to be merely to keep the bookkeeping straight and not that this party is anti-Harriman.

So far the route traveled appears to be the same as that of which the Columbia Southern located a line five years ago. This crosses the river at Forest and comes directly through to Bend. Whether there will be any material change in the route is not known at this time.

Though there is no definite authority quoted for it, the statement that this party will not stop even at Bend, but will continue on to California, locating a "through" line on the east side of the Cascades, has gained considerable credence. This is supported by the substantial character of the surveying equipment.

This party is expected to reach Bend in about two weeks.

Died from Injuries.

Fred Sly, aged 13 years, died at Rosland last Friday morning from internal injuries received in a runaway accident the day before. He was hauling shakes from the woods and accidentally lost hold of the lines. In an effort to get hold of them again he climbed down on the wagon tongue, when the horses took fright and ran, finally crushing him against a tree. The seriousness of the boy's hurt was not realized, as he seemed to be only badly shaken up. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Sly.

The funeral was held Sunday, interment being made in the Rosland cemetery.

Schoolhouse Bids.

Because of the inability to get returns from Portland, where some of the materials must be obtained for the new schoolhouse, the board has agreed to extend the time for submitting bids one week or until October 30. The board also voted to require the successful bidder to enter into a bond in a sum equal to half the contract price, that he will carry out the contract to completion.

Taken Up.

Came into my enclosure about October 8, 1905, a bay mare weighing about 1000 to 1100 pounds, left hind foot white, branded with 3 on left shoulder (brand obscure). Owner may have the animal by proving property and paying expenses. GLENN HENDRICKSON.
