Most persistent rumors have been circulating through Bend the last two or three days that F. C. Rowlee had resigned as local superintendent of the D. I. & P. Co. and that J. C. Lewis had succeeded him to that position. Also that J. O. Johnston had resigned as general manager of the company and F. S. Stanley had been elected his successor. The large juniper tree north of The Bulletin office has been the scene of great activity on the part of the red-breasted robin the last few days. The tree has been filled from morning till night with these clear toned songsters, feeding on the juniper berries. To say there were 150 birds there at one time would not be exaggerating the truth. The robins on one side and the black-birds on the other, with their constant calling all day long, makes one feel as though spring had come in earnest.

Discovery has been made of outcroppings of coal in the Trout creek region by Wade Houston, and further drillings and investigation shows indications of a valuable coal deposit. Filings have been made on 960 acres in the Trout creek region. Samples of the coal which have been tested burned to a fine ash and give every indication of being a first-class article.

Last Friday complaint was brought against Hugh O'Kane for not complying with the provisions of certain city ordinances. It is understood that O'Kane will fight the charge on the grounds that the city was not legally incorporated and therefore the ordinances are null and void. The case will be heard before Justice Ellis next Monday.

Dollars are what most men are after. We want them that we may purchase those things in life which ye most desire.

There are many ways to obtain dollars—

One good way is to advertise the goods you have for sale—

Let the people know you are in business—

Show them you are alive—

Advertise in The Bulletin.

A ranch for sale, stock, wagons, household goods, or anything you wish to dispose of should be advertised in The Bulletin.

Why?

Because it will sell your goods and bring a better price.

Do it now.
