Stray Cow's Act. A stray cow, picked up by the police on the South Side, nearly put the officer out of business and created lots of fun for the urchins in the neighborhood. The cow was captured by the newly appointed subpoliceman, and, wishing to distinguish himself by an arrest, he determined to take the bovine to the station house. Procuring a rope, he fastened it to her horns and started down Cottage Grove avenue. The thoroughfare was slippery from a rainstorm, and in a iffy the policeman was sliding down the asphalt on his stomach, with the cow on a dead run. The officer was game and hung on to his captive for a square, when the boys headed the animal off. He landed his prisoner and then begged off for the night to clean

The introduction of the whipping Columbia has been put up to Congress by Robert Adams, Jr., a representative from Philadelphia, who fathered a simila measure in the Pennsylvania Legislature twenty-two years ago. He is encouraged to revive it for application in Washington by the recommen dation for corporal punishment of wife beaters in the President's last message.

The bill provides that any male person who shall be convicted of beating, bruising or mutilating his wife shall be whipped upon the back, the lashes not to exceed 30. The marshal of the District of Columbia shall wield the lash within the prison inclosure in the presence of a physician and the keeper of the prison.

Adams says the value of the bill is based upon the historical demonstration that the treatment of women by a nation is one of the best tests of its progress in civilization.

Whipping a brutal husband, he claims, does away with the objection to imprisonment-destitution of the wife and family left without support. ile says that in Pennsylvania in 1904 there were 525 complaints of wife beating releived by officials. Hundreds more are never reported. In nearly every case the man was under the influence of liquor.

Confinement in jail, authorities say, has no terror for brutal husbands.

It has been urged that wives should not inform on their husbands and exwhipped. They would at least have the chance, says Adams, while at present they dare not complain because the long term. Hesides, it will be cheaper for society to punish a brute in this

It is denied that corporal punishment is in violation of the constitution of the United States. The sponsor for the bill also points out that the English law recognizing whipping as a legal form of punishment, and cites a statute passed by parliament in 1863 to add flogging to the punishment for garroting. This form of highway robbery that held London in terror for several years disappeared after one or two onvictions.

In 1883 the legislature of Maryland passed a bill to punish wife beaters by whipping them. Adams says the district attorney of Baltimore Infocus plain to me how it is that I saw you him that after the first conviction the crime ceased as if by magic in the State. The wife beating statute in Delaware is reported as having a vecy saletary effect.

Butterfly Farms.

Most people, when they look at a magnificent cabinet of butterflies, gleaming and glowing with a hundred tridescent bues, think that each butterfly was caught by hand-caught, after a chase of a mile or two, under a net or a hat. As a matter of fact, butterflies are raised on little farms, like chickens. There is such a steady butterfly demand that it pays men to ruise them. These men, experts in the employ of museums, as a rule, know larvae as a chicken farmer knows eggs, and they have no difficulty in selling at a good profit all the butterfiles they grow. The stockroom of a butterfly farmer is a rare and beautiful sight. It is a room of glass, filled with sunshine, and in the brilliant light hundreds of the lovellest butterflies flutter and float. In the profound bright are they, so splendid.
