The Hay Creek Coal Mines.

That Crook County may have an abundance of coal in the near future, seems very evident, judging from the reports coming from the vicinity of Hay Creek, north of Grizzly Butte, where development work on the different properties where coal has been discovered, is being pushed. The Crook County Journal has the following report:

Development work at the Hay Creek coal mines, a property which was opened up a few weeks ago has disclosed several good veins of bituminous coal, all of which will be worked as rapidly as possible. For the past two weeks the men at work on the property have drifted in on the larger vein, which has a width of five feet, and the tunnel is now between 30 and 40 feet in length. The tunnel is being sunk into the side of the ridge and as yet no considerable depth below the surface has been attained. In consequence the coal is still capped with clay and the cap rock, but this, it is stated, will disappear as the tunnel is sunk farther into the ridge and away from the surface.

The coal is being used in the camp for cooking purposes and for use in the blacksmith forges and is giving excellent satisfaction.

Schools Close April 20.

County School Superintendent Dinwiddie has received notice from State Superintendent Ackerman, that Attorney General Crawford, looks upon the primary election day, April 20, as a legal holiday, and has rendered an opinion to that effect. According to the school law it is illegal for a teacher to hold school on a legal holiday, and Superintendent Dinwiddie will notify all teachers in the county that the schools be closed on the day of the primary election.—Crook Co. Journal.

Commissioner Ellis Ready for Business

H. C. Ellis, the newly appointed United States commissioner at Bend expects to be ready to attend to all duties pertaining to his office by the end of this week. The law requires that a certified copy of the order of United States District Judge Wolverton, naming Mr. Ellis commissioner, be filed at The Dalles land office, also that the commissioner provide himself with a seal. Thus, it requires some time to comply with formalities, but the new commissioner expects to be ready for business at the time indicated.

INDESCHUTES VALLEY

GREAT AID TO DEVELOPMENT

People of Entire Section Much Interested in this Project—Irrigation Discussed.

At the Farmers Institute held at Laidlaw last winter, a committee consisting of A. M. Drake of Bend and C. W. Allen of Laidlaw was appointed to procure the establishment of an experiment station by the state, in the Deschutes valley irrigated region.

The matter has been called to the attention of Governor Chamberlain, and he has expressed himself warmly in favor of the project. As is well known the governor has taken a lively interest in irrigation development in Eastern Oregon and he especially realizes the importance of an experiment station under competent supervision where the settler may receive practical instruction in the art of irrigating.

The experience of the first settlers of an irrigated region is always a trying one; the majority come from regions where irrigation is not practiced and those who are familiar with this form of agriculture have to learn anew the peculiarities of soil and climate. Discouraging as conditions are today for the beginner in irrigated farming they do not compare with the heartbreaking experiences which confronted the Mormons of Salt Lake valley in 1847 or the Union colonists at Greeley, Colorado, 20 years later. There is no finer example of Anglo-Saxon pluck recorded than the story of these people who conquered the sage bush desert in the face of such disheartening conditions.

The federal and state governments have grown to realize the importance of the irrigation interests to all people of the country and each year spend many thousands of dollars collecting data upon all phases of irrigated agriculture for distribution to those who apply.

Another element of difficulty which always develops sooner or later in an irrigated region is that of priority of water rights. In an arid country water is king and the amount of land that can be reclaimed depends upon the available water supply; hence as the land in an irrigated region becomes more valuable, water rights become more valuable and litigation is bound to follow.

In one respect water users in the Deschutes valley are fortunate; the entire river and its tributaries lie within the state of Oregon and water rights under that system will be adjudicated by the courts of this state, thus doing away with interstate litigation. But with this redeeming feature, the condition of water rights upon the Deschutes or any other river in Oregon is serious enough. Under the present laws part of the water filings are scattered through the records of various counties and are generally unintelligible as to location or amount of appropriation when examined. Part of the recent appropriations have been recorded in the state engineer's office.

Oregon is to be congratulated in one sense upon her lack of utilization of her water resources as compared with other arid states. She is in position to profit by the experience of those states in legislation enacted for the protection of various industries depending upon the use of water.

Benham Falls 34,000 Horse Power.

The examination of the possibilities of Benham Falls, made by Engineer West last week shows that these falls can furnish an abundance of power. Measurements of the water level immediately below the falls show a drop of 105 feet and a capacity of the 34,000 horse power.

The plan at present is to develop electrical energy at this point by the use of turbine water wheels. Benham Falls is situated above the intake of the D. I. & P. Co's canal and in a region of such geologic formation that water taken from above the falls will be to a large extent returned to the river thus forming a uniform and permanent force of power.

Sunday morning the Carlyle Triplett house, near Lytle, occupied by J. H. Miller, narrowly escaped complete destruction. Geo. Bates was just returning from the river with a tank of water when he saw flames issuing from the top of the roof about the chimney. He called help and by hard and effective work the flames were checked. The Miller family, excepting Mrs. Miller, was away, and she did not discover the fire until shortly before help arrived. The loss to Mr. Triplett will be considerable; practically the entire roof will have to be replaced and there was no insurance.

National Educational Convention.

The National Educational Association will hold its annual convention in San Francisco from July 7 to 14 of this year. The people of San Francisco and, in fact, the people of the whole Pacific Coast are preparing a welcome and reception to the teachers the equal of which has never been given to any organization.

The educational value of these meetings is well known and those interested in education throughout the state are anxious to have our teachers participate, first, because it will be many years before another National Educational Association will be so accessible and, second, because our standing educationally will be judged largely by the attendance of Oregon teachers at this convention.

The railroad and steam boat lines have granted very liberal rates and the local committee at San Francisco assures us that there will be no advance in the regular rates at hotels, rooming houses and restaurants in San Francisco during the convention week.

Any data or information in any way relating to the meeting can be obtained by addressing the California Committee, N. E. A. No. 25, New Montgomery street, San Francisco, Cal., or J. H. Ackerman, Salem, Oregon.

A Bear Hunt.

Wednesday Bend citizens were given the rare treat of witnessing a bear hunt right here in town. A. E. Estebenet's bear, which he has had in captivity long enough that he should have known better, broke away and climbed a tall pine over on Bond street.

Mr. Estebenet offered a reward to anyone who would climb the tree and pull the bear out by the tail, bringing him to the ground alive. Now the bear is about half grown and at first no one came forward to claim the reward.

A crowd gradually gathered around the tree and various schemes to entice bruin to come down, were talked of. Creed Triplett offered to go up and combat the bear, single handed, but would not guarantee to bring him to the ground unscathed, so was not allowed to make the attempt—everyone present entering a protest. You see, Creed is the only barber in town.

Finally the fire hose was brought and G. W. Turner climbed a tall tree near the one in which the tub was perched, and hose in hand, tried in vain to soak him out; the bear only blinked and licked his chops, seemingly enjoying the first bath he had had in several months.

Wm. Brock, one of Bend's old and experienced bear hunters, was present and had been watching the futile attempts to recapture the bear with a knowing twinkle in his eye and when all the rest had given up, simply climbed the tree and, taking hold of the ten or twelve feet of chain still attached to the bear, brought him peacefully to the ground, and he was again a captive.

After his experiences of Wednesday, probably the most eventful day of his life, he will no doubt be a good and a peaceable bear.

PLAN FOR INSTITUTE

Settlers Association Heads the Movement.

COMMERCIAL CLUB MEETS

Arrangements Being Made for Farmers Meeting and Grand Rally April 29.

The Settlers Association held a meeting last night and arranged for a farmers' institute to be held in Bend on April 29th.

A committee was appointed to arrange with hotels and livery stables for special rates on that day.

There will be entertainment of some kind in the evening and visitors will be furnished every accommodation.

Definite plans have not yet been completed but it is the intention of the people of Bend to make this meeting a big success. More definite announcement as to speakers, music, and other details, will be made next week.

Commercial Club to Co-Operate.

The Commercial Club met at the Bend Social Club hall, Monday evening and discussed many matters of interest to this vicinity. A communication was read from Governor Chamberlain favoring the establishing of an experiment station in the Deschutes irrigated region.

Six new members were admitted and the dues, $2 per year were made payable in installments on the first of January and July. Dr. Coe was made chairman of a committee to secure new members. A committee consisting of Dr. Coe, John Steidl, Frank Stroud, Hugh O'Kane, H. C. Ellis and A. L. Goodwillie, was named to co-operate with the Deschutes Settlers Association to arrange for a farmer's institute to be held at Bend in the near future. Meetings of this sort were held last winter at Laidlaw and Redmond and were very successful. More definite announcement will be made later. The club will meet again next Monday evening to listen to the report of the committees named and to take farther action thereon.

City Council Meets.

At the regular meeting of the city council held last Tuesday evening, little business was transacted. After an informal discussion an adjournment was taken to Wednesday evening.

At the adjourned meeting the petition of A. B. Estebenet, for a liquor license for the ensuing quarter was favorably acted upon.

The charges of official misconduct against Marshal Lobdell, which have hung fire so long, were finally disposed of. Witnesses did not appear to substantiate the accusations, and upon motion of Alderman Overturf, the charges were withdrawn.

The salaries of the recorder and marshal to April 1, were ordered paid; also claims of Mrs. Steele and E. W. Gile for services rendered in connection with the prosecution under the gambling ordinance. The ordinance providing for the payment of witnesses as in cases in the recorder's court was amended so as to allow compensation to witnesses for the defendants as well as those for the city in the discretion of the council, not exceeding $2 per day.

The city marshal was directed to call attention of property owners to the ordinance in reference to fires and chimneys. Many of the fires that have occurred in the city have been traced directly to this cause. Each property owner should take a personal interest in the enforcement of the ordinance.

An address in support of equal suffrage, was given Tuesday evening in B. M. hall by Mrs. Lydia Iron.
