Wednesday night was a fore-runner of what is coming—the thermometer dropped to 13° above zero.

B. A. Kendall was in Bend Wednesday after a load of lumber to be used on his ranch near Redmond.

Mrs. Will Bates and sister returned from Mitchell the latter part of last week from a visit with their parents.

Don't forget to send your friends some of those souvenir postal cards of the Bend school house. Grant has them.

The band boys are sporting another brand new horn—a silver plated alto. Carlyle Triplett is the one who toots it.

Last week Barney Lewis plowed several acres on his homestead west of town and will put it into crop next spring.

Fred Hunnell has been making improvements this week on his homestead east of Bend by plowing several acres. He will seed it next spring.

The moving picture concert at the Bend Social Club hall Wednesday evening was a very pleasing entertainment. The views of San Francisco were especially good.

The youngsters of the town were busy until late hours Wednesday night—Halloween. Very little damage was done, but the next morning there were the usual evidences of harmless fun.

The regular monthly consecration meeting of the Christian Endeavor society next Sunday evening. Topic: "The Blessedness of Communion with Christ." John 14: 15-26. Leader, Mrs. N. P. Wilder.

The Bend sawmills report that they are doing nearly three times as much business this fall as they did the same time last year. This is the best kind of evidence of substantial development in the Bend country.

We are threatened with an egg famine. Eggs are so scarce that Bend housewives are only too glad to buy the precious articles one or two at a time, and pay fancy price at that. The price ranges from 40 to 50 cents per dozen.

J. W. Robison did a very neat piece of work in setting the broken ankle of the stage horse injured last week. He set the fracture and then encased it in a plaster of Paris cast. The animal is apparently getting along nicely.

This section of Oregon has been a famous stock country for years, but that it is not yet much of a dairy region was shown recently when it was impossible for a Bend citizen to purchase a churn in any of the stores. It was necessary to have one made.

Ranchers in the vicinity of Bend report that hawks are causing them considerable loss in the poultry flocks. They should import a breed of dogs the same as one owned by a Hood River man—a dog that kills all marauding hawks and eagles. The story is told in another column.

Mrs. Michael Morrison, who last spring underwent an operation in a Portland hospital and who since she recovered has been visiting in Minnesota, was forced recently to return to Portland and undergo another operation due to infection in the wound. The second operation proved very successful. Mrs. Morrison's health has been greatly improved since the operation in the spring.

Joe Lane, one of the Indians who has been about town the past week, told a bear story that beats even the chase of the big grizzly. He said as he was walking along in the timber one day a black bear jumped up suddenly at his very feet and before he could shoot or defend himself, the bear had seized him in its deadly hug. Whereupon Joe grabbed the animal by its jaws and by main strength broke its jaws. Whether Joe is drawing on his imagination or not, we do not know, but he has evidently been in some sort of an encounter as his hands are terribly scratched and bitten.

One of the most remarkable results of irrigation in the immediate vicinity of Bend is the change in the climatic conditions. The climatological records show that even through the months of July and August on certain dates the minimum temperature dropped from four to nine degrees below freezing during every year prior to 1905, since a record was kept. While it can hardly be said that irrigation has commenced in the vicinity of Bend, yet with the water diverted through the vicinity in the canals and also applied to a small acreage scattered over about four square miles, it is not only a fact that there was no frost at all for 60 days during both 1905 and 1906, but corn, cucumbers, tomatoes and melons have been successfully raised during this year within a radius of two miles around Bend, this being about the most elevated section under the irrigation system. Considering these results, and bearing in mind the mild and agreeable winters we enjoy, we will simply ask you to draw your own conclusions as to the future conditions, in reference to this subject, when the entire district is reclaimed.

In conclusion we may be pardoned when we say that, with a district having a foundation composed of good soil, an energetic irrigation company that is ready and willing to do its part, and invincible and intelligent settlers, we believe not only that here will be a densely populated and exceedingly prosperous community in the near future but that in commercial importance to the state of Oregon, it will fully equal the famous Willamette valley above Salem and will materially add to the wealth and population of Portland and other cities with which it will have future business relations.
