THE SENSE OF SMELL.

Gas, According to a Scientist, is Its Fundamental Basis.

Is the sense of smell excited by gases or particles? According to Dr. John Aitken, an English specialist, gas is the fundamental basis of the sense of smell. In experiments he first investigated musk, of which it is possible to detect by smell a microscopic quantity inconceivably minute, a fact well known to scientists. Dr. Aitken carried out his researches upon the cloudy condensation basis, according to which, if odors are attributable to particles, the latter form nuclei of cloudy condensation in supersaturated air and thus make their presence visible.

In the case of musk no such nuclei were detected, proving that musk does not give off solid particles, but evaporates as a gas or vapor, and that it is gaseous particles from the musk that act on the sense of smell. Of twenty-three other odorous substances not one gave its perfume in solid particles, nothing but gases or vapors escaping from them.

Dr. Aitken points out that the nostrils appear to substantiate this theory. The perfume of snuff, for instance, is a soft, velvety sensation, while the effect of the solid is sharp and biting, more allied to pain than pleasure.

Early and Late Pigs.

The enormous losses of spring pigs this year will probably cause a good many hog raisers to have their pigs come later in the season. For the careless man or the man without proper equipment this may be best, but the early pigs have decided advantages which should lead rather to more attention to saving them than to delay their arrival, says National Stockman.

The careful man who has pigs come early in the season can prepare them for market with a minimum of winter feeding, when a pound of pork costs the most to produce, and he can in this day of the light market hog have them ready for market in time to avoid the rush and also the expense of winter feed.

Cheap Poultry Shelter.

A writer in Farm Journal built a small temporary poultry house the past season with 2 by 3 corner posts driven into the ground and a frame of strips of inch board. The whole was covered with heavy red, resin sized building paper, QUICKLY BUILT ROOSTING COOP. The result was very satisfactory. The cut shows a similar one.

gation of an open sided fall roosting coop for chicks. It can be built in a couple of hours and taken down when no longer needed. Use bits along the overlapping edges of the paper.

Mutton Chops.

Don't forget to dip. Even cull chops sell up to $4.75. It's a pretty coarse weed that sheep will not eat.

By all means dock your lambs and cork them early.

Fold the fleece with the bright side toward the market.

If you wish to do a mail order business in sheep you must advertise.

If you want to see your lambs smile prepare for them a patch of rape.

If there is better roughage than clover hay we would like to know what it is.

Good, big, strong lamb crops are the common report from all over the country.

He who breeds a certain breed of sheep because he likes it is pretty sure to succeed.

Owners of pure bred sheep and goats who do not advertise do not know what they are losing on that account—American Sheep Breeder.

If you are going to celebrate—and of course you are—you will find Bend the place in which to burrah.
