GREEN FEED.

Help in Stock and Pasture in Time of Heat and Drought.

It will be an unusual season if many farmers in the corn belt are not confronted with the short pasture problem during July and August. Nine years out of ten the seventh and eighth months are droughty in some of our agricultural states, and a scant supply of nutritious green feed at this critical time means decreased returns to the dairyman or the man who is making beef on grass. It is a sorry outlook for stock where this situation exists, and its ill effects are greatly heightened by the presence of flies and hot weather.

In order that stock may get through this period without a setback provision should be made for a liberal quantity of green feed to supplement short grass or entirely to supplant the pastures. A continuous supply of this material is essential to the profitable development of young and growing animals as well as to the maintenance of a paying flow of milk from dairy cattle. It is just as important to provide plenty of feed for the dry months of summer, when grass is inadequate for their needs, as to grow it for winter. The proposition runs right to the pocketbook of every stock farmer, declares Breeder's Gazette.

Soiling Crops.

Most pastures are overtaxed. This and dry weather make them pretty scant picking for about two months of the year. Just as soon as they get a little short soiling crops should be ready to use. For the benefit of the grass stock should be taken off the pastures just as soon as there is an abundance of green feed. Let the grass grow. Give it a chance to recuperate.

Several varieties of crops are admirably adapted to the purpose of supplying green feed for stock through a droughty summer. Early corns are highly recommended. Sow five or six quarts of seed per acre. Cowpeas and soy beans sown at the rate of a bushel per acre will do well in many localities. Oats and Canadian field peas, a bushel of each per acre sown together, make excellent green feed. Dwarf Essex rape, four pounds of seed to the acre, will make capital provender for sheep and hogs. Sorghum may be included to advantage. Cowpeas and rape may be sown in cornfields at the final cultivation. Rye sown in corn will afford feed for late fall, and early spring and thus help the pasture. Sweet vetch is commonly grown for soiling purposes.

Portland Rose Show and Fiesta.

Portland is planning big things for its annual rose show, which will take place on June 19-20-21-22. A pleasing program has been arranged in which the beautiful and many hued roses of Portland will take the leading part. There will be a floral parade of 2000 school children; also a monster parade of floral decorated automobiles, competitive floats, equestrian clubs, military bands, trophy and cash prize awards. The Oregon Development League will hold its convention during this week. The railroads have made reduced rates as follows: Pendleton and east one fare. West of Pendleton one and one-third fare with the Pendleton rate of $6.85 as the maximum. Children of half fare age, one-half of above rates.

Burns Bank a State Depository.

The First National Bank of Burns has been notified by State Treasurer Steel that the institution had been designated a state depository to receive funds of the state and pay them out upon the order or check of the state treasurer. This is in accordance with a law passed by the last legislature giving the authority to the treasurer to designate banks in which to make deposits. It speaks well for the standing of the local institution to be thus recognized and the further fact that it has been made a U. S. depository within the past year is another distinction that is a source of pride to home people.—Times-Herald.
