News Notes that Show Rapid Growth in Various Parts of the State

The Oregon state fair at Salem last week was a record breaker in point of attendance, and the speed contests were the best in the history of the fair and aroused even more enthusiasm than when pools were sold. The 12 new stables which housed the splendid livestock exhibit were visited by many thousands, there being as many ladies as men present.

The displays of products of the soil were up to those in quality shown at the Lewis & Clark exposition, and the crowds were admirably handled.

The citizens of the great Harney country have made an urgent appeal to the people of all parts of the state to make a special effort to visit Burns on October 8 to 12, when their fair is in session, and see the products of Oregon's biggest county. An effort will be made to send a delegation from Portland. Artesian water has been found at a depth of less than 300 feet in Harney valley and the people are rejoicing.

No meeting devoted to irrigation has ever attracted such general attention throughout the United States as the last convention of the National Irrigation Congress at Sacramento, and Oregon is indebted to Malheur and Klamath counties for making a showing which won big prizes and caused the state to be generously advertised.

At least 10 towns in Oregon have established permanent exhibit rooms at which good specimens of fruits, vegetables and other products are shown. Others are making a temporary showing on account of the large number of colonists taking advantage of the low rates now on, and in each instance it gives the new comers a place to concentrate, where they are assured a welcome, and as a result a large majority locate permanently.
