Poultry Houses. The essential points in a poultry house are light, dryness and good ventilation. The houses that have been bullt warm and tight, with the idea of keeping the water from freezing have the objection, that in nearly all cases the ceilings and walls coat with frost during very cold weather. When the weather moderates the frost melts and you have a very damp house. The house smells of chickens, or in other words, is poorly ventilated and, in many instances, the chickens are unhealthy. Sometimes they lay well during winter, but the eggs are very poor for latching purposes. For a number of years we have been trying to find some way to overcome these difficulties. The best means of ventilating a bonse that I know of is by using cloth screens, and to keep a house perfectly dry, I have found nothing better than a straw loft, i. e., the ceiling is covered with straw, the straw being placed on boards or rails which are some six or eight luches spart. The straw should be about one foot or more in depth. The straw, which is exposed to the air of the pen, will absorb the majority of the moisture and keep the house fairly dry, at least, we have had no difficulty whatever in keeping houses perfectly dry by using straw lofts. Where we have not used these lofts, even where there was ample ventilation, there has been some little difficulty with frosted walls and ceilings.

The use of the curtain front is coming more into favor. Under ordinary circumstances a house needs to be onethird of the front of glass in order to have the pen well lighted. There should be about as much more of the front of cotton. The cotton may be put on frames which can be closed or opened, according to weather conditions. On nice eright days, the cotton is either rolled up, or if the curtain is put on frames, it can be hung up. This makes the pen very nice, bright and airy. On nearly all days the cotton screens "Do you think an editor or an orator should be opened for a short time. At least, in the houses where we have cotton fronts, we get a slightly higher minimum temperature than where we have a similar house with all glass front and no cotton. It must be borne in mind, however, that in these houses of ours where the tests are made, the windows are not fitted extremely tight.

Where floors are made of cement. boards, or ground; at least, four to six inches of fresh earth should be put on to break a current of flowing water .each year. Care should be taken to keep the floors well cleaned, otherwise the ground becomes tainted and the common epidemic among fowls more prevalent. The ground outside the house should be ploughed or spailed once or twice a year. The land, too, meets cropping and where this is impossible the next best thing is to apply lime and work the same into the soil.

All poultry houses should be whitewashed and disinfected at least once a year. The present time is undesirable for whitewashing, as it is apt to leave the house entirely too damp for the coming season. It would be better done in the spring or summer.-W. R. Graham, Ontario Agricultural College,

Making Alcohol on the Farms. The internal revenue commissioner hes prepared for public use a document giving the regulations for mann facturing denatured alcohol from waste products on the farm, and no doubt the Department of Agriculture will follow farms, and takes a considerable part in the German advance in manufacturing and commerce. French farmers also depend on traveling distillers. waste of wine, fruit and beet growing is chiefly relied on, potato crops cost ing more in France than in Jermany,

At the beginning of the year the fax on the manufacture of densiured alcohol was removed, but the advantages predicted are not yet visible to any extent. Time is required to grasp the practical details of the change. American farms raise more marketable crops than any other and have a greater variety of waste and by-products. Alcohol can be distilled from corpcobs and like material and is said to be superior to gasoline for fuel. The authorities at Washington are giving thought is what can be accomplished in its ...mon facture by individual farmers or groups of farmers, and the industry, when fairly set in motion, will take the place anticipated. The uses of a cheap, effi clent fuel are not in doubt. An active campaign by the Department of Agriculture will give denatured alcohol the start needed.-St. Louis Globe-Demo-

throughout this section of the country bring forcibly to mind the abundant fruit crop of last season, the low prices paid for apples and the universal care lessness of growers in taking care of their crop. Throughout all sections of Missouri the apple crop last year was unusually large. Owners of orchards could not secure anywhere near what their fruit was worth, and many thousands of bushels of good apples were allowed to rot on the ground or were fed to stock. This year the crop was rulned by late frosts, and now the price per bushel is so high that the average family is forced to do without this healthful and delicious fruit. The lesson to be learned from these conditions ought to be impressed upon the mind of every apple grower in the State. Complaint was made last year that the ap ple market was controlled by a trust which would buy no more fruit than it could dispose of at a handsome profit. This was doubtless true, but it in no way prevented the farmer from carefully preserving a supply sufficient at least for his home use until another crop could be raised. He could at least manufacture a large supply of cider vinegar, put away a number of bushels of dried apples, make a number of galions of apple butter, besides carefully putting away a supply of the fruit in good cellars or in mounds in the garden or orchard .- St. Joseph Gazette.

Kerosene is es pecially likely to cause injury if ap plied on other than a bright, sunny day. OLD SORES FED AND KEPT OPEN BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

Whenever a sore refuses to heal it is because the blood is not pure and healthy, as it should be, but is infected with poisonous germs or some old blood taint which has corrupted and polluted the circulation. Those most usually afflicted with old sores are persons who have reached or passed mid-dle life. The vitality of the blood and strength of the system have naturally begun to decline, and the poisonous germs which have accumulated because of a sluggish and inactive condition of the system, or some hereditary taint which has hitherto been held in check, now force an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body. The place grows red and angry, festers and have made progress in the business cats into the surrounding tissue until it becomes a chronic and stubborn some own their own stills and others uleer, fed and kept open by the impurities with which the blood is saturated.
