He and his father were cutting a tree in order to enable them to roll logs into the river on the west side opposite their mill. Leaning against this tree was a dead pine. As the tree started to fall John darted away in one direction and then noticed that the tree was falling that way. Before he could get out of the way the dead pine struck him across the back and knocked him between two rocks, which protected him from the full weight of the tree. Had it not been for the rocks he would have been crushed to death. As it was he received a bad cut on the chin and five teeth were knocked out. He is up and about but wears a big bandage about his head.

BEST HE EVER SAW.
Experienced Irrigator Much Pleased with Bend Country.

Thomas Hiatt, of Missoula, Mont., was in Bend the first of the week on his way to visit a sister in the Silver Lake country. Mr. Hiatt is an experienced irrigator, having lived until the last few months in Colorado, where irrigation is practiced. He was very much pleased with what he saw here, and says he will come back to Bend, purchase land and eventually locate in this vicinity as soon as he can dispose of his property at Missoula.

Talking with The Bulletin reporter, Mr. Hiatt said: "This is the best irrigation project I have ever seen. The canals and ditches are well built and are on a good grade. The supply of water is excellent and there is a great abundance of it. The land lies in an ideal condition for irrigating, and will require very little leveling compared with the land in other sections with which I am acquainted. In so many places one of the heaviest expenses for the irrigator is the cost of leveling his land. Here but very little of that is needed. As I came in over the segregation crops looked well and of course there is no doubt that good crops will grow here. That has been demonstrated. I have fully decided to locate at or near Bend within the next few months."

Mr. Hiatt was very enthusiastic and was quite confident that he could get several friends from his old home at Glendale, Colo., to move to this section.

Personal
If any person suspects that their kidneys are deranged they should take Foley's Kidney Remedy at once and not risk having Bright's disease or diabetes. Delay gives the disease a stronger foothold and you should not delay taking Foley's Kidney Remedy.—C. W. Merrill, Druggist.
