Fifty hunters (brutes), each with a dollar license, encircled a band of 25 elk over in Josephine county last week and killed every elk in the band—not one of the noble animals was left in the territory. Fellows like that deserve death themselves; with no protection whatever through the courts.—More Observer.

The Publisher's Claims Sustained

UNITED STATES COURT OF CLAIMS

The Publishers of Webster's International Dictionary allege that it "is, in fact, the popularly recognized and most widely used dictionary, and that it is the highest authority in accuracy of definition, and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference."

We are of the opinion that this allegation most clearly and accurately describes the result that has been reached. The Dictionary, as it now stands, has been thoroughly re-edited in every part, and is admirably adapted to meet the larger and severer requirements of a generation which demands more of popular etymological knowledge than any generation that the world has ever contained.

It is perhaps needless to add that we refer to the dictionary in our judicial work as of the highest authority in accuracy of definition; and that in the future as in the past it will be the source of constant reference.
