Redmond Man Hauls Wood for Neighbors During Recent Storm.

REDMOND, Or., Jan. 6, 1909.—Editor The Bulletin, Bend, Or.—Dear Sir: I have been quite interested in the church topic discussion in your paper between Mr. Triplett and The Bulletin. It has really been valuable to most of your readers inasmuch as it has brought out facts lying deeper than the casual observer usually goes. While I have always clung to Methodism, I am not so uncharitable as to think it the only right church. In fact I don't think it is any better than most any of the other creeds only in the matter of charity. In this the Methodist church is par excellence since a human being can never fall so deep in the gutter that the Methodist church won't lend a helping hand and try to get him out.

And yet after all, I believe The Bulletin is right in its views of a unity of all churches. It's coming, too, as surely and swiftly as time can bear it along. The day is near at hand when Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and all other denominational names will be as a story once told and remembered only for the fact that they mean members of the great church of the Most High.

Now by way of illustration let me tell you a little incident occurring in our neighborhood during the last snow storm that prevailed all over the West and Central states. Not every settler on these irrigated lands, as you know, have teams and wagons and the sudden swoop of the storm, coming as it did in the night, found many with depleted wood piles. In his little house on his claim Neighbor —, a man without a family but with a great big warm heart and a team and wagon—sat and looked out at the raging storm and wondered if one of his neighbors might not be short of fuel. To think was to act with him and hitching up his team he started on the rounds to find out. Success greeted him at the very first place he stopped, and after hauling a load he pulled out for another place, where he knew the man of the house to be absent, to see that the family had fuel on hand. Then once more to another neighbor's where he spent nearly a half day wading through the deep snow to replenish a depleted wood pile. I do not think he is a member of any particular church, only the great church of God and charity to humanity. It seems to me this ought to be enough, for it means the fulfillment of one of the greatest of all the commandments. When church members have learned the great lesson of charity and to obey the great commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," then one church will hold every member of every denomination in Bend and Redmond too, for as yet neither one is very large.

This is the religion we advocate and the religion we hope to see soon taking a firm hold on all the people and when it has come to pass strife and dissension among the churches will cease for we will all then realize the full meaning of the message of peace on earth and good will to all, given in that far off time when the grand diapason ascended to heaven and the morning stars sang together.

RULES ON WATER RIGHTS.

part of the public domain subsequent to the date of the act of congress of March 3, 1877, accepted it with title thereto with full knowledge of the law in force at the time and subject to the full import thereof.

Rights Dedicated to Public.

The legal effect of the language in the act of congress of March 3, 1877, namely: "there shall be and remain and be held free for the appropriation and use of the public for irrigation," etc., is to constitute a reservation and dedication to the public of all interests, riparian or otherwise, held at the time by the national government so far as such interests affect the uses for irrigation and other purposes thus enumerated.

All lands settled upon and to which title has been acquired subsequent to the act of congress of March 3, 1877, were accepted with full knowledge and with the implied understanding that the first to divert and apply the water of streams or other sources of water supply thereon, for the purposes specified in the act, shall have the superior right thereto to the extent intended and actually applied.

The references in the code to riparian rights constitute a recognition of whatever riparian rights the landed proprietor may have; but does not attempt to define nor in any manner to establish any rule respecting such interests.

A Religious Author's Statement.

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy.—C. W. Merrill, druggist.

What Is Farm and Fireside?

It is not enough that Farm and Fireside has stood in the front rank of farm papers for the last thirty years; it is not enough that it has barred all questionable advertisements from its columns and guarantees every advertisement it accepts; Farm and Fireside has got to do more than that, and it is going to do a lot more than that; it is going to give to the farmer and his family the very best of practical and helpful material that money can buy. If it is about nothing more important than a post driver, it's going to be told by a man who can make a post driver better than he can do any one other thing. We are going to carry this utility idea through the whole farm and into the kitchen door, where the farmer's wife needs labor-saving helps and practical suggestions just as much as the men folks.

Around this practical working proposition, carried out on a totally new plane, we shall forge material of interest and entertainment, which farm papers heretofore have put into the "can't afford" class. Farm and Fireside has twelve to fifteen departments covering every phase of farm and home life. Among them are Live Stock and Dairy, Gardening, Poultry, Fruit Growing, Cooking, Fashions, Young People, etc. It prints 30 to 32 pages each issue. We can afford the best, simply because we believe the farmer will pay for the best, now that we have demonstrated our ability to give it to him.

You will find Farm and Fireside better than it has ever been thought possible to make a farm and family paper.

Here is a pointer for you-- Last week The Bulletin gave its readers of reading matter; the week before, 35 columns. What other paper in the county gives even half as much?
