Following the exposure by Calkins, McDonald and Patton, members of the committee on alcoholic traffic, who reported the bill favorably, and McCue and Brady, champions of the bill on the floor of the house, voted against its indefinite postponement. Only four representa-tives voted against substituting the unfavorable for the favorable report on the measure. They were Bones, Hat teberg, Meek and Philpott.

Waving aside all question of constitutionality and insisting that the emer-gency clause should be retained, the house this morning passed Senator Hart's bill, providing for two additional justices of the Oregon Supreme for the last two years.

The two additional justices are to receive an annual salary of $4,500 and when their successors will be elected. With the appointing power vested in the governor, the seven Democrats in ouse voted solidly for the bill.

The house tonight adopted the majority report of the judiciary committee, recommending the passage of Bowerman's bill providing for the transfer of circuit court judges from one district to another to relieve congested condition of courts. The original vote was 24 to 31.

The senate held an evening session tonight and passed 18 bills, thus clearing the desks of all accumulated work. Among the important bills passed were the fishery bill agreed upon be-tween the state of Oregon and Washington, the new military code, the revised game law, the Kay bill providing bounties on cougars, timber wolves and wildcats, and the bill regulating the sale of concentrated stock foods.
