War Commander of Apaches, After Twenty-one Years Did Not Forgive Pale-Faced Captors.

LAST OF THE REDSKIN LEADERS

Only Relenting Warrior Showed Was When He Sought Some Favor from Custodians.

The recent death of Geronimo, the Wit illumines one of the dueling stories in Monsieur Ronzier-Dorciere's famous war chief of the Apaches, which occurred at the Fort Sill milltary reservation in Oklahoma, where he had been held a prisoner for many French gentleman, Monsieur de la Yayears, removed one of the most cruel and most subtle red-skinned savages that the United States Government has ever fought. Gen. Miles, to whom he lette just above the belt, but did not surrendered after his last great outwound him, owing to a five-franc piece break in 1885, called him the "huin his waistcost pocket, against which man tiger," and the characterization was not too severe. He reveled in blood and died untamed and unreconadversary, holding out his hand, "let us structed.

CHIEF GEBONIMO.

He had never forgiven the white men, and up to the time of his death he never spoke of the whites as "brothers" except at times when the wily old redskin covered his hatred to pray for some favor. He had made many attempts to get permission to go back to Arizona, where he said he desired to dle.

Early in 1908 Geronimo made a trip to Washington with a number of his followers in an effort to interest President Roosevelt in his case. The old Indian was unsuccessful, however, and to the last Geronimo was full of bitter hatred for the white man. At the time of his death Geronimo was 80 years old. One daughter, Lola, who lives in Oklahoma, survives the old warrior.

From the early '60s until Gen. Lawton, then serving under Gen. Miles. rounded him up in 1886, Geronimo was a living terror to the settlers of Arizona, New Mexico and Sonora, Mexico. Time after time in those days he swept down upon lonely ranches with a band of well-horsed, well-armed say ages, murdering and burning, then with the cunning of a snake wriggled back into the mountains, where the little companies of cavalry found it impossible to source him.

Preferred Death to Capture The country first began to hear of Geronimo 50 years ago, when he was comparatively a young man. In those days Cochise was war chief of the Chiricahua Apaches, an old man of bestial cruelty. Gerontmo himself was the son of Mangus Colorado, or Chale-row, who as war chief of the Warm Spring Chiricahuas made life a burden to the settlers of Arizona and New Mexico. Cochise died in 1875 after a career of rapine and plunder that couldn't be matched except by the record Geronimo made later. Natchez succeeded Cochise and Geronimo very shortly succeeded Natchez.

As to how many lives Geronimo ended within the next 10 years there is no record. His favorite amusement was to send in assurances of peace to the soldiers, retire for a few months to the mountains, and then when the settlers believed they were in most security to swoop down on them, scalping every man, woman and child who hadn't had time to fice, and there was seidom much warning before Geronimo's raids. Endless stories have been told of the almost unimaginable cruelty Geronimo displayed toward the few prisoners he ever troubled himself to take. More than once ranchers who knew they were doomed to capture or death saw to it that their women were dead before they fell into the hands of Geronimo's Apaches.

Geronimo never fought when he could help ft. A woman on a ranch or a mail carrier on his pony carried as good a scalp as a soldier and was much safer to slay. When the soldiers caught up-as they sometimes didthe Indians fought back with every device they knew. When the pursuit was too hot their picked men dropped in their blankets and waited until the soldlers came upon them, and sought to shoot the officers.

A Typical Raid.

The story of one of Geronimo's raid. is practically the story of all, and the biggest of them was in 1881, when Geronimo led 500 warriors on the warpath down as far as Chihuabua, They had many diversions along the road. On Eagle river they found a herder with 3,000 sheep. The herder they threw over a cliff, and as he lay there broken-legged they buried him with stones. They punched the eyes out of the sheep until that grew tiresome.

In Gold Guich a half dozen capitalists were on their way to examine a prospect. A small detachment of the Indians lay in the tall grass alongside the trail and shot five of the six out of their saddles. The sixth man got away. He had retained his rifle, and they did not follow him.

They crossed the Gils river with a lot of horses, killing freighters as they found them, and swept across the mess near Shakespeare, where they encountered Judge McComa of Sliver City, his wife and their 6-year-old son. They shot the judge, felled his wife with a stone, tortured her to death, and carried off the boy-to what fate nobody ever has been able to make the Apaches tell.

When Geronimo was at the height of his power as an outlaw his face was one of demontacal ferocity. His fury knew no bounds. His temper was so terrible that he frothed at the mouth when enraged. If a horse did not do as he wished he killed it, and squaws who displeased him were put to

The last death trall in which he was engaged was in 1885, and in that raid he killed 76 white settlers. Gen. Miles conducted the campaign against him and, aided by the late Gen. Lawton, he succeeded in snaring the willy chief in 1880. Geronimo and his fighters were run to earth at the junction of the San Bernardino and Bavispe rivers, near the Mexican border, and surrendered unconditionally. They were sent to Fort Pickens, Fls., and later to Mount Vernon Barracks, in Alabama, and then in 1894 were transferred to Fort Stil. It is said that the various campaigns waged by the United States against this murderous redskin cost the lives of nearly 1,000 soldiers and $5,000,000 in money.

At one time, to curry favor with the President that he might be permitted to return to his native Arizona, Gerontmo joined the Dutch Reformed church. But his habits were so bad that he was dropped from the church, and he died without acknowledging the white man's God.
