

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

WATER LILIES FOR BREAKFAST

UNCLE SAM DISCOVERS A NEW KIND OF FOOD IN THE NORTHWEST

Government experts have discovered a new kind of food. It is said to be palatable, wholesome, nutritious, and ought to be reasonably cheap. The food in question is furnished by the seeds of the great yellow water lily, which in Eastern Oregon have been gathered for many centuries by the Klamath Indians, who depend upon them to a considerable extent for their winter provender. They are so delicious, and so obviously available for consumption by civilized people, that it is thought there would be profit in collecting them on a large scale, preparing them for market by modern methods and putting them up for sale in neat and attractive packages, as a new food luxury.

The aborigines in question dwell among the foothills of the great Cascade range, in a region remarkable for multitudinous springs of icy-cold and crystal-clear water. It is from these springs that two vast water spaces, known respectively as Klamath marsh and Klamath lake, are supplied. The Klamath marsh, writes Rene Bach in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, contains 10,000 acres of the water lilies.

The water lilies are such exceedingly vigorous plants that they practically crowd out all other forms of vegetation over the area they occupy, even to the cat-tails. Thus the 10,000 acres represent that much space exclusively occupied by the "woks," as the Indians call them. Their seeds are inclosed in large green pods, which when fully ripe undergo quite suddenly a curious sort of decomposition, as one might call it, literally melting and dropping into the water a mucilaginous fluid in which the seeds are most eagerly sought, the seeds having obtained a maximum of flavor and tenderness.

White people in Southeastern Oregon often buy woks from the Klamaths for their own use, paying from 10 to 20 cents a pound for them—that is to say, for the kernels ready prepared and parched. They like them very much. But the price seems to be rather high, and it is suggested by Dr. F. V. Coville, botanist in chief of the Department of Agriculture, that modern methods might be employed to great advantage in placing the crop on the market. It would hardly be practicable, he says, to gather the pods in any other way than that now adopted, but the processes required for separating, cleaning and otherwise preparing the seeds might be performed inexpensively and advantageously by already familiar milling machines—so as to place the product on the market at a price low enough to enable it to compete with other breakfast foods.

POPULAR SCIENCE

Calcutta is to spend nearly half a million dollars for a 9,000,000-gallon tank for its filtered water supply. The tank will be elevated 100 feet above the ground on steel columns.

To facilitate its telephone service, the British postoffice department is experimenting with a slot machine device into which two pennies are dropped when a call is made. If the line is busy the money is returned.

The navy's submarine boat, Octopus, holds the record for depth of operations. With a full crew on board the little vessel was operated for half an hour in Buzzard's Bay, Massachusetts, in water no less than 107 feet deep.

The first electric furnace in this country for annealing, tempering and hardening metals has been erected at Schenectady, N. Y. It consists of a crucible containing metallic salts melted by an alternating current of low voltage.

A prize of about $2,400 offered in Germany in 1894 for the best method of preventing the pollution of streams by sulphite liquor from paper mills still remains unawarded. Scores of methods have been tried, but none has been notably successful.

F. Stubbs, an English ornithologist, expresses the opinion that birds habitually make use of storms in traveling from one part of their range to another. He points out that if a bird cannot find shelter, it must be more comfortable on the wing than on the ground during a storm, because in the fiercest gales the air, as a mass, is at rest; that is, the bird is in a moving supporting medium, like a swimmer in a strongly flowing river.

The advantages of oil fuel for stationary and marine boilers are receiving much attention in England. Although the total cost is greater for oil than coal, oil has the advantage of greater convenience, simplicity and cleanliness. It is also more efficient, since a pound of good oil is found to have a calorific value about 35 per cent greater than that of an equal weight of coal. It also occupies much less space, and in that respect is very suitable for ships. Many improvements have recently been made in the methods of spraying and burning the oil.

A curious photograph of a crocodile's nest filled with eggs, from two of which young crocodiles were just hatching, is contributed to Nature by G. W. Grabham. The photograph was made in the bed of the river Rahad, near the frontier of Abyssinia. The eggs were about three inches long, and the newly hatched crocodiles are ten inches long. They are perfectly formed, and utter a sound resembling the croaking of frogs. Before being uncovered, the eggs were buried about three inches deep in the sand at the bottom of a hole a foot deep. The young crocodiles, Mr. Grabham says, were perfectly willing to bite, but not strong enough to do any harm.

Unconquerable Souls.
The English soldier who sent his people the tune he had worn in a battle at the beginning of the South African War, and wrote from hospital, "You will see that there are eleven bullet-holes in it, but I was awfully lucky; only six of them hit me," has a rival in an English schoolboy of 10, whose cheerful acceptance of the "bludgeonings of chance" a writer in St. James' Budget has made public.

"My life has been a very lucky one," wrote the 10-year-old. "When I was 3 years old I fell downstairs and cut my head. When I was 5 years old I was looking at some hens, and a dog bit my leg.

"When I was 8 I went with my brother in the trap, and the horse fell and threw us out of the trap; my brother lit on his feet and I lit on the horse's back.

"Last year I was playing, and ran into a lorry and cut my eyebrow, and it has left a mark.

"One day I went into the slaughterhouse, and a big sheep ran after me and knocked me down, and broke my arm.

"I have had a happy life."

Spotted the Performance.
The play was all about a horse—a famous horse, the autobiography of which is even yet among the "best sellers," and over the sufferings of which thousands of readers have shed tears of sympathy. The four-legged actor that had been cast for the part of the horse was doing his best, presumably to look pathetic.

With drooping head, it stood on the stage, from time to time switching its poor docked tail. One of the two-legged actors was delivering an impassioned and really touching speech, when the audience suddenly burst into a fit of prolonged and uncontrollable laughter.

The oration came to a sudden stop. The actor glanced at the horse, then turned and fled in dismay behind the scenes.

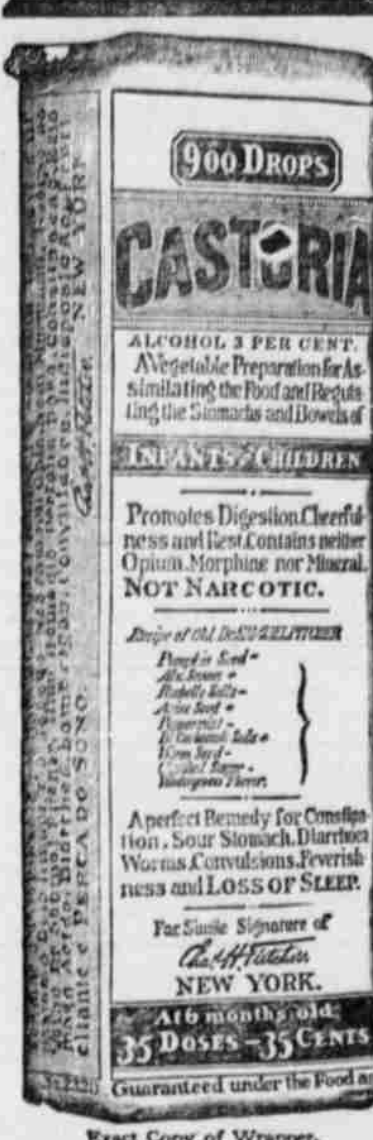

"Black Beauty" was yawning.

What She Was Doing.
"Didn't you telephone us that your wife was ready to go with us when we started?"

"Yes, but she's upstairs now changing her mind."

If we could only cash in our talk how many millionaires there would be.

If there is so much enjoyment in flirting, why don't men flirt with their wives?

Discordant Note.
"Mr. Meekun, don't you think a woman should receive a man's pay when she does a man's work?"

"Why—er—look at the other side of the question a moment, will you? Think how many men are doing women's work and not getting a cent for it!"

One Distinction.
Stranger (at Crown Point)—What's the difference between this sort of thing, in principle, and a horse race? Automobile Enthusiast—Great Scott, look at the possibilities, man! You can get a million more thrills out of it—Chicago Tribune.

Dressed as Scholars.
At the wedding lately of the head master of Eastbourne College, England, the three pages in the bridal procession were garbed as scholars in black satin knee breeches, buckled shoes, scarlet silk gowns, with white shirt fronts. Each carried a mortar-board hat and a scarlet-bound prayer book.

Early Showed Greatness.
Andrew Jackson was a marvel of precocity. He carried a flintlock musket, as a soldier of the revolutionary army, at the age of 14. At 23 he was appointed by Washington district attorney of Tennessee. He was a United States Senator at 30. He did not reach the presidency until he was 62.—Sunday Magazine.

Mothers will find Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup the best remedy to use for their children during the teething period.

Due to Score Next Time.
"You refuse me, do you, proud girl?" he howled. "Well, you're not doing anything original! This is the third time I've been turned down!"
"So I'm the third sacker, am I?" merrily responded the girl, thrusting her tongue in her cheek in a well meant but only partially successful effort to look like Mr. Steinfield.

History Rewritten.
With much reluctance King George III. had decided to let his American colonies go.
"Mark my words, though," he said, "they'll be governed some day by a monarch ten times as absolute and despotic as I am!"
If any doubt exists that his Britannic majesty had the spirit of prophecy upon him, look at Mr. Aldrich.—Chicago Tribune.

A Studied Explanation.
"Will you be able to explain your attitude on the tariff?"
"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I'll have my explanation ready when the time comes. But I'll wait till my constituents are interested in other things and will carefully make it a little hard to understand."—Washington Star.

Getting Back.
"Captain, what time does the boat start?"
"It starts, madam, when I give the word."

"Then I've always had the wrong idea. I thought it started when the engineer pulled a lever, or did something. Thank you ever so much."—Chicago Tribune.

The Old Adam.
"I wonder why three-fourths of the stenographers in business offices are women?" "I guess it is because men like to feel that there is at least one class of women whom they can dictate to."

Touch and Go.
"Good morning, sir," said the tall man in the suit of faded black, opening his valise. "My name is Glasspy. I am the inventor of a little device for—"

"I am glad to meet you, Mr. Glasspy," interrupted the man in the doorway. "My name is Washabaugh. I have the sole right in this county to take subscriptions for a new and copiously illustrated edition of the works of—"

"Good day, sir."
"Good day."—Chicago Tribune.

Food Scarc.
"This circular describing the Mounting says you can sit at the dinner table and see the beautiful mountain peaks," said the man who contemplated going.
"That is true," replied the one who had been; "and that's just about all you can see."—Yonkers Statesman.
