A COOL RECEPTION.

It Was Not Surprising, Though, in View of the Explanation.

Letters of introduction are not invariably serviceable. For one reason, they may be too frank. Harry Furules in his "Confessions of a Cartoonist" says that when a brother artist was setting forth on his travels in foreign climes he was provided with a letter of introduction to a certain official.

The writer of the letter inclosed it to one to the artist, saying that he would find the counsel a most arrant snob, a pompous, arrogant humbug, a cad to the backbone. Still, he would probably offer some courtesies to any one who had a good social standing and thus compensate the traveler for having to come in contact with such an insufferable vulgarian.

On the return of the artist to England the writer of the letter asked how he had fared with the counsel.

"Well, my dear fellow," drawled the artist, "he did not receive me very warmly, and he did not ask me to dinner. In fact, he struck me as being rather cool."

"Well, you do surprise me," rejoined his friend. "He's a cad, as I told you in my letter, but he's very hospitable, and I really can't understand this state of things. You gave him my letter of introduction?"

"Why, I thought so; but, do you know, on my journey home I discovered it in my pocketbook, so I must have handed to him instead your note to me about him."

The explanation was quite adequate.

A MEMORY TEST.

The Act by Which One Controversy Was Decided.

Three men were disputing in Berlin one day as to which of them had the best memory, and finally they asked a well known writer to decide the matter.

"Read me any page of Goethe's prose works," said one of the three, "and I will at once repeat it word for word."

"I can do better than that," said the second one. "Put me in a corner of this room, and I will play three games of chess simultaneously without ever looking at the boards."

"That's nothing to what I can do," said the first speaker again. "Begin a conversation with me now about the most absurd things possible, and at the end of an hour I will repeat the entire conversation to you."

The third man was silent, and the referee said to him: "Why don't you tell us what you can do? A few minutes ago you were boasting a good deal of your wonderful memory."

"I know it," was the reply. "but I did not then know that my two friends took the matter so seriously. And as they are so much in earnest I will not try to surpass them, for I cannot forget that each of them did me a favor yesterday."

"Yesterday?" asked the referee. "Yes," was the reply. "And you have not yet forgotten it? In that case the laurels belong to you, for you have indeed a wonderful memory."

Seven.

Numerous are the queer beliefs concerning the number seven. From the very earliest ages the seven great planets were known and ruled this world and the dwellers in it, and their number entered into every conceivable matter that concerned man. There are seven days in the week, "seven holes in the head, for the master stars are seven," seven ages both for man and the world in which he lives. There are seven material heavens. There are seven colors in the spectrum and seven notes in the diatonic octave, and the "leading" note of the scale is the seventh. He it noted that the seventh son is not always gifted with beneficent powers. In Portugal he is believed to be subject to the powers of darkness and to be compelled every Saturday evening to assume the likeness of an ass.—St. James' Gazette.

Natural Gas.

Natural gas is a member of the paraffin series formed by the decomposition of animal matter, as in Ohio and Indiana gas, and from vegetable matter, as in Pennsylvania gas, this decay having occurred within the rocks and probably at moderate temperatures. When once formed it accumulates in the pores of the rocks in which it originated or in the overlying layers, but is usually kept from escaping to the surface by the presence of some layers of impervious rock. It is then obtained by the piercing of these strata by wells, or where the beds have been assured by folding or faulting it may issue from natural channels.—New York American.

An Inspiration.

"What's the name of her successful story?"
"Hyloxyperhoof!"
"Gracious! What does it mean?"
"She doesn't know."
"Where did she get it?"
"Why, she was on a train wondering in a discouraged way where she would get a name for the story. And just then the brakeman opened the car door and called the next station."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Get His.

"I'll admit I was trying to get something for nothing."
"Well?"
"I got what I deserved."—Washington Herald.

Never forget that the nearest approach to perfect domestic happiness on earth is the cultivation of unselfishness.

SKEEING IN THE ALPS.

Picturesque Sport on the Order of "Follow Your Leader."

The skeeing clubs form one of the most picturesque sights to be seen in the Alps in winter. With their bright colored blanket suits, tasseled caps or tam-o'-shanters and huge white mitts, they go through the snow covered woodlands across the white mountain slopes usually in single file, perhaps fifty sizzling along after the leader in true Norwegian fashion. Indeed, it is a variety of the old game of "follow your leader," for what he does the others are expected to do. So if he comes to a ledge and jumps off all are supposed to leap.

But jumping with the skees is not so easy as it looks, and the end is often burial in the snow bank, for unless one is very sure of his footing the long, narrow wooden slats will twist or turn without warning, and over you go. With the skee one can go over hard snow at a very rapid rate, but when he strikes a patch of the newly fallen snow it is a case of slow to be sure, for any minute the bottom may sink away with him.

But it is healthful as well as invigorating, and the women have found that they need not look awkward even in this form of outdoor dress, with a ribbon here and a tassel there and some even adorning their skees.—St. Nicholas.

HE TOOK THE CASE.

The Lawyer Said He Would Attend to It, and He Did.

A Washington attorney is rather noted for the facility with which he forgets financial obligations. He has owed a certain grocer $5 for a year or two. The other day the merchant concluded to try a new course with him. Meeting him in his store, he said:

"Judge, I have a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money, but won't pay. What would you do?"

"I'd sue him," said the lawyer emphatically.

"Well, I will put the account in your hands." And the merchant presented a statement of the account against the lawyer himself.

"All right, I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.

A few days later the merchant received the following note from the lawyer:

"In the case of — versus —, I took judgment for the full amount of your claim. Execution was issued and returned 'no property found.' My fee for obtaining judgment is $10, for which amount please send check. Will be glad to serve you in any other matters in which you may need an attorney."—Washington Star.

The Bashi-bazouk.

Like each of the various clans of the Kurds, the bashi-bazouk can easily be distinguished by his costume. His shoes, or "yemenys" (meaning leathers, are red or black. His gaitlike stockings, which leave the knee exposed, are elaborately embroidered in black, his short Turkish trousers are of homespun, while about his waist is a short sash of wool or silk, surmounted by a leather belt in rich colors and embossed in red. This is divided into three or four sections, in which he keeps his revolver, his cibout, or pipe, and his yataghan, always kept sharp. The bashi-bazouks never carry daggers, as the Circassians do. A cartridge box hangs from the side, as also a small silver snuffbox. They wear two jackets, the under one with short sleeves and the outside one with long. At the elbow is an opening in which they carry in a leather bag written quotations from the Koran as a talisman to protect them from the bullets of the adversary. About the neck is a chain of silver coins, from which is suspended a powder box.

Dividing Something.

A farm laborer in one of the western counties was requested to vote for a candidate at the election, but he refused. Being asked for his reason, he made answer:

"Why, because them chaps be well enough paid."

They then tried to explain to Hodge that members of parliament in this country were not paid for their services. But he was not to be convinced.

"Don't 'ee tell me," he replied somewhat angrily. "I believe my eyes, and when I sees in the paper as they divides almost every night I knows they be dividin' summat!"—London Tit-Bits.

Old Scottish Words.

Here are a few quaint old Scottish words still used a good deal in East Aberdeenshire: "Mease"—To say anything is one noose means it is uncanny or dangerous. "Connached"—Spilled; clean connached would mean utterly destroyed or rendered useless. "Bland"—To bland anything would mean to soothe it. A child would be told, "Dinna bland your clean pina." "Gardies" or "Gardies"—A child's forearm. The last is a very old expression, but we have heard it used. "Sh-boanle gardies be bag means the baby has plump arms.—Glasgow Herald.

A Straight Vote.

The secret of the ballot is sometimes too good to keep. "George," said the squire, "did you vote straight, as I told you?" "Sure, O! did, squire. It said on th' paper to put a X, but O! included as how ye said 'cast straight,' and O! put an straight through un's name."—London Chronicle.

Violent delights have violent ends and in their triumph die like fire and powder, which as they kiss consume.—Shakespeare.
