DEFEAT COUNTY DIVISION.

(Albany Herald)

"There are no less than eight applications for the creation of new counties to be voted upon by the people of Oregon at this fall's election. Though there may be one or more of these new county schemes possessing some degree of merit and are prompted by good faith, it would appear that in the main they are not entitled to the favorable consideration of the people at large, and as a matter of expediency and good public policy all of them should be defeated.

"In the first place the Herald believes that the creation of a new county is a matter devolving upon the legislature and should not be submitted to a vote of the people at large, who cannot possibly have any intelligent idea of the demand for such proposed new counties and are, therefore, in no sense competent to vote upon the measures. What does the average voter of the northeastern part of the state know about the practicability or wisdom of the clamor of the southwestern portion of the state for the creation of a new county? Certainly, in the majority of cases, he would not be able to cast an intelligent vote on the proposition.

"The submission to a vote of the people of the whole state of these various county division schemes, therefore, would seem highly impracticable, if not unwise. Moreover, the success of these various division schemes would establish a bad precedent, which might tend to retard the healthy growth and reasonable prosperity of many counties of the state.

"There are doubtless counties in Oregon which should be divided into two separate county divisions, but these, the Herald believes, should be taken care of by the legislature and not voted upon by the people of the state at large, who cannot possibly judge of the merits or wisdom of the proposed division of a remote section of the state, and in which the voters at large can have no reasonable interest.

"Many of the county schemes up for consideration this fall are without question ill-advised and prompted by impure motives, and the Herald suggests a negative vote on all county measures as the most practical remedy for the present county division epidemic.

SEES BIG FUTURE

G. N. EXPERT PLEASSED WITH PRODUCTIVENESS.

Prof. Shaw Says Dry Farming Opportunities Unrivaled and Irrigation Crops Enormous—Bend Has More Precipitation.

Crook County contains about 4,000,000 acres of land. It has been estimated that at least one-fourth of this amount is arable, and this means that in that county at least 3,000,000 acres of land can some day be farmed. It is also thought that more than 400,000 acres will eventually be irrigated. This will mean that the production of Crook County will assume very large proportions in the not distant future. It will be remembered that the most successful exhibit made at the Interstate Fair recently held at Spokane from dry land farming, came from the neighborhood of the Madras country.

I was a little disappointed at the small rainfall as given by the record kept at Prineville during recent years, and was somewhat surprised at the amount of same given at Bend, which is not very far from Prineville. The records at Prineville give the average rainfall as 9.16 inches while the records at Bend give the same at 16.03 inches which makes a difference of nearly 7 inches. The difference of the elevation, however, is more than 700 feet. The elevation at Prineville is 2816 feet and at Bend 3629 feet, and this fact apparently holds true of all valley and bench lands in Oregon east of the Cascade mountains, viz: that the higher the elevation the greater is the amount of precipitation. At both Prineville and Bend, however, the rainfall is reasonably distributed throughout the year although the precipitation during the six winter months is considerably greater than during the summer months. The moderately cool climate is highly favorable to the successful growing of crops grown under "dry land" conditions. That these can be successfully grown on the precipitation cannot for one moment be questioned since some farmers have grown them during recent years.

I am satisfied that the bulk of the cereal production should come from what may be termed "winter crops," including winter wheat, winter rye, winter barley and winter oats. The growing of these crops secures the largest amount possible of precipitation; it also admits of their maturing before the season reaches a maximum of dryness when grown on properly summer fallowed land. I am satisfied that millions of bushels of winter wheat may be farmed successfully on the dry lands of Crook County.

I believe also that the sand vetch which would be best sown in the autumn along with the winter wheat and winter oats, the combined crop being cut in spring for hay. Or if desired, it may be devoted to a growing pasture. The farmer should not plow the land to the greatest extent possible in the autumn even for such spring crops as may be sown. Of these Durham wheat will probably be best, and next to it will come speltz. The open character of the winter is very favorable to the admission of winter rains into the soil. In many instances the water does not go down more deeply than six inches into the soil.

Where the land can be irrigated, enormous crops of hay can be grown and also good crops of any variety of cereal grain that may be desired. Apparently the clovers succeed better than alfalfa, a result which in some instances may be attributed to the nearness of underlying rocks to the surface, in some localities at least. Where the clovers grow so well, however, it will not make much difference as a combination of clovers, timothy and redtop will make most excellent food for dairy cows both winter and summer.

There can be no question that a great future is before this country in the production of dairy products, and in conjunction with dairying in the production of pork. At the present price paid for dairy products the skillful dairyman should make good a return of not less than $100 per cow. It may also be added that on the foods that can be grown for pork production supplemented by skim milk should produce pork at a cost of not more than 3 cents per pound live weight. These foods include clover pastures, field roots and coarse grains, especially field peas on which the swine can be quickly fattened while harvesting the crop where it grew.

Plea for Majority Rule.

E. E. Fisher, ex-mayor of Beaverton; T. E. Hills, ex-state commander G. A. R.; Hon. J. R. C. Thompson of Tualatin; Theo. Pointer, George Stitt and 500 other legal voters and residents of the portion of Washington county proposed to be annexed to Multnomah have signed a remonstrance and ask that the boundary lines be not changed. Less than 300 voters within the strip signed the petition and the remainder of the county is practically a unit against it. Let the majority rule. All county divisions should be decided by the wishes of the people affected. By not voting at all you give half a vote for the measure. Multnomah, all powerful, does not need one-fourth of Washington county to further increase her power in the state. The loss of the territory will practically ruin Washington, which is already small in area. We ask you to vote 119 X No.—W. D. Wood, Chairman Anti-Annexation Committee, Hillsboro, Oregon.
