WHEN IN DOUBT, VOTE "NO."

Next Tuesday the voters of Oregon go to the polls. There they will encounter a formidable and puzzling document—the ballot. It will be comparatively easy for the voter to make and mark his choice of officers. However, wise decision upon the host of bills proposed by initiative petitions, except for the few who have had the time and opportunity to study their intricacies, is next to impossible. It will take the average voter half an hour to read these proposed bills. No earthly intellect can calculate how much time would be required to really pass careful judgement upon them.

Therefore there is but one advisory remark that can be offered. If you do not fully understand the character and purpose of the bill in question, if you are unfamiliar with its pros and cons, oppose it. WHEN IN DOUBT VOTE "NO."

Shaniko's enormous shipping business as a railroad terminal and supply point for Central Oregon, as reported elsewhere in this issue is of great interest to Bend. Shaniko has this huge and profitable business because it is the railroad supply point for the great country to the south. Let Bend note this. And let us ponder on the economic magnitude and town-building importance of this shipping and freighting trade that will be Bend's when Bend is the terminus of the Oregon Trunk and the supply point for the great country to the south and southeast. Furthermore, in estimating what this will mean for Bend, it is important to remember that all this southern territory is developing with wonderful rapidity, and will focus an enormous trade here—a trade which will continue to be Bend's long after the railroads have built forth southward and southeastward.

In the informal report upon Crook County of Prof. Shaws, the agricultural expert of the Great Northern railroad, appearing elsewhere in this paper, some interesting facts are developed concerning altitudes and temperature. He finds that Bend, but 700 feet higher than Prineville, has a rainfall almost seven inches greater than it is at the county seat. Remarkable on this he says, speaking of the country east of the Cascades, "the higher the elevation the greater is the amount of precipitation." He speaks of this altitude, of the precipitation of the county, and of the cool climate all as highly favorable for dry land crop-raising, which argues well for the future that lies before the big dry land homestead country to the southeast—a territory which, when developed, will hold its own, and more, with the best that far-famed Montana offers.

It is gratifying to note how large a proportion of the trade of the homesteaders in the southeast country, from Millican's to beyond Hampton Butte, is coming to Bend. This autumn, the first since settlement commenced in that territory, many thousand dollars have been spent in purchasing supplies here, despite the fact that other towns lie somewhat nearer to the homes of the purchasers. It is "up to Bend" to do its utmost to foster the growing bonds with the rich new country.

The Library has asked for old magazines, these to be given to homesteaders and others who have good use for them. This is a splendid new field into which the Bend institution is entering, and it is most desirable that all possible aid be given it in the good work. A goodly bundle of readable literature makes a mighty lasting bond of good will, and the settler who receives it will have a soft spot in his heart for Bend and will gladly "come again."

"The temperature is akin to that of Paradise," is the alluring description of a certain region's climatic attractions as set forth in an advertisement last week appearing in a Portland paper. The "ad." writer should have been more explicit. Even Oregonians can't be sure of the exact character of the average Paradise summer—not to mention those "unusual seasons."

Remember that in not voting at all you give a vote to the opposing measure.

School Notes.

Last Friday the Bend School had its first fire drill. After one boy had given the alarm, two other boys opened the large doors down stairs. The lower grades marched out first, the High School students going last. This being the first fire drill this year, the pupils were told in advance, but hereafter they will not know whether it is really a fire or not.

Eight new pupils entered school last week; three in Miss Anderson's room and five in Miss Young's room.

Last Thursday evening the Eighth grade club had initiation of new members.

Fred Triplett has entered the Eighth grade.

TUMALO HAPPENINGS.

TUMALO, Or., Oct. 31.—H. W. Grunshy, special agent for the Bureau of the Census of Irrigation for the district comprising all Eastern Oregon tarried over night at this place Friday night. Mr. Grunshy is gathering much information in regards to irrigation.

Old Magazines Wanted.

There are many calls upon the Bend Library for bundles of old magazines. Often these come from settlers who live in remote places, and who are glad to get such a stock of reading material to help out in lonely times. The Library asks you to bring your old magazines to the reading room; they are of little value to you and will be of great service to others.

Card of Thanks.

The Ladies' Aid Society wishes to thank those who so kindly donated to the chicken pie dinner.

For Sale.

CHAS. CARROLL WEDS

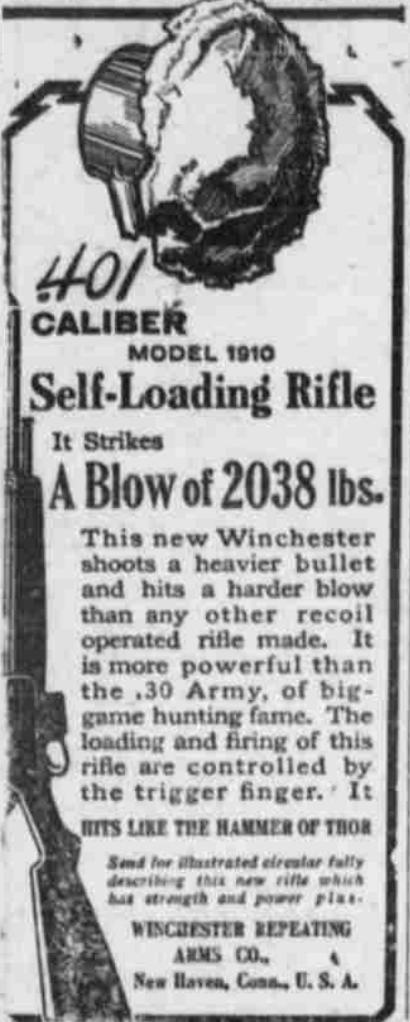

Bend Man Marries Miss Morris in Shaniko Last Week.

On Wednesday evening, October 20th, Charles Carroll and Miss Eva Morris were united in marriage by Judge Thos. F. Courtney, at the latter's office in Shaniko. Mr. and Mrs. Duigall Jonas witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. Jonas being an aunt of the bride.

Miss Morris is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morris of Bend. Mr. Carroll is well known in Bend, having at one time been proprietor of the blacksmith shop now conducted by Peter Lehrman, and since having held a number of other positions. He was one of the leaders in the most successful Fourth of July celebration here this summer. It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Carroll will make their home in Bend.
