Lara Says

YOU are probably beginning to think a little about Christmas. No doubt you are already planning little remembrances for the folks back home and are commencing to get them ready. The gifts that are most appreciated are those you make with your own hands---an embroidered sofa pillow or shopping bag, a pair of knit bed-room slippers or a piece of pierced brass. Such things take to themselves a part of the giver's individuality and are accordingly cherished.

This year it will not be necessary for you to send away for these things, because we have a stock large and diversified enough to meet your every requirement. Not only have we a specially we'll selected line of fancy work materials but there is also an attractive assortment of fancy china, brass-ware, and men's, women's and children's wearing apparel.

We have coming a line of genuine Navajo blankets---these will make mighty acceptable gifts.

Our stock of toys is on the way in. We will have them on the shelves in a short time and unless we are greatly mistaken we believe you will say that it is the finest display of Santa Claus' products you have ever seen in a town of even several times the size of Bend.

Come in and see what we have. We are conceited enough to think that it is worth a special trip. You will be cordially welcome at any time.

ABSTRACT TALKS.
The Delusion of a Warranty Deed.
A warranty deed is too often a delusion and a snare.
It sometimes conveys an absolutely bad title.
Your lawyer will tell you so.
The warranty in a deed is no stronger than the present ability of the maker to make good.
He may be dead when your defect is discovered; his estate may be insolvent.
Again, your title may be held up as unmarketable at a time when a sale is extremely desired. For this annoyance you have no recourse or your vendor. It is your worry—not his.
We search the title—not the man.
