BEND EXHIBITS

PUBLICITY CAR READY FOR ADVERTISING TOUR.

Great Northern Railway Boosting Central Oregon--Car to Tour East this Winter Preparing at St. Paul, Minnesota.

The following letter from F. W. Graham, the Great Northern Railroad's western immigration agent, in whose charge is the roads Central Oregon publicity work, was received Monday by G. P. Putnam. It gives information concerning the fate of the Bend agricultural exhibits:

The exhibits sent from Bend were received in good order and forwarded from Portland in a special baggage car to St. Paul for installation in our Oregon Car, and in our other eastern exhibits. In order to economize time and on account of having better facilities at St. Paul, we decided on outfitting and decorating both the Oregon and Washington Cars at St. Paul, instead of at Portland and Spokane, as we had originally intended doing. The Oregon Car is now about ready to start out from there on its long trip through the East, if it has not already gone.

Some time next spring or summer, we will bring the car to Portland and other Oregon points to let everyone see it, and, if we are running into Bend by that time, will surely bring it down there. Just now, we feel that it will do us all more good by getting it on the road in the East as quickly as possible, while it has so much nice, fresh, hardy fruits and vegetables which we want to show to as many thousands of easterners as possible, while it is attractive. It has been a source of great gratification to us that we have met with such ready response and hearty co-operation from Central Oregon points, particularly from Bend, Prineville, Redmond and even Burns and Lakeview. The interest manifested and the exhibits received from these distant points exceeded, in many cases, that of the nearby towns right on our line. We will be enabled to make a fine showing of the products of Central and interior Oregon, thanks to the interest and assistance of all of you, which is just what we want to do, as there is a vast inland empire there which we want to settle up as fast as possible. I want to thank you and the other gentlemen who gave their time and efforts towards getting up the exhibits from Bend, and to assure you that we appreciate all you have done and will do our best to make good use of the material you have furnished us. We will be glad to get as much literature as you can let us have for distribution in the car and our other eastern exhibits.

Yours truly,
(Signed) F. W. GRAHAM.

THEATRICAL HIT MADE

Library's Entertainment Proves Great Success--Music Excellent.

On Wednesday evening the Ladies' Library Club gave a unique and interesting entertainment at Finster's Hall, in which were combined music, theatricals and dancing.

The chief feature of the evening was a presentation of the trial scene from the Merchant of Venice. All the characters were good, both in their make-up and their interpretations of their parts. There was spirit in the acting, which showed the results of painstaking study.

The orchestra opened the festivities with Barnard's Overture, which was encored. Miss Iva West gave a violin solo, which was followed by a clever reading by Morris Lara, taking the place of F. M. Ray. After the Shakespeare scene there was more music; then refreshments and a big dance, with music by the orchestra. About $65 was cleared for the library.

The cast was as follows:
Duke of Venice.....Montel Coe
Bassanio.....Prof. Harrington
Antonio.....Ivan A. Forbes
Gratiano.....V. A. McGilvray
Shylock.....J. Anthony Mitchell
Portia.....Mrs. Morrison
Nerissa, Portia's Friend.....Tot Taggart
Page.....Marion Lawrence

CYCLONE FORMATION.

The Mechanical Laws Are the Same as in a Whirlpool.

Any one can make the exact counterpart of a cyclone if he so desires. Of course a cyclone is caused by the air over a big area getting warm and light with small pressure. This air consequently tries to rise almost in a body and leaves a partial vacuum behind, but the outside cold air rushes in from all sides. Now, it is a scientific and mechanical truth that when a fluid runs in from all sides toward a central point it causes a whirlpool or rotation of the fluid. The exact analogy of a cyclone, then, although with the fluid water instead of air, is seen when the stopper is pulled out of the bottom of a basin full of water. An almost perfect vacuum, as far as the water is concerned, is caused by the water immediately over the stopper running out. The rest of the water rushes in from all directions, and a whirlpool is the result. There is one difference here from the air cyclone. In the air the force with which it rushes toward the center greatly compresses the air whirling at that point and makes it very dense--so dense, in fact, that a straw carried in the central whirl can be driven into a big block of wood without bending. Of course in a whirlpool the water is not compressed, remaining practically the same in density all the time. That is one highly important property of water: it is practically incompressible. Nevertheless it is very interesting to see the whirl form in a basin and know that the mechanical laws are the same as in the formation of a cyclone many miles wide.--Harper's Weekly.

NEW JERSEY TEA.

Red Root, That Did Good Service in Revolutionary Days.

You housekeepers of today whose favorite brands of Orange Pekoe, English Breakfast, India and Ceylon, etc., diffuse their fragrance over your tea table would hardly suppose that tea, or, rather, a fairly good substitute for it, was once made from the leaves of one of our prettiest New Jersey wild flowers. Yet so it was in the old turbulent days of the American Revolution, when they had so much trouble over the imported article and used various beverages as substitutes for that to which they had become accustomed.

New Jersey tea, or red root, as it is also called, is a low growing shrub with many branches, seldom over three feet high, and is found from Canada to Florida, growing usually in dry wooded sections. It is very abundant in New Jersey, for which it is named. It blooms profusely in July and is so showy, with its many patted white blossoms, as to be quite worth a place in the gardens as an ornamental shrub. It has a dark red root, with leaves downy beneath and very much veined, by which it is easily distinguished from the pure tea. An infusion of the leaves prepared in the same manner as the genuine article has somewhat the taste of ordinary grades of the tea of the orient, but is not supposed to possess any of its stimulating properties.--Exchange.

Bulwer Lytton and His Chorus.

The Princess von Racowitza met Bulwer Lytton in the Riviera toward the end of the fifties. He was then, she says in her autobiography, "past his first youth; his fame was at its zenith. He seemed to me antediluvian, with his long dyed curls and his old fashioned dress. He dressed exactly in the fashion of the twenties, with long coats reaching to the ankles, knee breeches and long colored waistcoats. Also he appeared always with a young lady who adored him and who was followed by a manservant carrying a harp. She sat at his feet and appeared, as he did, in the costume of 1830, with long flowing curls, called Anglaises. He read aloud from his own works, and in especially poetic passages his 'Alice' accompanied him with arpeggios on the harp."

A Tree Climbing Dog.

A government official in Bavaria connected with the forestry department has a wonderful dog, which is as clever at climbing trees as a cat. If his master fastens a handkerchief up in the treetops the animal will clamber up after it in the nimblest way and never fails to bring it down. He was taught by his mother, who was famous as a tree climber. The clever animal has won several medals by his extraordinary talent and takes particular delight in climbing silver birches, not the easiest tree in the world to scale, for the trunk is particularly smooth and slippery.--Wide World Magazine.

Kindness to Animals.

"What I believe in," said Mr. Ernest Pinsky, "is kindness to dumb animals."
"Yes," replied Miss Miami Brown. "I has hushed dat some folks kin lif a chicken off de roos" so gentle a tender dat he won't have his sleep disturbed ska'sely none."--Washington Star.

The Alternative.

Fig--My wife wants a new silk dress.
Fogg--Are you going to let her have it?
Fig--Yes. It's a case of silks or sulks.--Boston Transcript.

Unreasonable.

Mrs. Sharpe (severely)--Norah, I can find only seven of these plates. Where are the other five? Cook (in surprise)--Sure, mum, don't ye make no allowance for ordinary wear an' tear?
