LAND BEING SOLD

PROSPECTS PLEASE IRRIGATION MANAGER

Enormous Immigration Predicted—Big Acreage Awaits Coming of Buyers—North Canal To Be Under Way Soon.

Roscoe Howard, manager of the Central Oregon Irrigation Co., who returned from Portland last Tuesday, speaks most enthusiastically concerning local irrigation prospects.

"People in here," said Mr. Howard, "scarcely realize what a big immigration this summer will bring. But down in Portland, where they are in touch with the east and middle west, they do; and the railroads are preparing to handle a very heavy Central Oregon passenger traffic. The majority of these people will be looking for land, and hundreds will buy our irrigated tracts. All this will mean a lot of money spent here, and a lot of the best kind of substantial development."

Mr. Howard said his company has some 24,000 acres ready to be sold. The work of leading water to this acreage is about 90 per cent or more completed. During the last 60 days the company has sold in the neighborhood of 2000 acres.

Preliminary work on the North Canal is progressing. According to Mr. Howard diamond drill outfits soon will be brought in to do prospecting work on the dam site, for the purpose of making complete surveys. These drills are used to ascertain the condition of the rock upon which the dam foundations will rest.

"We hope to get the North Canal finished to a junction with the stove flume this summer," continued Mr. Howard. "I suppose this would entail the expenditure of perhaps $400,000." The proposed North Canal leaves the Deschutes about a mile north of Bend. It will water 56,000 acres.

Much improvement and construction work on canals and laterals will be undertaken as soon as the frost gets out of the ground.

Mr. Howard's family is in San Diego County, California. They will come to Bend early in the spring.

The net proceeds from the Country Store sale held by the United Church Societies on Saturday were $112.

HARRIMAN ROAD TO BEND

This Place to Be Double Terminus—First Rails on Hill Line Reach Madras This Morning.

This morning at nine o'clock the first train pulled in over the newly laid rails to Madras. All day a big celebration has been in progress. The Bend Band went down in three autos, and many local residents are there to see Central Oregon's first railroad train. Within four months Bend, the terminus, will celebrate the arrival of the first train at this place.

The Harriman Deschutes Railroad will be continued from Redmond to Bend.

Yesterday in Bend, eight Harriman officials investigated terminal facilities for their road here. Chief Engineer G. W. Boschke and R. B. Miller, General Freight Agent, both made no bones of the fact that the Harriman road will be continued from Redmond to Bend, and this probably at once. Whether the Oregon Trunk track will be used jointly, or a separate Harriman track constructed, as yet is uncertain. However, the Harriman people intend to operate their own terminal grounds, according to definite statements of both Mr. Miller and Mr. Boschke.

The party put in an appearance about two, having telephoned news of their approach. An informal dinner hastily was prepared at Taggart's Restaurant, half a dozen Bend men being on hand to help entertain the visitors and give them desired information.

Immediately the purpose of the visit was stated; namely, to look over terminal sites. After dinner the leaders of the party, in their automobiles, went out to the right-of-way, and looked over the field. Just what they want, and how much property they will require, will be apparent after the matter is taken up with the Townsite Company and individual owners upon their return to Portland.

"I expect to see 25,000 people here in 1920" remarked Mr. Boschke at dinner, adding "of course I may be out of the way 250." The Harriman engineer is an enthusiastic admirer of Bend's attractions and says he hopes to get a summer home here.

In the party were, besides Messrs. Boschke and Miller: M. J. Buckley, Acting General Manager, F. W. Robinson, Freight Agent, J. M. Scott, Asst. General Passenger Agent, L. R. Fields, Asst. General Manager, F. C. Dann, Traveling Freight Agent and Shad O. Krantz, representing the Portland Oregonian.

In speaking of probable freight rates Mr. Miller estimated that the Portland-Bend rate probably would range from 75 cents to $1.15, according to class. Today the rate varies from 2 1/4 to 3 cents a pound.

Mr. Scott, together with Mr. Krantz of the Oregonian, was particularly interested in securing data concerning the reduction of prices of necessities which will be effected by the arrival of the railroad. While the figures can be little more than approximate, the comparison, as given below, is interesting:

	Present Price.	Price with R.R.
Nails.....	$5 75	$3 75
Wire.....	7 00	4 00
Lime.....	7 50	3 00
Dops.....	3 00	1 75
Paint.....	2 50	2 00
Roofing.....	3 00	1 75
Sugar.....	8 35	6 85
Cement.....	14 50	4 50
Oil.....	45	30
Gasoline.....	50	33

Mr. Scott stated that probably about 12 hours will be the running time between Portland and Bend. Probably trains will leave here early in the morning, reaching Portland in the evening. Today about the best time that can be made via Shaniko is 36 hours. The Shaniko trip costs close to $30; the Bend-Portland rate probably will be $7.80.
