TRAINS NEARER

OPAL CITY REACHED NEXT WEEK.

Passenger Service to be Started Sunday and Freight Monday—Jones Warehouse Company of Bend Will Handle Freight There.

Commencing next Monday the Oregon Trunk Railway will receive freight to Opal City, four miles north of Crooked River, the point nearest to the river to which the trains will come until the completion of the big bridge permits traffic to advance southward toward Bend. Passenger service will be extended to Opal City beginning Sunday.

The Jones Warehouse Company, a Bend corporation, will handle the warehouse business at Opal City. George A. Jones left today to make final arrangements at Opal City for the reception of shipments, the first of which are expected next week. In a few days Mr. Jones will move to Opal City, to make his headquarters there to superintend the handling of the freight.

The railroad company is constructing a platform 400x60 feet in dimension, which will have a special siding its entire length, and upon which the majority of the shipments will be stored until loaded upon freight wagons. All of this will be covered by tarpaulins for protection from inclement weather, and will be guarded by a special watchman, day and night. Perishable goods will be stored in sheds erected for the purpose.

"I shall have as large a crew as the work requires," said Mr. Jones, "and expect to employ not only enough men to handle the work to the satisfaction of all concerned, but to insure the smooth working of the business from the very outset I am arranging to secure the services of an experienced warehouse man, whose special occupation will be the office end of the business. We hope to be able to handle all freight quickly and to the satisfaction of our customers, doing away with all the trouble now being experienced."

The general methods of the Moody Warehouse at Shaniko will be followed. All advance charges will be paid by the warehouse company. It is now expected that the railroad will be delayed at Crooked River from 60 to 90 days. The first of the bridge steel has just been put through the fabricating plant and is not expected on the ground for several weeks.

See the curiosities and work of art in our window. Ebony carved elephants from Ceylon, India, shields from the warrior-chiefs of Africa, Boer coins, etc., at the Secondhand Store, postoffice corner. 5tf
