A STIGMATISM is the most annoying defect that the human eye is heir to. It is due to a malformation of the eye ball. Fifty years ago it was supposed that only about one in a thousand was afflicted with it, but at the present time it is positively known that fully forty per cent are thus afflicted. The many unpleasant symptoms of this defect causes lots of suffering and loss of valuable time. You can't afford to remain in ignorance of the real trouble very long. The wearing of properly fitted lenses will correct astigmatism and will cause all its symptoms to disappear.

The Tragedy of Blindness. Owing to the alarming increase in blindness, everyone is cautioned to have their eyes tested frequently, on an average of every two years. To wear glasses that the eyes have outgrown compels them to use their reserve energy, strains them and in time impairs them.

"There are sixty-five thousand or more blind persons in the United States, whose eyes, with proper care and judgment, could have been saved."—From Helen Keller's article, "Unnecessary Blindness", in the Ladies' Home Journal.

PRINEVILLE WINS

BEND NINE PLAYS POORLY.

Errors and Bonehead Work Help Visitors to Pile Up Nine Runs, While Locals Are Able to Cross Plate But Once.

Erratic playing gave Prineville an easy victory over the Bend baseball team here Sunday, the score being 9 to 1. The first man to go to bat for the visitors got to first on an error and later scored on a hit that the left fielder should have caught. This sort of playing was done throughout the game, while on the other hand the county seat nine was working together and cutting off hits and runs. Bend's lone tally resulted from two singles and some good base running. Brownlow scoring from first on Jackson's hit to right field.

The hits by the two teams were nearly even, but that does not tell a fair tale. Those of the visitors were mostly healthy wallops, while Bend's were for the most part scratchy and came at a time when they did but little good.

Kulp, on third for the locals, had a bad day, making five errors on easy chances. Carmody at second failed to go after several grounders he should have got and they went for hits. Lack of practice was plainly shown by the whole local nine.

The game was devoid of any fielding features. A crowd of more than 400 people saw the contest. The box score shows what each player did:

The Moral Stimulus of Good Clothes.

Men grow in self respect as they wear good clothes. Their clothes earn them the approval of their fellows. In turn they are forced to grow to fill the measure of good opinion, so that, forced forward by the clothes he wears, men attain to their highest capability.—Sartorial Art Journal.

The Exception.

"Doesn't your husband like cats, Mrs. Binks?"
"No, indeed. He hates all cats except a little kitty they have at his club."—Baltimore American.

He Wanted Figs.

At a small stag dinner the only young and unnoteworthy person present sat throughout the meal communing with his own bashful soul, afraid lest by speaking he betray his sophistication. Dessert being served, he felt he must have some of the candied fruit at the other end of the table. Clearing his voice, he fixed the nearest waiter with a glittering eye and, amid a sudden total silence, peremptorily called out at the top of his voice, "Figs, figs!"—Exchange.

Mated.
Any one with half an eye could see that he was madly in love with her, but he had not courage enough to put his fate to the test. But she was a young lady who knew her way about, as the saying goes, and one night she suggested a game of chess. He, poor fellow, eagerly swallowed the bait. If he was a novice at lovenanking he was certainly no novice at chess, and he soon had the fair maid hopelessly beaten.

"Ah!" he exclaimed as he put her in a hopeless corner. "You're in a tight corner now, Miss Mabel."
She looked at him with those beautiful eyes of hers and then said: "I hadn't noticed any compression, George. Have I no escape?"

"None whatever," said the guttleless George. "I shall mate you next move."
"Oh, George!" said she, with a becoming blush. "Er—hadn't you better ask father first?"

They are married now, and George often wonders if she is as dense at chess as she would make him believe.

Lincoln With His Children.

It was a frequent custom of Lincoln, this of carrying his children on his shoulder. He rarely went down street that he did not have one of his younger boys mounted on his shoulder, while another hung to the tail of his long coat. The antics of the boys with their father and the species of tyranny they exercised over him are still subjects of talk in Springfield. Mr. Roland Diller, who was a neighbor of Mr. Lincoln, told one of the best of the stories. He was called to the door one day by hearing a great noise of children crying, and there was Mr. Lincoln striding by with the boys, both of whom were wailing aloud. "Why, Mr. Lincoln, what's the matter with the boys?" he asked.

"Just what's the matter with the whole world," Lincoln replied. "I've got three walnuts and each wants two."—From Turtell's "Life of Lincoln."

Paying For Extras.

In one of the luxurious golf club houses in the south of England a visitor approached the steward and asked for a luncheon ticket.

"Five shillings," said the official.

"That's rather a lot, isn't it?" inquired the visitor.

"A lot? Think of the cost of this club. See those pictures? They're worth thousands of pounds. And those tapestries! Their value is simply enormous."

On the following day the visitor again asked for a luncheon ticket and tendered half a crown.

"I've already told you, sir," said the steward, "that the charge is five shillings."
"Yes, I know," was the reply, "but I only want half a crown's worth today. I saw the pictures and the tapestries yesterday."—World of Golf.

Dynamite.

The action of dynamite is comparatively precise. The firing point is 190 degrees C. At that temperature it either burns or explodes. If free from all pressure, jar, vibration or force of any kind it merely burns. That is how it comes about that one can burn dynamite safely in the hand if all conditions be wholly favorable. But any least vibration from such requisites will cause an explosion, which is an excellent reason for avoiding too intimate ventures with the compound. When ignited in small quantities in the open air dynamite does nothing more startling than to burn fiercely. When, however, larger quantities are ignited explosion almost invariably results, as the temperature is raised by the flames.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Old Time Carving.

An ancient book on carving says that the only meats that were "carved" were mutton and beef. You had to "break a deer, rear a goose, lift a swan, sauce a capon, spoil a hen, crush a chicken, unbrace a mallard, unlance a cony, dismount a heron, display a crane, disfigure a peacock, unjoint a bittern, untack a curlew, alay a pheasant, wing a partridge or a quail, mince a plover, thigh a pigeon or any other small bird and border a game pie."

Fascination of Golf.

"I've heard of Nero playing on 'is fiddle, sir, when 'is 'ome was a-burnin'." said the landlady, putting down the local paper, "but this 'ere game of golf must be the most fascinating 'obby in the world. I've been reading about the fire up at the golf ground last Friday, and it says, 'The fire brigades promptly responded to the call, and when darkness closed in they were still playing upon the ruins of the clubhouse.'"—Golf Illustrated.

Foiled Him.

"Why am I like a pin?" asked Mr. Jones triumphantly of his wife. He expected she was going to say, "Because you are so sharp," and he was simply paralyzed when she replied: "Because if you should get lost it wouldn't be worth while to spend time looking for you."

Yes, He Was Good.

"Were you a good boy in school today?"

"I think so, dad. Anyway, teacher called me a holy terror."—Buffalo Express.
