BEND IS CHOSEN

NEW FORESTRY DISTRICT CREATED.

J. Roy Harvey Appointed Supervisor, and Will Have Office Here After July 1—Special Government Agent on Inspection Trip.

Beginning July 1, Bend will become the headquarters of a new United States forestry district which has been created by the Government. The supervisor's office will be located here, the official appointed to this position being J. Roy Harvey.

Mr. Harvey came over from Prineville Thursday to look over the field and will take up his duties as supervisor the first of next month.

The territory included in the new district extends as far south as La Pine, west to the summit of the Cascade Mountains, and north as far as the northern line of the present Deschutes National Forest. It takes in parts of the old Deschutes, Cascade and Oregon reserves.

William B. Turner, special agent of the bureau of entomology, Department of Agriculture, arrived here last week from field headquarters at Baker to make an investigation on the timber beetle. He was detailed to this work at the request of W. B. Sellers, who made a trip to Baker to enlist Government aid in preventing any destruction of timber in the Bend territory.

SAGEBRUSH MACHINE

Land Cleared Successfully and Cheaply By Use of Horses.

Of the many machines that have been devised for clearing land of sagebrush, that on exhibition at Eggleston's harness shop, the property of L. W. Nelson, has proved to be one of the most successful. It is made in a V shape, with knives in front and on the sides. It is seven feet wide at the rear and ten feet long. Every part of it is made of structural steel and it weighs 1150 pounds. Low wheels keep it from dragging on the ground, though it can be adjusted so as to cut the sagebrush off under the ground. Four to six horses are required to pull it and from eight to ten acres can be cleared in a day. Mr. Nelson had it made in Seattle and has been using it clearing land in Whitaker Valley.
