RAILWAY WINS

JUDGE DISMISSES IN-JUNCTION

Circuit Court Jurist Holds There is Not Sufficient Grounds for Continuing
 Order Preventing Building of Spur Through Lytle.

Vernon A. Forbes has been notified that the temporary injunction obtained by A. A. Anthony and Mary Kelly against the Oregon Trunk Railway, to prevent the road from building a spur in Lytle to the river, has been dismissed by Judge Bradshaw of the Circuit Court.

This case has been in the courts for some time and has attracted much attention. A hearing was held before Judge Bradshaw at The Dalles on June 24 and arguments and affidavits were heard. By the dismissal of the injunction the road may go ahead and build whenever it desires.

Attorney Forbes, who appeared with Harrison Allen for the railway, states that Judge Bradshaw during course of argument stated that Mrs. Kelly had as strong a case as any property holder or other person, but that the judge did not find sufficient grounds for making the injunction permanent. The action will probably end now and the road proceed to construct the spur under condemnation proceedings.

BUYING A VASE.

Warthelmer's Clever Coup by Which He Secured the Prize.

The late Charles Warthelmer when asked on one occasion what he considered to be his astutest business coup thought for a while and then told how once when he was walking through a Brighton square he espied through an open window what he knew to be a priceless Chinese vase. He went to the nearest postoffice, examined a local directory and found the name of the resident. Then he called and asked for the gentleman and was shown into the study under the name of "Hamilton." He briefly explained that he was looking for a modest house in Brighton and had taken a fancy to this one. Would the gentleman entertain an offer for the piece as it stood—"lock, stock and barrel?"

"If your offer is reasonable," interrupted Hamilton, "I will give you an extra thousand."
 "Call tomorrow at 10.30, then," replied the owner.
 Hamilton did and found him prepared to accept $18,000 for the twenty-two years' unexpired term and the contents of the residence.

Although this was well over market value, Hamilton at once closed, sending the extra thousand, according to promise. As, however, he afterward sold the vase for $25,000, his coup was undoubtedly—London Telegraph.

The Term Philosopher.

The word "philosopher" is said to have originated with the celebrated Pythagoras, who was born about 570 B. C. The word means a lover of wisdom. Pythagoras must have been a very remarkable man, for it is certain that he made a profound and lasting impression upon his time. He was the originator of the idea that nature is a harmony and that its varied phenomena are all brought about by unerring and universal laws and are an expression of nothing less than the universe itself. True to the name he gave himself, Pythagoras is said to have devoted his whole life to the acquisition of knowledge to the end that he might impart it to others without money and without price. He was one of the noble influences of antiquity, and the effects of his unselfish labors are still visible among men.—Exchange.

A Quaint Introduction.

Clarence King, the ethnologist, once wrote from San Francisco to John Hay the following letter of introduction: "My Dear John—My friend, Horace F. Cutter, in the next geological period will go east. It would be a catastrophe if he did not know you. You will 'swarm in,' as the Germans say, when you meet. Lest I should not be there to expose Mr. Cutter's alias I take this opportunity to divulge to you that the police are divided in opinion as to whether he is Socrates or Don Quixote. I know better; he is both."

The Macgregors.

The Macgregors were forbidden to use their family name in 1093. The proscription was removed by Charles II, only to be inflicted again in the reign of William and Mary. It was not till 1822 that a royal license to use the name was granted to Sir Charles Macgregor, up to then known as "Murray." In the early years of the seventeenth century every man's hand was raised against this persecuted race and they could be mutilated and slain with impunity.—London Spectator.

SHOW IS HERE.

McKenzie Merry Makers Playing a Three-Night Engagement.

McKenzie's Merry Makers, a troupe of ten people, are playing a three-night engagement at Linster's Hall this week. Monday night they gave "Van, the Virginian," last night "St. Elmo" and tonight will offer "The Man in Black."

A startling feature of this evening's show will be the giving away of a real live baby. Last night's audience seemed pleased with "St. Elmo," applauding the players generously. The specialties between acts were good.

BOY SCOUTS TO GIVE RECEPTION.

Thursday evening the Boy Scouts met at their lodge, and, among other things, raised their new flag pole, which they brought from near the Tumalo last Sunday. Next Thursday they will hold a reception, to which all the parents of the Scouts will be invited. The refreshments will be cooked and served by the boys.

DISTRICT DEPUTY HERE.

District Deputy Head Council J. O. Alsbury of the Modern Woodmen is a Bend visitor this week. Last night he addressed the local lodge. On August 29 the lodge will have a big class adoption. The meeting next Tuesday night will be open to the public.

REPORT HUNTING GOOD.

Henry L. Whitsett and Donald Mackintosh returned Thursday night from a successful hunting trip on the Tumalo. They report plenty of game in that vicinity, deer being especially plentiful. They brought back with them two deer and one brown bear, which were killed in a few hours' hunting. The bear was met in a trail and shot by Mr. Whitsett.

Heard Here and There

Because the nut crop in Oregon this season promises to be a record breaker, the wise weather men predict a very hard winter.

A government surveying party has established the fact that the waters of Crater Lake are rising three inches every year. At this rate it is estimated that in about 4000 years the lake will spill over its sides and flood Oregon. However, doubtless steps will be taken by the national conservation experts before then to avert the catastrophe.

It is estimated that in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and California each year timber is destroyed by fire to the value of $40,000,000. Unlike other fires, as when San Francisco burned, this means a dead local loss; for in the San Francisco disaster the loss was distributed over the entire country by the payments of the insurance companies.

Reports from the Forestry Service of the United States government indicate that the elk of Oregon are rapidly becoming extinct. There are less than 300 animals within the boundaries of the state at this time.
