Is In the Eating

CLAIMS are easily made but not always easily proven. We would not make the claims we do for the high quality of our stock if we were not convinced of their truth, and if we didn't have so many compliments from customers on the superiority of our trees, and the most excellent manner in which they were packed, enabling them to arrive at destination in prime condition. This last item, good packing, is easily overlooked by many, but is one of importance, and is one of the many instances where our attention to detail keeps up the high standard of our trees. Have you seen our 74-page catalog? It's a beauty. Better send for it.

BEND'S PRAISE

J. Maurice Hupp Enjoys Bend's
Beauties and Urges Conservation of Native Trees as Attractions to the Many Newcomers.

To The Editor:—
If you can spare the space in your paper, I would like to say a few things concerning Bend.

In the first place, I think it is the beauty of the town which first strikes the stranger. This is especially true of those who come from the prairie country, as so many do. The trees are wonderfully attractive; above everything, do not slaughter your beautiful pine and juniper. They may not mean much to those who have lived among them always, but to others they do more to make Bend attractive than does any other one thing.

I would urge the establishment of a city park, if possible. How many Bend people, I wonder, appreciate what a natural asset Pilot Butte is? In Columbia, Tennessee, there is a Pilot Butte, too. It has made Columbia famous; there water is pumped to a reservoir on top of the hill, thus supplying a splendid pressure for the town.

Another thing; Pilot Butte offers a wonderful site for an observatory—the very finest I know of in the Northwest. If the matter is worked upon, I don't doubt before many years the establishment of one there might be effected. It would be a lasting monument and would attract tourists.

Bend has a magnificent situation, being far enough from any large city to insure a huge territory of its own, and having all the natural assets, in the shape of timber, waterpower, irrigation and dry lands, to insure a great future for it. Doubtless it will become a very important distributing point.

Wishing Bend all the prosperity that is its due, and with a prayer that its spiritual growth may keep pace with the material, I am,
Faithfully yours,
J. MAURICE HUPP.

INTERESTED IN SCHOOL

Hampton Valley Settlers in District 78
Are Active and Harmonious.

HAMPTON, Sep. 1.—On Monday night, Aug. 28, many gathered at the Hampton P. O. for a special school meeting. There was a good attendance, much interest is taken and the people work together. It was voted to open school as soon as the necessary arrangements could be made. This is a new district, No. 78, organized in June, with the following school board: Burr Black, Clerk; A. S. Fogar, Chairman; Wm. Fraser, L. B. Miller.

Sunday, Aug. 29, was the first anniversary of the Hampton Sunday School. In honor of the occasion a short program was rendered. Some good quartettes were appreciated. There were 20 present. Though the attendance is small the meetings are interesting and helpful to all. Sunday School at Hampton P. O. every Sunday at 11 o'clock. Everyone is invited.

HAMPTON, Sept. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Held, from Held, were visitors in Hampton over Sunday last week. L. B. Miller, wife and little son left on Monday for a few months in Willamette Valley.

J. W. McClure and family leave this week for Bend so their children may attend school.

Clever Paris Beggars.

Begging is forbidden on the Paris boulevards. But one day recently a pale, poorly dressed man was seen humbly approaching various pedestrians. He was evidently not used to begging, and as he told his pathetic story without the requisite boldness people passed him by unnoticed. A man dressed in black stepped up to him and showed him a card. He carried a thick stick and wore a heavy mustache and thick boots, which are the outward and visible signs, with a multicolored ribbon in the buttonhole, of a detective in plain clothes. "Now, then, get out of this or I'll run you in," he said roughly. Then in a lower tone, "Poor chap!" and furtively he gave the man some silver.

People had seen him do it, and, cheering the kind hearted policeman, they, too, gave to the poor beggar. A few minutes afterward in a side street the two men divided the spoils and moved off separately to ply their trade elsewhere. The detective wasn't a detective at all, but a beggar made up for the part.

Finally Lost It.

"I may have lost my golf ball," thought the old man as he crept on all fours round the bush into which it had rolled, "but I will not lose my temper." So he continued to grovel and grope and to wear a persuasive, patient smile. His knees bagged, his back ached horribly, and the bush bestowed upon his hands a generous quantity of thorns. But he refused to discard his smile and kept on repeating: "No, I will not lose my temper. I will not."

Suddenly the elusive ball caught his eye. Flopping flat, he stretched his hands toward it, grasped it among its nest of thorns and gingerly withdrew it. "Hoity-toity!" exclaimed an old woman behind him. "You ought to be ashamed, bird nesting at your time of life!" And then he did lose his temper.—London Answers.

A Fearless Quaker.

Uncle Abe was noted for his ability to turn his clouds inside out and show the silver lining. If any particular cloud was dark through and through he wisely supplied it with the lining from another. His yoke of steers had taken the cash prize on the first day of the fair. On the second some new contestants were entered, and Abe would probably be outclassed. But, as usual, he had made the most of good fortune while it lasted.

"Aren't you quaking in your boots?" a friend asked.

Abe thrust out a foot clad in new tan leather.

"Why, yes," he said; "I am quaking in my boots. But when I got that $50 yesterday I made sure they should be new boots. It ain't so bad to quake if you can do it in new boots."—Youth's Companion.

Ghiberti's Famous Doors.

The world renowned doors of the baptistry at Florence represent nearly the entire lifework of Ghiberti. He began the first pair when he was twenty-three years old, and when he finished the second pair he was seventy-three. Excepting the three statues outside Or San Michele and one or two minor works, these two pairs of bronze doors represent his labors for half a century. These doors, declared by Michelangelo "fit to be the gates of paradise," represent the book of Genesis in all the depth of its meaning, and the skill of the artist has never been overpraised. It is impossible to exaggerate the glory of the work, and if one has the time and money the sight of these wonderful doors is well worth the trip to Florence.—New York American.

Pull or Push?

Is there any such thing as pull? Does the horse pull the cart, or does he simply push on his collar and so draw it along? Would you pull a weight that was fastened to your coat-tails, or in that case would you simply be pushing against your clothes? Do our political office-holders always get their jobs through their own push, or is it usually a matter of pull? This is an interesting problem. Think it over.—New York Globe.

Very Strong.

"I see," said Slaters, "that our old friend Bilkins had a strong article in one of the Boston papers the other day."

"Really?" said Binks incredulously. "I'd never have believed that of old Bink. What was it?"

"A recipe for pickled onions," said Slaters.—Harper's Weekly.

Long Drawn Out.

Little Elmer had just been given a piece of pie. "Are you going to give me another piece, mamma?" he asked. "Why do you ask, Elmer?" she queried.

"'Cause if you ain't I'll eat this piece real slow," was the reply.—Chicago News.

Unfasting.

Orator—I ask you, what is this life we 'old so dear? Soon I'll be 'yin' with me forefathers. The Voice—An' givin' 'em points at the game too!—London Tit-Bits.
