BEND'S FINE CLIMATE.

The fine weather that Bend has had all this fall, and especially that prevailing during Thanksgiving week, has been the subject of much comment by all. To the old-timers here it has been nothing very unusual, but to the newcomer it was a delightful revelation. Especially is this true of people who have come from the Middle Western states. From the folks "back home" they have received letters telling of the thermometer dropping below zero and of the cold, biting winds and deep snows. Almost every day the sun has shone bright here and the crisp, invigorating air has given zest and energy to all, making them feel that life is indeed worth while. The outdoor workers have been able to keep steadily going and have suffered none from the cold. Early in the day old Jack Frost probably pinched their ears, face and hands a little, but it was not long till the warm sunshine made the day delightful.

While the people west of the Cascades boast of their exceedingly mild winters, they were hit much harder than Bend was by the storm wave that swept over the country about the middle of the month. Snow to the depth of a half foot fell at many places, but there was not over half an inch on the ground here at any time. Indeed, the climate which Bend enjoys is a great asset which by many is oft-times overlooked.

Of course, whatever the character of the weather, there is always someone who loses rather than profits thereby. In the case of the fine weather here this fall, the local merchants have felt the effect. Their stocks of heavy winter goods remain on the shelves unsold, for the people will not buy as long as their present needs do not call for heavy under and outer clothing. The wholesale men on the outside, who perhaps have gathered the idea that this is an almost frigid part of the country, wonder what is wrong when they do not receive more orders for winter-wear goods. They must sooner or later come to realize that, despite the altitude, Bend has a most equable climate, free from the extremes of summer and winter.

CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT.

Do you know Z. M. Chase of The Dalles? If you don't (and we'd bet a rotten apple you do not), run chase yourself. Mr. Chase is a self-nominated candidate for President of the United States. In his announcement declaration, he says, among other things:

"I believe that it is the God-given right of every born American, male or female, white, black, red or yellow, bull calf, jackass or tomcat (or some of the opposite sex), to be President of the United States at least once, and I strongly advocate the Oregon system, which gives everyone the chance to get there."

We are glad he further announces which class he is in by saying that he is white and a man.

Tibetan Incense Sticks.

The most valuable incense sticks in China and those which seldom, if ever, are imported into this country are those in the manufacture of which Tibetan incense is used. These sticks are made almost exclusively for the imperial court, which requires them for all its ceremonies.

The sticks are long and thin and are never allowed to be wholly consumed by the court. They are carefully extinguished when about three inches remain. These remnants are either sold or given by court officials to friends or foreign visitors. The cheapest variety of the Tibetan incense stick comes in thin sticks of great length and costs from 2 1/2 to 5 cents a stick. The larger and more costly sticks range in value from $1 to $2. The Chinese have a tradition or a theory that the smoke from one of these costly Tibetan sticks, if the genuine Tibetan incense has been used, will rise to a great height without being affected by the wind, no matter how strongly it may be blowing.—New York Herald

Africa's Gold Coast.

The Gold Coast is a British colony on the west coast of Africa. Its climate is notoriously unhealthy, the heat and moisture being excessive; the coast is lined with unhealthy swamps and shallow lakes, while the peculiar rock of the country is said to give off, under the influence of the air and moisture, large quantities of hydrogen gas. The native towns are crowded and dirty, intermittent fevers and other diseases being always present. These are peculiarly fatal to Europeans, though the natives do not suffer so much. The whole region is more or less a gold producing country, but at present the value of the territory is chiefly due to the profusion of vegetable products supplied by the rich soil. Coconut and palm oil, bread fruit, Indian corn, yams, sweet potatoes, limes and oranges are only some of many other valuable productions of this territory. The principal exports are gold dust and palm oil.
