The Proof of the Pudding Is in the Eating

CLAIMS are easily made; but not always easily proven. We would not make the claims we do for the high quality of our stock if we were not convinced of their truth, and if we didn't have so many compliments from customers on the superiority of our trees, and the most excellent manner in which they were packed, enabling them to arrive at destination in prime condition. This last item, good packing is easily overlooked by many, but is one of importance, and is one of the many instances where our attention to detail keeps up the high standard of our trees.

THE BEND BULLETIN.

THE WORD PARADISE.

Its Earliest Meaning Was an Inclosed Pleasure Ground.

The earliest meaning of the word paradise appears to have been a walled-in pleasure ground. In the Hebrew it was "parades," in the Persian "ferdus," and from one or other of these the Greeks appear to have derived the word "paradisos," from which we get our own word. We also know that the ancient monarchs of Chaldaea and Assyria and also of Egypt constructed vast inclosures of forest land for the preservation of wild animals kept for hunting purposes, and these were also called paradises. Thus the historical meaning of the word comes to this: A space protected from all incursion from the outer world, in which those who were privileged to enter were able to indulge in such pleasures as pleased the fancy.

It is easy to see the translation from the material to the spiritual meaning, paradise in the latter sense meaning the place of the elect or chosen. This is strikingly borne out by the fact that the favorite battillery of the Moslems, whose firm belief it is that those who die fighting go straight to heaven, was always "Fight! Fight! Paradise! Paradise!" And the strong probability is that they got the word from the Persian campaigns of the eighth century. The use of the word in its present form in the New Testament is of Greek origin, and its description as applied to the garden of Eden is probably of Hebrew origin, dating from the period of the captivity.

MILLET'S SKETCHES.

The Painter Didn't Value Them and Let Them Go Cheap.

I sold Sensier a quantity of Millet's sketches, and this is how I got them. I went into his studio one morning and found the servant making a fire with pieces of paper that looked as if they had pencil marks on them. I examined them more closely and, seeing that they were the painter's sketches, began to upbraid her for what she was doing, but she very coolly told me that her master had told her to burn up the papers. I could hardly contain myself with astonishment, when in came Millet, and I began to reproach him for the destruction of what I knew would sooner or later bring money. To all of which he calmly replied: "Ah, they are good for nothing. I have got out of them all I want." Just then I noticed a pile of paper in the corner, and I looked it over and found that it consisted of sketches.

"What will you take for the lot?" I asked.

"Anything you have a mind to give," said Millet.

"Will 300 francs be enough?"

"Oh, yes."

I handed him the money and took the sketches home and counted 800! Soon after I sold them to Sensier, who mounted them carefully and set to work to sell them. From this one can get some idea of the endless preliminary study Millet gave to the preparation of a picture—Charles Jacques in Century.

Almost an Accident.

The fussy little gentleman sidled up to the cabman, who was standing dejectedly at the bottom of the hill. "And pray, my good fellow," he purred, "what's the matter?"

"Matter, sir?" replied the cabby, turning the straw in his mouth. "Why, a gentleman's oss ran away with a broom. Never seed anything like it, sir. Down the 'ill he came, with the reins a-dangling and the shurves splintered, and knocks a butcher's barrow into a china shop!"

"Dear me!" muttered the O. M.

"Yes," continued the cabby. "Then he bangs agin a carriage and pair and smashes the hoffsides back wheel all to bits. Then he hupsets a phaeton and a pig, and if he hadn't run agin my old cab and turned it right over I'm verry much inclined to think there'd have been a haccident."—London Answers.

It Shocked Her.

"My goodness," said Mrs. Oldcastle. "I can't understand how any one ever is able to muster up enough courage or daring or whatever it is to go flying on an aeroplane. There is nothing in the world that could induce me to travel on one, no matter how safe they might make them."

"Yes, it's perfectly awful the way folks risk their lives," replied her hostess as she rubbed an $8,000 solitaire on her velvet sleeve. "I really think a good many people go crazy over them kind of things. When I was a girl I went to see a man who went up in a balloon and came down on his parasite, and it affected me so I never want to see anything of that kind again as long as I live."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sarcastic.

A young author, evidently destitute of benefiting by the experience of an older brother craftsman, once asked Richard Henry Stoddard how he had acquired such a mastery of Anglo-Saxon.

"I don't know how I ever did it," replied the poet, who, after a moment's reflection, added, "I think, however, I must attribute it to the fact that I never had any education."

Duties.

Man cannot choose his duties. He may choose to forsake his duties and choose not to have the sorrow they bring. But he will go forth, and what will be find? Sorrow without duty—bitter herbs and no bread with them.

The highest liberty is harmony with the highest laws.—Giles.
