

BEND HAS TOTAL OF 150 BUSINESS HOUSES

In order that the needs of the people of Bend and surrounding territory may be supplied, there are 150 persons, firms, corporations or associations conducting local businesses here, according to figures carefully compiled by The Bulletin. An effort has been made to include every business, but it is possible that some may have been overlooked. In that case, The Bulletin would consider it a favor if you would notify it of the omission in order that the record may be made complete.

The list has been classified, some businesses coming under more than one heading. The names of those firms and persons who realize that it pays to advertise in the local newspaper, thereby reaching the people of the town and county, as well as hundreds of others who have property interests in Central Oregon or are expecting to come to this part of the state to locate, are set in CAPITALS. By reference to the advertising columns of The Bulletin this week you will find what these progressive business people have to say.

PERSIAN BAZAARS

Curious Business Methods of the Oriental Shopkeepers.

HAVE NO GENERAL STORES.

One Merchant Will Sell Only Muslin, Another Nothing but Silk, Another Spices, and So On—Water is Difficult to Obtain and is Very Expensive.

One curious thing about the bazaars of Persia, writes Mrs. Mary A. C. Colquhoun in the Los Angeles Times, is the fact that all the shops of one kind are grouped together, and so we speak of the "cloth bazaar," the "hat bazaar," the "shoe bazaar." There are both wholesale and retail shops, but there are no department stores in America, nor is there such a thing as a general grocery or dry goods store.

One grocer keeps spices only, another tea, coffee, sugar, etc.; one dry goods merchant will sell you muslin, another broadcloth, another silk. There are no large manufacturing in Persia. It is common to have a small factory and a shop together or side by side.

All the metal utensils used in the country are made of either brass or copper. These substances are hammered into shape. A stroll through the bazaar where this work is going on gives one the impression that pandemonium has broken loose.

Different kinds of bread are made in the bazaar. One kind which is especially liked by the people and which can be obtained fresh at almost every hour of the day is called "non-i-sangak," literally little stone bread. It is made by pouring the dough on very hot pebbles, which bake it quickly and give it a crisp crust. Of course it is thin, not more than a quarter of an inch in thickness. The sheet is about a foot and a half wide by two and a half long.

Near the bazaar where this bread is baked you will usually find a place where mutton chops are being cooked on skewers over a charcoal fire. Any one desiring a lunch will buy from the baker a sheet of the thin, crisp, freshly baked bread, then a few "kabobs," as the chops are called. Wrapping the chops in the bread, he will proceed on his way, eating his lunch as he goes.

As you walk through the bazaars or stand to examine or purchase goods, especially if you are a foreigner, you must expect to be jostled, not only by crowds of curious pedestrians, but also by caravans of horses and donkeys and even of vicious camels. You will perhaps have to wait also for the shopkeeper to finish his prayer.

Foreigners usually go to the bazaars not to purchase things, but to see oriental life, and in the bazaars are to be seen many interesting phases of it. When you really wish to buy something you will find the peddler, that supreme nuisance of America, your best friend. He will bring to your door anything that you wish to see and give you all the time that you desire in which to examine it.

You must needs be a bargainer to deal with any merchant in Persia, but usually you can make a better bargain in the quiet of your own home than you can make in the bazaar.

Save for one month in the year the bazaars, even in the capital of 250,000 people, are never open at night. During the month when the Persians fast all day it is customary to do some marketing, some business and much visiting at night. Then the food bazaars, tea shops and so forth are open. Pedestrians with huge lanterns of oiled paper and people in carriages give an appearance of life and gaiety to the streets which is quite unknown at other times.

Many occupations which in western lands are carried on in shops are in Persia carried on in the open air. This is due partly to the poverty of the people, partly to the warmth of the climate, partly to the fact that the Persian is pre-eminently a social being and—with the exception of his domestic life, which is lived in great seclusion behind high walls—he likes to be with his fellow men.

The barber, for example, seldom has a shop and never really needs one. At any street corner you are likely to stumble over a man sitting on a ledge of the wall and being shaved or having his hair cut. It is your own opportunity for seeing a man with his hat off, but as you look at his tanned pate you do not regret that your opportunities in this direction are limited.

The only things that are free in Persia are air and sunshine. Water—not only in the cities, but everywhere—is one of the most expensive commodities and one of the most difficult to obtain. The entire water supply of Teheran comes from the snow on the mountains north of the city. It is brought for a distance of many miles in underground watercourses. There are thirty-four such channels which enter the city.

At various places as they pass along there are openings into these. Through these openings the water is dipped up with a leathern bucket and poured into a goatskin bag, which is slung over the shoulder of the private servant or the professional water carrier. Nothing is more common in the street than a sight of one of these carriers.

Recreation.

There is no happiness like that which comes from doing our level best every day.

CHURCH SERVICES.

Rev. I. I. Gorby will preach at the hall over the postoffice Sunday at 11 a. m. on the subject, "The Laws of Homogeneity and Heterogeneity in Christian Fellowship" and in the evening on "The Unanointed Tongue." There will be Sunday school at 10 o'clock sharp and young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m., addressed by Dr. Gorby. On Friday night there will be a union young people's Bible study at the West home.

Your Income

Depends upon the kind of nursery stock you get. If you are willing to pay a fair price, you will get good trees. YOU CAN'T GET SOMETHING FOR NOTHING. If you expect to pay next-to-nothing and get good, first-class stock, you are mistaken, that's all. You can't produce a high quality tree for little or nothing any more than you can an axe, wagon, or any implement.

YOU ARE THE LOSER if you let the question of price alone influence your judgment when buying. Your loss is not temporary, but extends over a long period of years as your orchard stands. The folly of buying cheap stock will be impressed upon you each year as you figure your returns. Better be on the safe side and buy where you are sure of getting just what you want.

Our sales this year could not have so largely surpassed last year's had we not made good in the past. Catalog free.

MRS. SMITH RESIGNS

President of Library Club Pleads for More Interest in Institution.

The Bulletin is requested to print the following:
BEND, OREGON, Jan. 16, 1912.—I hereby tender my resignation as president of the Ladies' Library Club, to take effect immediately.

I am obliged to present this resignation in this public way because of the failure to get a meeting of the Club for some three months past, though I have made every effort to get the members together. The work of the club can not be kept up without effort or attention. The reading room is supported by the public, except $60 a year paid by the city. The librarian gets $150 a year and a sum nearly as great goes for new books and periodicals, and there is considerable expense for fuel. The Bend Company furnishes free rent and light.

The library is certainly one of the attractions of the town. It is disheartening to find so many willing to let the responsibility of maintaining this institution rest upon a very few. I wish a more general and active interest were shown in it.

MRS. F. F. SMITH.

NEW HARNEY COURT HOUSE.
BURNS.—The Harney County Court has included in the tax levy 3 mills to raise $50,000 with which a new court house will be built here. Work will be started on the structure at once.
