Heard Here and There

GETTING NARROWS BUSINESS. Manager McDade of the auto-truck company made a business trip to Narrows within the week and concluded the arrangements to bring in some of the big loads of merchandise which Mr. Haines receives at that point. When the wool season arrives a good deal of the clip from the Stein's mountains can be easily delivered to the trucks at Narrows so that they will be well loaded both ways. The freight facilities are working out very nicely under good management on the part of the truck owners.—Harney County News.

GLAD IT WASN'T SO DEEP.

The Bend Bulletin in boosting the auto freight trucks stated that "the snow at Burns was nearly four feet deep." Now, Bro. Hoffman, "tote" fair. It was a Bend slogan when here during the Development League Congress that Harney county would receive just and impartial consideration and the snow depth must have been greatly exaggerated by your informant, because it has only been one-fourth as deep as stated. It may have been drifted to about three feet deep in places on the Bagehen hills and the Bulletin made too broad an application.—Harney County News.

The information given The Bulletin by an auto-truck company official was that the snow was nearly four feet deep in the streets of Burns, and we're glad to learn it was not more than a foot in depth. Sure, everybody here wants to give you just and impartial consideration.—Editor.

VIA BEND, SOONER OR LATER.

The stage line between Prairie City and Burns is to be cut to two horse stock if rumor is true. The coaches will be taken to the Vale-Burns route and light rigs and two horse rigs run on this line. The travel this way is very light and the probability is that this summer there will be nothing stirring this way as travel, freight, express and mail will be routed via Bend.—Canyon City Eagle.

DEPENDS ON RAILROADS.

(Portland Oregonian.) Division of a big county like Crook depends upon the amount of assessable railroad property in each portion

LOST IN THE FOG.

(Culver Tribune.) Ben McCaffery of Bend spent last Monday in Culver. He was west of the Deschutes on Sunday and lost his way in the fog, but finally reached a house for shelter Sunday evening. Mr. McCaffery is running the Bend hospital at present.

LIDLAW MAN'S SISTER KILLED.

(Culver Tribune.) E. B. James, the storekeeper at Laidlaw, received word Monday evening that his sister at Forest Grove, Oregon, was killed by the cars. He left Tuesday morning for Forest Grove to attend the funeral. This was the only sister of Mr. James. George Couch of Laidlaw accompanied him.

BANKS FURNISH MONEY.

The Metolius banks are furnishing funds with which to continue the county work on the road across the Deschutes River at the Cove. The appropriation made by the county for this purpose had become exhausted and work was suspended. Commissioner Bayley took up with the local banks the proposition of furnishing money for the prosecution of the work until such time as additional county funds are available, with the result that the two Metolius banks agreed to supply the necessary money and the work of building the road has been resumed. This will be good news to the many residents on the west side of the river, who feared that work on the much needed road would be suspended for several months.—Metolius Central Oregonian.

RAILWAY MEN TRANSFERRED.

The entire operating department of the Oregon Trunk Railway, now located at Moody, will be transferred to Metolius on February 1, next. The force includes three train dispatchers, a roundhouse foreman, the head store keeper, several car repairers and the regular roundhouse crew. They will temporarily occupy the storehouse which is nearing completion. This building will be the headquarters until sometime this spring, when a two-story commodious executive building will be erected between the depot and the Metolius warehouse.

The assistant superintendent and trainmaster will also make Metolius their headquarters on the date named in brief, the entire train force, including dispatchers, office help, roadmaster, bridge workers and machinists, will not only make Metolius their headquarters but will bring their families to this place. Several inquiries for vacant houses have already been made by the men who are coming. The roundhouse foreman was here this week and rented a cottage.—Metolius Central Oregonian.

PLANTING SPUDS EARLY

A. E. Bussett of Powell Butte was in for supplies Saturday. Mr. Bussett says that he will begin planting potatoes Monday. Snow and rain have gone right down into the soil and put it in firstclass condition for a potato crop. His neighbors, too, he says are planting on the high ground. He has some to dig from last year's crop and he will dig and plant at the same time. He has tried the digging and planting before and got good results. It was in the fall and the next year he harvested 60 sacks an acre of choice potatoes. Some of his neighbors cut the seed and some do not. He does not and gets good yields. Potatoes do not rot in the high sandy soil of Powell Butte.—Crook County Journal.
