

INSTRUCTIONS TO FIRE BOYS

HOW TO USE CHEMICAL ENGINE

A. G. Long says Firemen Should Have Practice in Fighting Flames With This Apparatus, Gaining Thereby Confidence and Skill

Instructions for charging and operating the chemical engine have been sent to the City Council by A. G. Long of Portland, from whom the engine was bought, as the result of a recent editorial in The Bulletin saying that there were few persons here who understood how it works and who can direct its operation. In the letter, a copy of which was sent The Bulletin, Mr. Long says in part:

"Another suggestion I would make is that the boys occasionally haul a few boxes to the outskirts of town, and where there is no possible danger of sparks setting fire to property. Pile these up, with the open side of the boxes all facing one way, so that you can direct the chemical stream inside; or better still pile these boxes in the form of a hollow square with their openings all facing inward, so as to nearly as possible represent a room, say 16 feet square and perhaps 10 feet high. Saturate these boxes with kerosene and fire them, putting the fire out with the chemical engine. This will give them good practice and familiarize the boys with the handling of the engine, and give them confidence in what it will do.

Get Close to Flames.
"In fighting fire with a chemical engine, one must get as close to the fire as possible so that as little gas is lost from the stream as possible. Turn on and shut off the nozzle occasionally, instead of throwing a steady stream. This, of course, after you have made the first sweep at the fire with a continued stream, and got it subdued somewhat.

"In connection with this, I must say the greatest power of the chemical stream, small as it is, will not be shown in extinguishing even such a fire as I have described out of doors; that is, in the open air. The efficiency of the chemical engine is on inside work; within a room or building, and for this reason the chemical engine will do a far greater volume of work inside a building than it will out in the open air. However, after the men have extinguished a fire of this kind, in the open, they will have experience and confidence and it will be good practice and give them experience in recharging the engine as well.

Keep Soda Air Tight.
"I presume you have a stock of bicarbonate of soda on hand. I do not remember just what you ordered from us at the time, but probably one or two kegs. This soda should be kept in a tin lined box, as it loses its strength if it is allowed to stand around open, or even in a wooden box where it may absorb the moisture from the air."

Cheap Fruit Trees.
I have 1000 first class apple trees, 3 years old, standard varieties, worth 35c each, which I will sell at 15c or 12.50 per 100 if taken before April 15th. Will sell entire lot at 10c, purchaser to dig them. Call and examine, and if they are not excellent stock, will give them to you.
52-3 H. SPINING.

In order to introduce their nursery stock in the Bend district, the Bunslope Nursery Company of Baker, Oregon, is offering to deliver their products during the spring of 1912 to Bend at very low figures. This stock being raised at an elevation of 3500 feet makes it well acclimated to the Bend district. Parties contemplating planting orchards will do well to get their price lists, which can be had by writing them at Baker, Oregon.

PROVISIONS AT COST.
Having sold my bakery outfit, I have a quantity of flour, baking powder, tinware and granite ware which I will sell at wholesale prices. First to come gets this bargain. Mrs. Nellie Wright, Boyd building.

Why get up in the night to fill the stove? Bank it with coal at night, and you need not fear that the pipes will freeze.

ROOSEVELT HAS HAD SOME HARD BUMPS

His Recent Campaigns Show He Has Failed to Muster Votes.

Can a man who disregards the whole course of American history and tradition, spurred on by his personal ambition, overcome the tremendous handicap of the third term precedent and land himself in the White House?

This is a question all Republicans are asking. All agree that no American has ever been able to do it and they can count on one finger the number who even had the hardhood to try it, and that only when spurred on by self-seeking politicians who posed as friends. People are asking themselves if this is not the condition in the present campaign.

Past performances are as valuable in the case of candidates as of race horses. How a candidate will run is best determined by noting how he has run.

Not a Strong Vote Getter.
Despite a tremendous popularity in the past, Roosevelt has never been a remarkable vote-getter. Mr. Bryan too, is remarkably strong all over the country and has been for years, but everyone knows how he failed to muster the votes. When Roosevelt was elected to the presidency, he ran against a weak opponent. Judge Parker did not have the support of his own party in that election.

But what Roosevelt has done since, and indeed very recently, in vote-getting is more significant than his former campaigns. Results of the last election speak louder than anything else.

In New York, where the personality of the ex-president actually overshadowed that of Mr. Stimson, the republican candidate for governor, a democrat was elected by a majority of 67,000.

In Indiana, where Mr. Roosevelt made a whirlwind campaign in his effort to save the state and re-elect his intimate friend and would-be running mate, Senator Beveridge, the democratic candidate was elected by a majority of 12,000.

His Attacks Helped.
In Connecticut, Roosevelt attacked the democratic candidate for governor, but he was elected by a majority of 3,700.

In New Hampshire, where Mr. Roosevelt's friend and champion, Robert P. Bass, was elected, the vote fell off 12,000 as compared with the majority given to Mr. Taft in 1908.

As further evidence that Mr. Roosevelt's star is waning, may be cited the fact, that the announcement of the Roosevelt candidacy for the third term did not evoke throughout the country anywhere near the predicted enthusiasm. In fact, the big shout that was supposed to follow the throwing of T. R.'s hat into the ring was noticeably absent, from Massachusetts to Oregon. In many places it never rose above a whisper.

COMMENT ON ROOSEVELT

A Day of Repentance Ahead
(From the Baltimore American, Rep.)
Some day Roosevelt will be sorry he ever went to Columbus.

As Inconsistent as He.
(From the Detroit Free Press)
It looks now as though the colonel is apt to learn that many people do not vote as they cheer.

Defeated His Honor And Word.
(From the Burlington (Ia.) Gazette, Dem.)
His ambition has made mince-meat of any common sense he ever owned. His honor and his word are defeated.

A Heavy Handicap.
(From the Detroit Free Press, Ind't.)
The third term issue is a tremendous handicap for the republicans to assume. It is our own honest belief that it will outweigh all possible gain Mr. Roosevelt can show over Mr. Taft in any other way.

BOON TO SETTLER

Auto Trucks Carry Goods for H. H. Fries to Harney County

The auto truck line to Burns is proving to be a boon to the homesteaders, as H. H. Fries of Seattle found out last week. Mr. Fries has a claim at Iron Mountain, in Harney county, and shipped in a large quantity of household and other goods, including two portable houses. It would have taken him more than a week to have reached his claim by team, but last Friday the whole outfit was loaded on the auto trucks and taken to Harney county for him. He accompanied them, and will be joined later by his wife.

The trucks got out about noon Friday, both loaded with all the freight they could haul, nearly 12 tons. They were driven by Elmer Merrill and John Linster, the old drivers having been discharged after the last trip to Burns.

The best of service makes Innes & Davidson's barber shop the most popular one in Bend.

The best and most up-to-date map of the county is the blueprint map which The Bulletin has for sale. It shows all the new roads and towns.
